D. C. TAX QUIZ WILL INCLUDE VARIED PHASES

Palmisano Named Head of Subcommittee to Make Inquiry.

WILL TAKE UP ONLY EMERGENCY STEPS

Rents, Securities Sale and Many Other Problems to Be Considered.

The House District Committee's District taxation study, ordered last week by Chairman Mary T. Norton, yesterday was expanded to include rents, evictions, sale of securities, mortgage foreclosures, real estate financing and fiscal relations between the Federal and District governments.

A subcommittee headed by Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, was appointed to make the investigation at a special meeting of the committee yesterday. A resolution will be offered in the House next week authorizing the subcommittee to subpena witnesses.

Close cooperation between the House and Senate District committees was urged on the group by Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, chairman of the Senate group. Following his talk, Representative Palmisano said he is considering the possibilities of joint sessions with a Senate District subcommittee named by Senator King to study fiscal relations.

Only Emergency Measures.

As outlined by Chairman Mary T. Norton of the House District Committee, the plan is to delay action on any of the measures growing out of the special subcommittee until Congress meets in its regular session. Only emergency measures connected with the District's program will come before the group this session.

Representative Ernest W. Gibson (Republican), Vermont, appeared before the committee to urge rent and real estate legislation. Representative Gale H. Stalker (Republican), Vermont, asked that the local banking situation be made a part of the study. Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, attacked what he called "the real estate racket" in Washington.

Will Begin Soon.

The subcommittee study will begin shortly and extend through the

Policeman Beaten; Attacker Subdued

Pudge in Serious Condition After Being Struck by Own Baton.

Private L. J. Pudge, a rookie policeman attached to the Fourth Precinct, was beaten with his own baton and seriously injured late last night by a man identified as Clarence Price, 35, no fixed address, who he had arrested for being drunk and disorderly.

The attack occurred at Twelfth and I streets southeast, when the policeman started to call his station to send the potrol wagon. Witnesses said the man struck the policeman and then grabbed his revolver.

The policeman was rescued by Howard Redlich, 725 Twelfth street southeast, a taxicab driver, who wrested the gun from the man and with the help of bystanders subdued him.

Pudge was taken to Providence Hospital, where eight stitches were taken in his scalp. His condition was serious. His assailant was taken to the Fourth Precinct Station, but later transferred to Gallinger Hospital.

AKRON'S WRECKAGE IS BELIEVED FOUND

By HARRIS B. HULL.

As Coast Guard and naval vessels reported yesterday that they had found two spots on the Atlantic under which the tangled mass of wreckage of the Akron might rest on the floor of the ocean, the first of the congressional investigating committees unexpectedly swung into action here, summoning into its presence Lieut. Comdr. Herbert V. Wiley, only surviving officer, and heard him give his report of more than 2,000 words concerning the greatest of American air disasters.

Searchers on the scene based their contention that they have found the grave of the once mighty queen of American skies on the appearance at the surface of oil in two places and the recovery of more wreckage than has heretofore been picked up.

The two oil spots were more than 20 miles apart off Barnegat Light (New Jersey) and their discovery tends to confirm the theory that following the first crash into the water, parts of the Akron free ballooned crazily away or drifted in the mighty storm for some time before settling to a watery grave with members of the crew trapped in the superstructure and fabric.

Pending the arrival of the submarine rescue ship Falcon, especially equipped for underseas work, officers and men standing by the points at sea were unable to do more than mark them for future salvage attempts.

Dickinson Nominated To Be Commerce Aid

(Associated Press.)

Dickinson, a former law partner of Senator McAdoo (Democrat), California), is a professor of law at the University of Pennsylvania. He was associated with McAdoo in Los Angeles from 1922 to 1925. Dickinson is the author of several works on law and economics. His home is in Philadelphia.

'Old Ironsides' Guarded From Bombing Peril

San Francisco, April 6 (A.P.).—A police guard was established about the U. S. S. Constitution by Chief of Police William J. Quinn today after he received information from "a reliable citizen" that a time bomb had been planted on the ancient frigate.

Quartet Cows Employes of Mechanics Savings Branch.

Warns Against Releasing Gas; Two Pursuing Autos Distanced.

Big city bandits made their semi-annual foray to Washington yesterday and departed with $8,000, scooped up in the armed hold-up of the Washington Mechanics Savings Bank branch at Eighth and G streets southeast.

Working with precision, four hold-up men cowed four bank employes and several customers with machine guns and sawed-off shotguns, making their getaway in a car with a fifth man at the wheel, parked at the side of the bank. The car was later found abandoned at Thirteenth and D streets northeast.

Bank employes were given no opportunity to press any of the 15 levers which would release a flood of tear gas into the building by the gunmen, whose first words on entering the bank were "Get to hell away from that gas!"

One of the bank's depositors was knocked down by the butt of a machine gun when he inadvertently was slow in obeying a command from one of the men. A woman fainted after she had been forced to stand against the wall.

The Mechanics Savings has suffered several times from holdups in the past two years, and the gas was installed some time ago in time to frustrate robbery of the Connecticut avenue branch in October.

The four bank clerks were forced

Court Rules L. & N. Must Accept Beer

Kentucky Appeals Bench Sustains Writ to Force Intrastate Shipment.

Frankfort, Ky., April 6 (A.P.).—The Kentucky Court of Appeals this afternoon sustained an injunction requiring the Louisville & Nashville Railroad to take an intrastate shipment of the new 3.2 per cent beer.

The court did not rule on whether 3.2 per cent beer is legal, remanding that issue for determination on its merits at a later date.

The injunction was obtained recently in Jefferson Circuit Court at Louisville by the Falls City Ice & Beverage Co. after the railroad refused to accept a shipment of the new brew to Henderson, Ky., on the grounds it was not sufficiently advised as to whether the beer was legal.

Accused Judge Starts Here to Prepare Defense

VACATIONS WITH PAY ASSURED EMPLOYES

A refund on legislative furloughs deducted from the salaries of Federal employes was ordered by Comptroller General McCarl in a ruling on the new economy act submitted to the Civil Service Commission late yesterday.

McCarl's ruling assured Government employes of vacations with pay and held that deductions of more than 18 days' furlough from employes' salaries must be paid in cash on April 15, providing they have not been absent. Eighteen days' pay was the maximum deductable at the time the old economy act was replaced by the new.

Legislative furloughs deducted from pay envelopes, but which employes have been unable to take, may be used up between now and July 1, McCarl ruled.

Under the new economy act, 15 days' leave with pay was authorized. This began to accrue on April 1, McCarl declared, thereby assuring employes a summer vacation. By December 31, he ruled, 11¼ days will have accrued.

Future deductions in salaries for administrative furloughs, McCarl said, must be made at the reduced scale of pay instead of the prevailing rate before the 15 per cent cut. Thus will employes placed on administrative furlough lose less pay.

Those who failed to take entitled leave before July 1, 1932, will be forced to lose it, the McCarl ruling stated. The new 15 days' annual leave, under his ruling, may be allowed to accumulate from year to year and be taken all at once.

ECONOMIC TALK HERE EXPANDED TO INCLUDE ALL

Anglo-American Parley Will Be Forerunner of Others.

FORMAL INVITATION EXTENDED M'DONALD

U. S. Will Gladly Hear Debt Plea of France; Terms of Bid Are Held Up.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

President Roosevelt yesterday formally invited British Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to a conversation at the White House for the purpose of bringing "realistic action" to the economic and disarmament discussions. The Anglo-American conversations, however, will be subsequently expanded to permit seriatim conferences between the President and France, Japan, Italy, Germany and Canada.

Italian Ambassador Augusto Rosso called at the State Department yesterday and was informed that the United States will gladly receive any delegation or any representations that Italy wished to make with regard to her debt to this country.

Similar information was conveyed to French Ambassador Paul Claudel during his final interview with the President.

Will Receive Delegation.

The President informed him that this country will gladly receive a French delegation, but the exact terms of the French invitation are being held up pending some clarification on the French intentions of paying the deferred debt installment due last December 15. However, preparations for sending the French delegation here are proceeding through the French Embassy, where Jules Henry will function as charge d'affaires until the arrival Tuesday of the new ambassador, Lefebvre de La Boulaye. The chief of the French delegation in all probability will be former Premier Edouard Herriot, and the two financial experts, Charles Rist, regent of the Banque de France, and Jean Parmentier, financial and economic authority in Paris.

Felt as Great Aid.

These important parleys between the President, Secretary of State Cordell Hull and the outstanding statesmen of the great powers will constitute the preconference that had been under discussion for some time. The President felt, and in this he was cordially seconded by his Secretary of State, that the world economic conference would be immeasureably aided by a preliminary series of discussions of this character. Accordingly, the President's invitation for Mr. MacDonald was handed the British Ambassador yesterday morning. Within a few hours the reply was received here and handed to the President. The interchange of amenities between the

Seven Persons Killed Before Elephant Idol

Villupuram, Madras, India, April 6 (A.P.).—Police said today that they had discovered evidence of the sacrifice of seven human lives before the clay idol of an elephont here.

The victims were a man and his wife and their five children. About the bodies were broken coconuts and other offerings. There was evidence that all the victims had consented to the sacrifice. Police believe the father killed the others, then committed suicide. Poverty was believed to be behind the tragedy.

Missing "Scottsboro" Girl Returns and Denies Attack

Ruby Bates Dramatically Appears Before Startled Alabama Court; Tells of Talking With Dr. Fosdick in New York and Birmingham Rector.

Decatur, Ala., April 6 (A.P.).—Ruby Bates, the missing witness of the Scottsboro case, came into a startled courtroom today and denied that she was ever assaulted by eight Negroes who are on trial for attacking her and another white girl.

"No, sir," said Ruby when Samuel S. Leibowitz, of New York, chief of defense counsel, asked: "Were you attacked aboard the freight train that afternoon?"

The girl—missing since February 27—appeared just as the defense prepared to rest its case in behalf of Heywood Patterson, 19-year-old Chattanooga Negro, and the first defendant to face retrial here.

She said she had been in New York, where she met Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Riverside Baptist Church. She told the minister her story, she testified, and he sent her to Birmingham to see Dr. Charles Clingman, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Advent.

And then she came here and told from the stand a dramatic story, sordid but gripping, of her adventures.

Ruby testified against the Negroes in their first trial at Scottsboro. She said then she was assaulted.

"I told it because I was excited," she said today.

Mrs. Victoria Price, who says she was

CAPITAL CELEBRATES BEER'S RETURN AFTER 16 YEARS OF DROUGHT

Permit Unit Swamped By Beer Applications

150 Temporary Licenses Granted as Board Toils Overtime; Many Requests Rejected Because Improperly Made Out.

While Washingtonians eagerly awaited the stroke of midnight which signalized the return of beer to the District, the Beverage Permits Board last night still was busy scrutinizing the requests for licenses to serve the beverage.

Swamped by applications from operators of restaurants, clubs, delicatessens, groceries and a variety of other business establishments, the board worked feverishly yesterday from early morning until after midnight. On the previous night it was in session until 2:30 a. m.

The office of Superintendent of Licenses Wade H. Coombs, as well as that of the tax assessor, which was assisting in the work, was likewise overrun with applicants from early morning until well into the night.

Despite this zealousness on the part of District officials, the progress of actually issuing temporary permits was of necessity slow. Five out of six applications have been improperly filled in and are returned.

At midnight approximately 150 temporary permits had been approved, the great majority allowing on-sale trade or beer over the counter.

It also was estimated that between 1,200 and 1,500 applications had been filed, and awaited action by the board.

Earlier in the day the District Commissioners modified a previous regulation prohibiting the sale of beer within a radius of 200 feet of churches or schools. This change was made after Bert L. Olmsted, proprietor of the Olmsted Grill on G street, near Fourteenth street, had complained that the regulation barred his restaurant because of its proximity to a church.

FORT WASHINGTON TO TRAIN JOBLESS

Work of Enlisting 500 Men in Reforestation Army Will Begin Today.

The 500 Washington men in the first division of the reforestation army will be trained at Fort Washington, Md., according to orders issued yesterday by the commander of this corps area.

Other nearby Army camps will also harbor members of the Army while they are trained for their work in the forests. Fort Meade, Md., will house 2,500 men from Philadelphia, while a draft of 300 from Baltimore will go to Fort Humphreys. The remainder of Baltimore's quota of 1,000 will be sent to Forts Howard and Holabird.

The Washington men who will go in the first draft have not yet been selected. Yesterday eligible men were chosen from the records of the Emergency Relief Council. Today workers for the council will go to these men's homes to ask them if they want to enlist. If they do, they will be sent to an Army recruiting station for a physical examination, and it is hoped that some of them will be ready tonight to go to camp.

Before the men are admitted to the camps, they will be vaccinated and inoculated against typhoid. In the camps they will be kept for two weeks, with regular exercises and instructions in forestry. At the end of this period they will be sent to work camps in the forests.

The jobless men must take an enlistment oath before they are admitted to the reforestation army. They swear to obey orders and to take care of and return Government property at the end of their six-month enlistment. Failure to obey orders will result in expulsion from the army, and cessation of the pay of $1 per day and board.

4 Children Burned To Death in Sleep

9 Other Persons Are Unhurt; Woman Is Injured as Flames Spread.

Mount Hope, W. Va., April 6 (A.P.).—Fire today burned to death four children as they slept in a mine town rooming house at Laurel Creek.

Neighbors said the blaze swept through the dwelling so quickly that before they could reach the house it was enveloped in flames.

Eight boarders and William Adkins, owner of the home, escaped injury. Adkin's wife, however, was burned seriously and three of their children and a grandchild were burned to death.

The children were Basil, 18; Jimmie, 12, and Francis, 7, Adkins' children, and Ruth Dunlaw, a grandchild.

Four New Earthquakes Reported in California

Pasadena, Calif., April 6 (A.P.).—Four new earth tremors, none of which did any damage, were reported today by the Carnegie Institution Seismological Laboratory.

FIVE-DAY WEEK BILL PASSED BY SENATE

Vote Is 53 to 30; House Expected to Modify Employment Plan.

(Associated Press.)

By a margin of 23 votes the Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House one of the most drastic legislative attempts ever made to overcome machine age unemployment problems—a bill limiting labor in manufacturing industries to five days a week and six hours a day.

The measure, sponsored by Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, and approved, 53 to 30, would take effect 30 days after enactment and remain in operation for two years.

Democratic leaders would not predict what President Roosevelt's attitude might be, but they did expect the measure to be modified in the house, if taken up there, probably to make the work week 36 hours.

Mr. Roosevelt was reported to be withholding any decision on the legislation pending further study of the form in which it passed the Senate.

The modification to 36 hours was proposed yesterday by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, but it was beaten, 48 to 40, with 35 Democrats, 12 Republicans and one Farmer-Labor voting against it.

Robinson had predicted the 36-hour week would be acceptable to the President.

The House can not take up the measure until next week, as it recessed yesterday until Monday. Speaker Rainey has said the House would not consider it unless it were made part of the President's emergency program, but Senator Black, who has conferred with Mr. Roosevelt on the subject, is confident that body will take it up.

Advocates of the bill argued it would put 6,000,000 jobless back into employment on a share-work basis and that it would be upheld by the Supreme Court despite the 5-to-4 decision of that tribunal holding the child labor law unconstitutional.

Opponents claimed it was "glaringly unconstitutional" and would

Vienna Weapon Search Bares Secret Arsenals

Vienna, April 6 (A.P.).—Searching the city for weapons which they believed to have been secreted by Socialists, police reported the discovery today in various public buildings of three machine guns, 133 rifles, 800 hand grenades and 12,000 rounds of machine gun ammunition.

According to Wiener Journal, 400 incendiary bombs and several flame throwers also were seized.

34 in School Overcome By Escaping Coal Gas

Reading, Pa., April 6 (A.P.).—Thirty pupils and four teachers were made ill by coal gas escaping from a defective flue in a Douglass Township school today.

Children fell from their seats and Mrs. Elizabeth Stephens fell down stairs while going for help. Physicians said the victims would recover without serious effects.

Flow Begins Soon Following Midnight Bell.

WHITE HOUSE SERVED FIRST

Press Club Is Next and Restaurants Fall in Line.

The clocks in Washington struck 12 last night, releasing a steady stream of amber, malt liquor—in multitudinous bottles and squat kegs—to begin the task of assuaging the city's 16-year-old thirst for real beer.

To waiting bumpers at the National Press Club, at hotels, restaurants and night clubs the first consignments were rushed out and the cry of "Prosit!" was echoing a few moments after midnight.

Soon other restaurants and places granted "On sale" permits received their shipments. Some establishments had sent their own trucks to expedite delivery. Dispensing of beer in bottles and by cases of bottles got under way quickly and private homes quickly fell in with the refrain of gurgling liquid.

Baltimore Brands Arrive.

By 2 o'clock trucks began to roll in from Baltimore with consignments of that city's lager. The foam from this was still being blown off early this morning.

Defying heavy intermittent showers, throngs were in the downtown section cheering the return of the alcoholic beverage. Automobile traffic was heavy and there was a din of horns mixed with the glad shouts of pedestrians and those who flocked about those places open and with permits to sell beer.

The first truckload of beer was delivered to the White House at 12:05 a. m., and was cheered by crowds as it proceeded through the streets from the Abner-Drury brewery.

"Happy Days," Is Refrain.

Two motorcycle policemen cleared a path and with news cameras' flashlights booming with a staccato drumming, the van moved along.

On the tail gate of the truck a marine stood post as the vehicle pulled up at the west entrance to the White House. On the side of the truck was a banner declaring:

Two gaily decorated bottles of beer—one light and one dark—and two cases of the same were the cargo

19 STATES AND D. C. GET LEGAL 3.2 BEER

More Than Half of Population of Country Is Affected by Change.

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—It was "new beer's eve" tonight for more than half the population of the United States.

In nineteen States, scattered across the map, and in the District of Columbia—with a combined population of about 70,000,000—the moment after midnight was the hour when 3.2 per cent brew could legally be transported and sold.

The States in which the sale of 3.2 brew is permitted are: Arizona, California, Colorado, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Washington and Wisconsin.

In seven other States beer can be sold after these dates: April 13, Louisiana; May 1, Vermont and North Carolina; May 18, Wyoming; June 9, West Virginia; June 30, Maine; July 1, North Dakota.

"Watch Night Parties."

The States in which no plans have been made or completed for the sale are: Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah and Virginia.

In some of these States beer bills had been defeated; in others they are pending.

Long before the hands of clocks turned toward midnight revelers in cities from New York to faraway Washington State began gathering for "beer balls" and "watch night parties."

On all sides, as the festivities began, the note of "no untoward celebrations," "no rowdyism," was sounded.

New York Waits Until 6.

In every one of the 19 States it was a day and night of feverish activity for many.

Brewery forces were working at top speed, and from all sections came reports that they would be unable to supply the immediate demand.

Licensing clerks here and in many other cities found long, serpentine lines at their windows when they came to work—and they grew in length throughout the day.

Trucks and freight cars were lined up in brewery yards, waiting the signal that would start them off with their liquid cargoes.

But even in the 19 States, there were spots where the foaming brew flowed in a trickle, if at all.

In New York City, where 400,000 barrels of beer were ready to roll out of breweries, Jacob Ruppert, head of the United States Brewers Association, said none would move until 6 a. m.

But plans for New York parties went on, with the expectation that beer imported from other localities would take care of immediate wants.

Smith Gets First Case.

California brewers joined in the 6 a. m. plan.

In Oregon the hour was set at 8 a. m.

Hotel men and club managers in Milwaukee, a city famous around the world for its brews, decided to keep the spigots closed until 7 a. m.

A Broadway dance hall offered free beer to all patrons.

A Broadway theater decided to serve near-beer between the first and second acts, and 3.2 brew between the second and third acts—"just to see if you can tell the difference."

The name of Alfred E. Smith, long a foe of prohibtion, was tacked onto the first two cases of beer loaded onto a truck at Ruppert's own brewery.

Philadelphia police had all days off canceled and men working day shifts were ordered back to 10 p. m. to handle the anticipated "holiday traffic."

And while attention was concentrated on the foamy malt beverage, wine growers in upper New York State set to work dealcoholizing thousands of gallons of age-mellowed wines so they could come within the 3.2 ruling.

Missouri Brewers Set to Start Spigot

St. Louis, April 6 (A.P.).—Missouri's three licensed breweries had 214,000 cases of newly legalized 3.2 per cent beer ready for distribution one minute after the stroke of midnight tonight.

In the city of St. Louis, known as one of the "beer capitals" of the United States, two breweries were in readiness to release 114,000 cases of 24 bottles each, while a St. Joseph, Mo., firm announced arrangements to expedite 100,000 cases from loading docks at the zero hour of 12:01 a. m.

At one of the largest breweries here three locomotives with eighteen cars attached to each, champed and puffed impatiently waiting to draw their amber cargo out of the city to every State in which the sale of beer was legal. In addition hundreds of trucks were gathered at the brewery loading docks waiting for their consignments.

Nevada Beer Tax Cannot Be Levied

City and County Fees Are Permitted but State's Hands Are Tied.

Reno, Nev., April 6 (A.P.).—Sale of beer in Nevada will add no revenue to the State treasury. Under a ruling of the Attorney General today the State is powerless to collect a license from dealers in the newly legalized brew.

Grey Mashburn, attorney general, filed an opinion in which he ruled that a licensing act passed in 1915 had been repealed by the Nevada prohibition law, which was enacted three years later.

Cities and counties, however, may impose a tax under a law enacted by the recent Legislature.

Women Repealists Say 40 States Wet; Victory in Year

Prohibition Reform Leaders Warn Contest Will Be Close in Five Commonwealths; Virginia Listed in Doubtful Column With Georgia.

Convinced that prohibition will be a matter of history within a year, leading women antidrys last night went home from their annual conclave to throw their strength behind the sweeping repeal movement.

Forty State chairmen of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform reported to the concluding session of the organization that 40 States will, in their opinion, ratify the repeal amendment within a year.

Thirty-five of the State leaders for prohibition reform were confident of early ratification by their respective Commonwealths while five expect approval of the repeal amendment after stiff battles.

Out of eight States not reported from, three—Nevada, Louisiana and South Dakota—were considered by women antidry chieftains to be safely in the wet lists, thus assuring ratification if the five not reported from or the five in doubt do not ratify.

The five States expected to be prohibition battlegrounds are Virginia, Georgia, New Hampshire, Nebraska and North Dakota. Offensives have already been begun against dry positions in these States, State chairmen declared.

The antidry State chairmen were enthusiastic about repeal approval possibilities in numerous once sternly dry commonwealths. Wet victories in State Legislatures, they cited, as omens of success for the antiprohibition forces.

Formerly arid States where repeal movements are gaining steady strength were said to be Alabama, Tennessee, Texas, South Carolina, Maine, Vermont, Ohio, Indiana and Oregon.

A resolution, regarded as significant of the women wets' singleness of purpose, was adopted declaring that the organization "shall not contribute to anyone running for political office nor accept from such candidate financial assistance in any form during their respective campaigns."

Enactment of laws for the promotion of temperance was advocated in another resolution adopted while other resolutions approved contained working principles of the organization.

BEER FLOWS IN WASHINGTON AFTER DROUGHT OF 16 YEARS

dropped off at the White House as news cameras again boomed and flashes flared.

The President and the White House in general were abed. The beer is to be consumed today by newspapermen who cover the White House.

Quickly getting under way again, the truck next sped to the National Press Club Building at Fourteenth and F streets northwest. A dozen cases and six halves were hustled up by brawny helpers to the top floor quarters of the club.

John Boyle, veteran newspaperman and oldest charter member of the newspaperman's club, lifted up the first stein of real beer. As the fluid gurgled into the bumper and the foam brimmed its edges, a ripple of long-repressed delight came from the crowded tap-room.

Night Club Made Happy.

The next destination of the beer-freighted, tune-laden van was a much-frequented night club. There a gay assemblage saw the cases and kegs lugged in and burst into a cheer. A member of Congress got the first glass.

By this time other trucks, those of the brewery and specially hired conveyances, had begun to spread beer over the city.

Scuffles occurred at a half-dozen wholesale beer sellers. Many had come to lug home a case for an immediate celebration and as the trucks pulled up they pushed and elbowed each other freely.

An E street sea food establishment had housed a waiting throng of beer-thirsty Washingtonians for nearly an hour when the welcome word, "The beer's here!" was passed around. Early in the morning kegs were being tapped and the musical splash of lager kept up against the dawn.

Beer Ball Fails to Pull.

Almost all places with "on sale" licenses remained open to purvey their supplies. At many establishments, however, the consignments were quickly exhausted.

Beer from Baltimore in heavy quantities is expected today. Milwaukee, peer of beer cities, is expected to be represented here by large supplies of its vaunted product some time early in the week. St. Louis and Pittsburgh beer is expected by tomorrow.

A steel case of beer from Pittsburgh, accompanied by a large container of pickled herring and a 4-pound pretzel, will arrive this morning via Pennsylvania air lines as a gift to President Roosevelt.

The "beer inaugural ball" at the Washington Auditorium attracted only a score of couples and they were flanked by more policemen, white-bosomed waiters, newspaper reporters and hat check girls than their own number.

District Attorney Rover's edict to police to ban beer service at the Auditorium ball evidently put a quietus on the affair. Promoters of the intended soiree shook their heads sadly as they walked around the prospective scene of a formal welcome to beer.

A five-case consignment of Baltimore beer arrived at the White House at 1 o'clock sharp. It was a present from the Gunther Brewing Co., of the neighboring city, and the cases were gaily decorated. The beer was rushed to the White House from Baltimore in a high-powered touring car, accompanied by officials of the brewing company.

Cummings Forbids Rum Entrapments

Attorney General Dashes Hopes of All Dry Offenders Held.

(Associated Press.)

On the eve of legal beer's return, Attorney General Cummings signalized the exit of entrapment of prohibition law violators by Federal dry agents.

Along with this, however, went the squelching of hope in some quarters that there would be a general exit from Federal prisons of convicts who would not have been sent there under the new beer-wine legislation effective at midnight.

Ending the hope of some Federal convicts that they might soon be released from prison, Cummings said it was virtually impossible to determine those who were convicted solely of beer violations and the alcoholic content of the beer they trafficked in.

Women Dry Chiefs To Plan Campaign

Heads of Larger Organizations Will Meet Here Next Wednesday.

(Associated Press.)

Representatives of the larger national organizations of women favorable to retention of the eighteenth amendment will assemble here next week for their tenth annual convention and map plans for their fight for prohibition.

The sessions, which will begin Wednesday and last through Friday, will be under the leadership of Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, general chairman of the Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement.

The speakers will include Senator Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, co-author of the eighteenth amendment; Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. William T. Bannerman, of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Morris Liebert, of the International Order of King's Daughters; Mrs. William E. Gell, former president of the Federation of Women Boards of Foreign Missions; Mrs. Ella Boole, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and Mrs. Jessie Nicholson, president National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League; Mrs. William L. Darby, National Council of Federated Church Women; Mrs. William Hanson, of the Supporters of the Eighteenth Amendment, and Mrs. William Tilton, president of the Society for Education Against Alcohol.

Roosevelt Considers Philippine Situation

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt gave attention to the Philippine Islands yesterday in two significant conferences, but there was every indication last night that he is putting this question aside during the domestic emergency.

It was believed the two White House conferences related to the agitation for modification of the independence legislation enacted by the last session of Congress. It appears the President is going to stand on that bill, at least for the present.

Akron Memorial Rites At Cathedral Sunday

Secretary of the Navy Swanson will attend.

Fraud Case Facts Coming to Capital

Cambridge, Mass., April 6. (A.P.).—District Attorney Warren L. Bishop, of Middlesex County, tonight left for Washington to confer with President Roosevelt and two Cabinet members concerning the cases of four men under indictment in the Durkee investment scheme investigation.

The scheme allegedly involved the sale of stock in a plan to recover $300,000,000 from the United States Government. The prosecution alleged persons operating the scheme represented that $64,000,000 had been deposited by Charles Durkee, once Governor of Utah, as a guarantee for the completion of a transcontinental railroad, and that they planned to recover this sum with interest.

Bishop said he had appointments with Secretary of the Treasury Woodin and Attorney General Cummings and that he expected to arrange a meeting with the President on arrival. Bishop said it was his purpose to clinch the Government's case through the examination of records.

University of Manitoba Accountant Sentenced

Winnipeg, Man., April 6 (A.P.).—Alexander Ramsay Ross, former accountant for the University of Manitoba, was sentenced to three years in Stony Mountain Penitentiary today in Manitoba Police Court.

He pleaded guilty to the theft of $14,279 of university funds between October, 1931, and March of this year.

Through a long cross-examination in which, at times, she was obviously flustered and hesitated on some questions, she reiterated that she was not attacked.

"I can't remember," she replied to several questions propounded by Attorney General Thomas E. Knight, jr., particularly as to the surname of a woman for whom she said she worked while in New York. "Marguerite is all I remember," she said.

WOODRUFF TO TAKE GRANT'S PARK POST

To Assume Office Not Later Than June 30 After Duty at Fort Leavenworth.

Col. James A. Woodruff, U. S. Engineers, will succeed Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d as director of the office of Public Buildings and Public Parks, it was revealed in Army orders published yesterday.

Col. Grant will go to the Army War College for a course of instruction starting in the middle of the summer. Col. Woodruff will come here "not later than June 30, 1933," and will familiarize himself with his work in the office under Col. Grant's supervision before taking over the administration of the parks system. At present Col. Woodruff is completing a tour of duty at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., as assistant commandant of the Command and General Staff School there.

When Col. Grant leaves his post he will have completed a seven years' assignment. Recognized as one of the Army's foremost military engineers, Col. Grant was retained here far beyond the usual four-year tour of duty so that the Government might take advantage of his exceptional training in the construction of the Arlington Memorial Bridge and other features of the local beautification program.

A native of Montana, Col. Woodruff was graduated from the Military Academy at West Point in 1899. He was commissioned to the Corps of Engineers and served in New York City, at West Point and in the Philippines.

He later went to Vicksburg, Miss., where he served on duty in connection with the engineering work in the Mississippi River. In 1912 he came here as assistant to the Chief of Engineers and also completed a course of study at the Army War College. He went abroad during the war, later serving at Engineer posts throughout the country and in Panama. In August, 1928, he returned to the Command and General Staff School as assistant commandant and director, upon which duty he remains at present.

Col. Woodruff has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for "organizing and commanding the Tenth Forestry Engineers with marked ability."

Koyama to Stay In Tokyo Cabinet

Emperor Orders Justice Minister to Remain When He Resigns.

Tokyo (Friday), April 7 (A.P.).—Matsukichi Koyama, minister of justice, tendered his resignation today, but when Premier Saito submitted it to the throne the emperor pronounced it unnecessary and commanded the cabinet minister to remain in office.

Ostensibly in offering to resign Mr Koyama accepted responsibility for recently discovered instances of Communist belief among judicial officials.

The action of the emperor caused him to withdraw his resignation and it was believed this averted any possibility of a cabinet crisis. Political experts for some of the Japanese newspapers had predicted that the withdrawal of the finance minister might lead to the early resignation of the entire cabinet.

Conscience-Smitten Man Wanted Here Gives Up

Special to The Washington Post.

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 6.—Ralph Kilgour, 38, of 1740 D street southeast, Washington, D. C., was arraigned today before Magistrate Frederick Hughes in Bridge Plaza Court on a charge of being a fugitive from justice. He was held without bail for action of the Washington authorities.

According to police here, he surrendered to them last night and explained that his conscience bothered him. The police communicated with Washington and were informed the man was wanted there on a charge of grand larceny.

Swanson Pleased At Building Plans

Secretary Says Navy Will Be Glad to Secure $230,000,000.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Swanson advised members of the House Naval Committee yesterday that the department would be "very glad" to have $230,000,000 appropriated for ship construction. Such a building program has been advocated by Representative Vinson, chairman of the committee. The Secretary discussed the proposed authorization with the committee at the Navy Department.

The committee submitted a general plan that the money be used to construct 20 destroyers, 4 submarines, 4 6-inch gun cruisers and two aircraft carriers.

The Secretary withheld judgment, however, on details of the plan, pending a consultation with the naval board which determines ship construction policy.

BEER APPLICATIONS SWAMP OFFICIALS

Under the modification any restaurant operating at the time of the passage of the regulation is permitted to obtain a license to sell beer if closer than 200 feet to a church. The regulation holds, however, as to public, private and parochial schools.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, stated that District officials will not tolerate any evasions of the District beer act today and that every seller of beer must have a proper municipal license.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride turned over almost his entire staff to aid his principal assistant, Vernon E. West, and other members of the Beverage Permits Board.

Mr. Bride last night pointed out that the fact that an application has been rejected tonight should not be taken as any reflection on the applicant. In all probability it means that the application blank was not properly filled out. A large majority of the applications were found to give incomplete information or were improperly executed.

PEACE PLAN BEATEN BY FRENCH CHAMBER

Daladier's Warning of Peril of War in Pact Wins Confidence Vote.

Paris, April 6 (A.P.).—The Chamber of Deputies gave Premier Daladier's government a smashing vote of confidence, 430 to 107, today, indorsing his rejection of a four-power directorate in Europe as containing possibilities for war.

The premier insists that any collaboration by the powers must be within the framework of the League of Nations.

In discussing the European peace plan proposed by Premier Mussolini, the premier placed on the same level as the league covenant the Kellogg-Briand pact and the Locarno agreement guaranteeing Franco-German frontiers.

War Peril in Peace Guise.

The plan advocated by Premier Mussolini, he told the Chamber, brings the danger of war in the guise of peace. He appeared to object particularly to Signor Mussolini's proposals for revising certain European boundaries established by the post-war treaties.

"It is essential to make a new armaments race impossible," he said, "but does not this plan risk leading us into war under the flag of peace?

"The French government can not adhere to a directorate which would impose its will upon the rest of the world."

As for France, he said, emphasizing similar statements issued during the past few days, the League of Nations covenant and its supplementary pacts are sufficient guarantees of peace.

Applauds Davis' Return.

He had nothing but praise for the sincerity of Premier Mussolini and Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, whose government has proposed certain modifications of the Mussolini plan, but he insisted the four big powers of Europe can cooperate to their mutual advantage under existing agreements.

The British plan for world disarmament as proposed recently at Geneva by Mr. MacDonald is an acceptable basis for discussion, the premier said.

He expressed his pleasure at the return of Norman H. Davis as the representative of President Roosevelt, and declared that any proposals Mr. Davis would make would be examined attentively.

Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour outlined the government's disarmament policy at today's session, calling for progressive reduction of armaments on condition that no other nation be permitted to rearm, and for permanent control and suppression of private manufacture and trade in arms.

23 1-3 Per Cent Cut In U. S. Pay Alleged

(Associated Press.)

A protest that many Federal employes face salary reductions as high as 23 1-3 per cent in some cases for April, May and June, was sent to Comptroller General McCarl yesterday by Thomas F. Dolan, of Boston, president of the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks.

Dolan, in a telegram to McCarl, said the situation was "obviously very unjust and unintentional" and resulted from the new economy legislation which substituted direct pay cuts for the furlough system.

He said many workers already had been subjected to the pay reductions for from eighteen to fourteen furlough days covering April, May and June.

"Regardless of whether they actually had the time off for these deductions," Dolan wired, "the effect will be that, in conjunction with the prevailing 15 per cent wage reduction, they are to be penalized to the extent of 23 1-3 per cent for the months of April, May and June. This is obviously very unjust and unintentional. Your early and favorable ruling in this regard is anxiously awaited."

Harriman Indicted For False Entries

$1,661,170 Is Involved in Charges; Banker Said to Be Gravely Ill.

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—Joseph W. Harriman was indicted by a Federal grand jury today on charges of making 14 false entries involving $1,661,170, in the accounts of the Harriman National Bank & Trust Co., which he founded in 1912.

United States Attorney George Z. Medalie announced he would expedite the trial to the utmost and sought to have the 67-year-old banker arraigned tomorrow. Harriman is said to be suffering from coronary thrombosis, a grave heart ailment, however, and it was not certain whether the arraignment would be held tomorrow.

Emil Schlesinger, counsel for a depositors' protective committee, today asserted that the New York Clearing House Association had been aware of the bank's condition since last July and had committed itself to guarantee the depositors in full.

RATE CUT EXTENSION ASKED BY SOUTHERN

(Associated Press.)

The Southern Railway yesterday sought permission to extend its 1½ cent per mile passenger fare experiment.

An application was filed seeking the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission to reduce fares on one day's notice on lines west of Bristol and Chattanooga in Tennessee, and Birmingham and Mobile in Alabama, including the Chattanooga-Atlanta line. Along with it was a group of supplemental applications seeking a six-month extension of similar experiments being made in North Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee. They were taken under consideration by the commission immediately.

The company also asked permission to put into effect in some sections of its line round-trip excursion rates of one and one-ninth fare. These tickets would be sold on the basis of the present fare of 3.6 cents per mile.

Last month the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co., which competes in many sections of the South with the Southern Railway, obtained permission to put into effect a 2-cent-per-mile coach fare and to do away with Pullman surcharges.

Both roads have asked the commission to modify its order requiring the 3.6-cent fare in Illinois so they may apply the reduced rates there.

The Southern's experiment does not affect Pullman or parlor-car fares in any way. These will remain at 3.6 cents per mile together with the 50 per cent surcharge on Pullman tickets.

The plan is aimed entirely at bus transportation. The tickets will be good only on day coaches. Children between the ages of 5 and 12 years will be carried at the rate of ½ cent per mile. Those under 5 years will be carried free and the usual amount of baggage will be allowed.

Louisiana Quits 150 State Dry Cases

Section Must Wait Until Thursday for Beer, but Celebrates.

New Orleans, April 6 (A.P.).—Although Louisiana will have to wait until April 13 to join other States in sale and consumption of legal beer, local authorities today contributed to the national modification celebration by quashing approximately 150 State prohibition violation cases in which affidavits antedated State repeal action.

District Attorney Eugene Stanley moved for the quashes and judges of the criminal district courts immediately authorized destruction of evidence in the cases, many based on home brew manufacture and sale.

A special Legislature last month repealed the State prohibition law to permit beer and wine sales, but the repeal does not become effective until April 13.

Beer Return Boosts Heavy Horse Market

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 6 (A.P.). The activity of brewers in the States where the sale of beer becomes legal tomorrow has created a demand for heavy draft horses in the central West Virginia territory.

Horse buyers have been in this section during the last week looking over available stock. One is reported to have sold at $160. This is much higher than the market has been in the last year. Brewers say horses are cheaper on short hauls than motor equipment.

ESTRANGED HUSBAND FINDS FAMILY SLAIN

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 6 (A.P.).—A husband returning to his home with high hopes of a reconciliation today found the wife he left two days ago and their two children slain and the man whom he blamed for the estrangement unconscious in a gas-filled kitchen.

The wife, Mrs. Mattie Sue Bengert, 28, was strangled in her bed, and a son, Carl L. Bengert, jr., 8, was similarly slain and the body placed in an automobile in the yard. The other child, 3-month-old Thalbert Allen, was dead in the kitchen oven, with all gas jets turned on.

The man, Henry B. Bedford, 43, principal of Turner Public School here, lay across two chairs in the kitchen, unconscious from the gas fumes.

When he regained consciousness tonight, Bedford was taken to detention hospital and handcuffed to a cot. Police postponed questioning him, but he told others that he believed he had been drugged; that some one else must have committed the slayings and that the slayer must have placed him on the chairs before the gas stove to incriminate him.

Police did not comment on that theory. Previously they had said they found nothing to contradict the theory of Bengert that his wife and children had been slain by Bedford, who then attempted to kill himself.

Bengert, a cabinetmaker, told police of difficulties which had developed and increased after Bedford went to board in his home two years ago. Bedford was the owner of the house, he said, and moved in as a boarder with his tenants after he was divorced.

The husband said that he had accused Bedford of making love to Mrs. Bengert and that on Tuesday there was a bitter quarrel which ended with Bedford ordering him out of the house. Mrs. Bengert, he said, refused to move out with him, accusing him of being "foolishly jealous." Bengert then left and remained with relatives until today.

This morning, Bengert said, he received a message from his wife asking him to return at 1:30 p. m. He kept the appointment, only to find his family dead.

QUARTET FACE JURY AT MARLBORO TODAY

Coroner's Panel to Pass on Fate of Suspects in Martin Murder.

A coroner's jury meeting in Upper Marlboro, Md., at 4 p. m. today will decide whether or not murder charges will be placed against three men and a woman now held in connection with the brutal slaying of Charles W. Martin, 32-year-old railroad employe, of Tuxedo, Md.

While three suspects, Oscar Brady, 28, of Bright Seat, Md.; Henry Fleming, a farmer, of Tuxedo, and Mrs. Mary Dawson, 32, also of Tuxedo, remained in the Hyattsville, Md., jail on open charges, County Policemen W. E. Clifton and Ralph Brown early yesterday arrested a third man said to have been implicated by Brady. He is Edward Smith, 19, an employe of Providence Hospital. He was taken from his home at 511 Sixth street southeast.

Although Brady is alleged to have confessed his part in the slaying, police admitted they were not certain as to roles the others played. All, however, will face the coroner's jury today.

Prince Georges County authorities indicated a swift trial would be given Brady on the basis of his alleged confession. His apprehension and subsequent admissions are credited to Officer Clifton.

Had it not been for Clifton's keen observation, the crime might have gone unsolved, police said. In talking to Brady shortly after Martin's body was found in his mired automobile in Fairmont Heights, Clifton noticed a spot of blood on his ear, it is said.

Famous "Post March" Featured in Parade

While passing The Washington Post Building yesterday nearly all the bands in the parade played "The Washington Post March," composed by John Philip Sousa in the early days of the century. Those which honored The Post were the Third Cavalry Mounted Band, the Marine Band, the Navy Band, the 121st Engineers, the band of the Twenty-ninth Division, the Washington Gas Light Co. Band and the District Fire Department Band.

Other music for the parade was furnished by the Army Band, which alone played the "Franklin D. Roosevelt March," by Secretary Woodin, as it passed the reviewing stand. Orders were issued that only the first band in the line should play the composition dedicated to and named for the President.

JUDD COUNSEL ASKS NEW TRIAL FOR RUTH

Second Motion Filed With Judge Who Pronounced Death Sentence.

Phoenix, Ariz., April 6 (A.P.).—Her plea for another reprieve from the gallows summarily rejected by the Arizona Board of Pardons and Paroles, counsel for Winnie Ruth Judd filed a second motion tonight for a new trial.

The action filed with the clerk of Superior Judge Howard C. Speakman's court, asked that the judgment and sentence of death and a previous order denying a new trial in the "trunk murder" case be set aside.

As presented by O. V. Willson, of Mrs. Judd's counsel, the document was placed on Judge Speakman's regular law and motion calendar for next Monday.

Four affidavits filed with the motion attempted corroboration of charges of Mrs. Judd's attorneys that the jury which found her guilty of murder of Agnes Anne Leroi, and named death on the gallows as the penalty, was involved in "a deal" to "make her talk" and disclose complicity of other persons, who, it is alleged, some members of the jury felt were involved.

Judge Speakman presided over Mrs. Judd's trial and pronounced the death sentence. He recently dismissed a second murder information against Mrs. Judd, charging slaying of Miss Hedwig Samuelson.

Accident Kills Brewer After Five Days' Work

Newark, N. J., April 6 (A.P.).—The first brewery fatality in New Jersey occurred today when Charles Heller, 42, was killed at the Kreuger Brewery.

Employed only five days in the brewery's "washing room," Heller's task was to drive bungs into freshly cleaned barrels as they reached him on an endless belt. He dropped his hammer and, in trying to recover it, was struck on the head by one of the barrels.

STATES TO RECRUIT CONSERVATION MEN

(Associated Press.)

Criticism and protests from members of Congress and others contributed to a decision last night to place the task of selecting members of the conservation corps in the hands of State employment officials.

Robert Fechner, director of the Roosevelt conservation project, said the Labor Department will depend on the State agencies to recruit men after selection of the first contingent of 25,000 who will begin entering conditioning army camps today. Each State will be asked ultimately to supply a quota in proportion of its population.

"The Labor Department will consult with the State official having the administration of unemployment relief in the respective States, and will arrange for the selection of men from the lists of applicants for work and for other assistance, which already exist in every State of the Union," Fechner said in a statement.

In selecting the first contingent numerous agencies, including city relief organizations, were authorized to contribute quotas. Four organizations in Baltimore were invited to enlist men. Many members of Congress took exception to this system on grounds that State organizations were best fitted to decide which men should go.

Fechner announced the enrollment would continue with the selection of unmarried men, from 18 to 25 years old, who are willing to allot from $22 to $25 of their $30 monthly wage to dependent relatives.

Insanity Pleaded In Cult Sacrifice

Alienists to Examine Man Accused of Slaying His Mother.

Inez, Ky., April 6 (A.P.).—A weird ceremony among Kentucky mountaineers, in which an aged woman was allegedly offered up as a human sacrifice, was claimed by the defense at the start of a murder and conspiracy trial here today to have been due to the insanity of John H. Mills, 33, leader of the small cult and son of the slain woman.

Mrs. Lucinda Mills, 67, the victim, known as "Aunt Lucindy" to most of the population of this isolated hill county, was the mother or mother-in-law of eight of the defendants and the grandmother of the ninth.

When the trial was called counsel for Mills obtained an agreement from Commonwealth Attorney J. B. Clark that two mental specialists be brought here from Lexington to examine him. The trial was postponed until tomorrow to permit that being done.

Cleveland Banker Held To Be Probable Suicide

Cleveland, April 6 (A.P.).—Ernest A. Frame, former vice president of the closed Standard Trust Bank, "probably committed suicide due to his connection with the bank," Coroner A. J. Pearse said in his verdict today. He added, however, that it could not be definitely determined whether it was a case of suicide or accidental death.

Frame, a former resident of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, was found dead of carbon monoxide gas in his garage at the rear of his home, March 31. Police said they believed death was accidental.

Vessel Saves Man Adrift in Atlantic

Floridian in Disabled Boat Rescued 60 Miles Out From Fort Pierce.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., April 6 (A.P.).—Feeble crise for help, heard by officers on the bridge of the steamship Commercial Pioneer early today, resulted in the rescue of Richard Thompson, Stuart, Fla., from his disabled motorboat. The rescue was effected in the Atlantic about 60 miles due east of Fort Pierce, the master of the Commercial Pioneer radioed the Coast Guard base here.

The calls for assistance were heard shortly after 4 a. m., as the vessel proceeded up the coast toward Philadelphia. It was 5:30 a. m. before Thompson's craft was located by the ship's searchlight and he was taken aboard.

The Commercial Pioneer's message said Thompson would be taken to Philadelphia. His boat was left adrift, the Coast Guard was informed. The message did not say how long Thompson had been adrift.

PRESIDENT REVIEWS ARMY DAY PARADE

Capital's Military Pageant Is One of Similar Displays All Over Nation.

Under lowering skies, representatives of the country's armed forces marched yesterday, the sixteenth anniversary of our entry into the World War, in the annual Army Day parade.

From the Peace Monument the detachments tramped along Pennsylvania avenue, down Fifteenth street, and swung into Constitution avenue to parade before President Roosevelt in the reviewing stand at Sixteenth street. Washington's pageant was one of numerous similar celebrations throughout the country, in which the Army reminded the Nation of its readiness.

In the line which swung along Constitution avenue, 82 military and patriotic units were represented. Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commander of the Third Corps Area, was marshal of the parade. Gen. Malone was also the chief speaker last night at a dinner of the Military Order of the World War at the Mayflower. The order sponsored yesterday's celebration.

Only one casualty was reported from the parade. Miss Ann Morrison, 18, of 1425 Buchanan street northwest, was kicked by an Army horse while standing in the crowd watching the President depart after the parade. She was treated at Emergency Hospital for bruises of the right thigh and allowed to go to her home.

With the President in the reviewing stand were Mrs. Roosevelt, Col. Marvin H. McIntyre, secretary to the President; Secretary of War George H. Dern, Maj. Gen. John Ross Delafield, president of the military order; Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the Army; Maj. Gen. Ben Fuller, commandant of the Marine Corps, and Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of Naval Operations. Josephus Daniels, newly-appointed Ambassador to Mexico, was also present as a special guest of the President.

In addition to representatives of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, delegates from various patriotic organizations were also in the parade. Members of the Army and Navy Legion, holders of the Medal of Honor, or the Distinguished Service Cross were likewise included in the line of march.

CAR OF BANK BANDITS YIELDS FINGERPRINTS

Immediately on securing a preliminary report of the robbery, police flashed descriptions to the principal cities of the East. The escape was made in a car bearing New Jersey license plates.

The bandits' conversation was limited to orders to the clerks and customers both of which were enjoined to "don't move" and "get the hell away from that gas."

Pursued by Taxi.

As the men ran out of the bank to their car, which was waiting, motor running, with a driver, they were seen by several persons, including Hugh McDonald, a taxi cab driver; Harry Liverette, of 1910 Naylor road, and Bernard Tomlinson, a street car motorman.

McDonald followed their car in his cab, he told police, chasing them at a 50 to 60-mile-an-hour pace to Bladensburg road and Mount Olivet road, where they outdistanced him.

Charles V. Dessez, of 1823 Massachusetts avenue southeast, entered the bank to make a deposit during the robbery. He was ordered at gun point to the rear of the structure.

Insurance Covers Loss.

As soon as the quartet left the bank to rejoin their confederate he ran to the window and saw them entering the car. He ran out, jumped into his car with Liverette and gave chase, but lost them in traffic.

Abraham Levy, of 510 Eighth street southeast, was making a deposit when the men came to the bank. One of them struck him with the butt of a machine gun, knocking him down. When they ran out, he ran to the street shouting "Police! Police!"

The employes in the bank were John A. Hummer, teller; J. C. Williams, teller; D. L. Miller, bookkeeper, and B. M. Grant, assistant cashier. Frank Weaver, teller, was at lunch.

A. S. Offutt, vice president, said the loss was covered by insurance.

Connection Theory Scouted.

Police disclaimed the idea that the holdup men were the same as those who secured $14,000 in January of last year at the bank's East Capitol street branch, and $9,000 in June at the Georgia avenue branch.

Authorities secured indentification of four men alleged to have been in these robberies. The men, identified by employes, pled guilty to robbery charges in New York City in January, for which they are serving sentences.

However, police said there was a similarity between the four who entered the bank yesterday and the men who were driven out of the Connecticut avenue branch last October by tear gas released by a teller.

Bank officials could not give the exact amount of the money secured in yesterday's robbery, but said that it was "almost" $8,000.

Fingerprints Are Found.

Miss Helen Hayre fainted when the men ordered her to the back of the room. She was revived, but later collapsed again and was removed to Casualty Hospital for treatment. She lives at 320 Ninth street southeast.

Other customers in the bank were Mr. and Mrs. William O'Brien, of 1351 Maryland avenue northeast.

Detectives, headed by Lieut. John Fowler, brought pictures of known bank robbers to the clerks to identify. Two men resembled pictures police had, it was said.

Fingerprints were found on one counter of the bank and on the handles of the doors of the car.

About two months ago Detective Sergts. F. O. Brass and Floyd A. Truscott completed a survey of all the banks in the city, making recommendations for the frustration of holdup gangs.

19 FISHERMEN LOST AS 8 BOATS FOUNDER

Sudden Storm Hits Salmon Fleet, Scattering 90 Craft Over Sea.

Hoquiam, Wash., April 6 (A.P.).—Fishermen estimated today that 19 men drowned and eight boats were sunk in a spring squall that struck the salmon fleet of more than 100 craft at the Grays Harbor Bar yesterday.

The gale scattered boats in many directions, every skipper making for what he considered the safest haven. Approximately 80 made port safely and some 40 were still out at sea today, many believed helpless because of lack of fuel.

The Coast Guard cutters Red Wing and Snohomish, and two life-saving boats from the Westport Coast Guard Patrol cruised the scene seeking survivors and bodies, and thousands of spectators lined the beaches, searching the wreckage and scanning the sea.

Hope of Coast Guardsmen was that some fishermen now missing would be found on craft tossing helplessly at sea.

Oscar A. Hauro, picked up by the Westport life-saving crew, saw his son, Emil, go down after breakers had repelled fifteen attempts of the rescuers to reach the boy.

The same crew rescued William Lappalainen just as his small boat was about to be dashed on the south spit.

Reports still unconfirmed were that the big troller Ellen, of Westport, carrying Wayne Wade, Victor Bjornson and D. L. Beatty, had foundered.

Two Buildings Left In Honduran Port

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, April 6 (A.P.).—A warehouse and a bank are all that is left of the business section of Tela, the north coast fruit port, after yesterday's $1,000,000 fire.

Strong wind and a shortage of water made it impossible to control the flames. The two-story hotel Balderach went first, and in twenty minutes the whole business section of five blocks was burning like paper.

There have been several arrests and an investigation is in progress.

Roosevelt Estate To Get More Trees

Syracuse, N. Y., April 6 (A.P.).—President Roosevelt's private reforestation enterprise on his estate at Hyde Park will advance this summer with the planting of 36,000 trees, it was announced today by the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse University.

The work will begin next Monday. The plan calls for the planting of trees of fifteen different species.

Reforestation and management of the forest lands at Hyde Park was initiated under a cooperative arrangement between President (then governor) Roosevelt and the college in 1929, whereby the college furnishes the trees and supervises the work while Mr. Roosevelt provides the land and labor.

Window Is Destroyed By Battling Pheasant

It seems he became annoyed by his image as reflected in a window pane at the home of Michael Novak. The family was at breakfast. With a drumming roar, the big pheasant took off, "crashed" his enemy, the window-pane bird, showered glass into the Novak oatmeal and flew out before the family recovered.

Mormons Elevate J. Reuben Clark

Former Envoy Is Added to First Presidency at 103d Meeting.

Salt Lake City, April 6 (A.P.).—J. Reuben Clark, former United States Ambassador to Mexico, was added to the first presidency of the Latter Day Saints Church at its 103d annual conference in the Mormon Tabernacle here today. His appointment, announced by President Heber J. Grant, whose second counselor he becomes, was sustained by the uplifted hands of upwards of 6,000 members of the church.

Mr. Clark succeeds the late Charles W. Nibley. With President Grant and the first counselor, Anthony W. Ivins, he constitutes the highest authority in the church.

Members of the church were exhorted by President Grant and by former United States Senator Reed Smoot, one of the council of twelve apostles, to a stricter observance of the tenets of their creed.

As finally passed, after many exemptions were added, the measure would bar from interstate commerce under penalty of $200 fine or three months in prison, or both, any article "produced or manufactured in any mine, quarry, mill, cannery, workshop, factory or manufacturing establishment situated in the United States, in which any person was employed to work more than five days in any week or more than six hours in any day."

The Secretary of Labor would be given discretionary power to exempt any industries where "special conditions" made it impossible to adopt the drastically reduced work week.

It would not affect farms or railroads.

JOBLESS PARADERS SCATTERED BY GAS

Illinois Police Use Strong-Arm Methods; 1,000 Are Routed in Disorder.

Ottawa, Ill., April 6 (A.P.).—Tear gas bombs and strong-arm action by State and county policemen sent unemployment protesters against relief systems, en route to the State Capital at Springfield, into rout on all fronts today.

More than 1,100 men, women and children—coughing and choking from the gas, left in disorder from a tourist park near Ottawa, where they had camped all night in ankle-deep mud after a procession 100 miles from Chicago.

Highway policemen and deputy sheriffs escorted them in small groups to their homes after helping push their cars out of the mud. The 24 hours they had spent in traveling by automobile and motor truck through rain and cold went for naught.

Thirty-six of them were under arrest in the county jail, including Karl Lockner, chairman of the Unemployed Council and leader of the motorcade.

Another delegation was halted by deputies at Pana, Ill., southeast of the capital, and turned back to their homes in southern Illinois. They offered no resistance, but county authorities made preparations to prevent their return. Their number was estimated at 600. Other parties were halted at various places, it was reported.

Lockner had predicted 10,000 would join the parade, although the Springfield police had announced that none would be allowed to enter the city, even if force had to be used.

Nitti Is Liberated At Shooting Trial

Former Capone 'Enforcer' Freed of Assault on Detective.

Chicago, April 6 (A.P.).—Frank Nitti, former "enforcer" for Al Capone, was freed today of a charge of assault to kill in the wounding of Police Detective Harry Lang. Prosecutors immediately moved ahead with plans to prosecute Lang for perjury, charging he changed testimony between the time he appeared before the grand jury and the opening of Nitti's trial.

Nitti, dark and dapper, smiled broadly and swaggered out of the courtroom after Judge Rudolph F. Desort directed the jury to find him not guilty. He spent weeks in a hospital recovering from three bullet wounds after a raid on an office last December. Lang was wounded while searching the place and at the time said Nitti shot him.

Nitti countered with an allegation that the raiding squad deliberately attempted to murder him as he stood with hands extended above his head. Another officer testified that Nitti was unarmed.

CHARTER ASSURED YOUNG DEMOCRATS

Assurance that it would be received into the fold of the Young Democrats Clubs of America was given the faction of the local organization which Wednesday bolted and set up its own organization because the club had refused to ratify the constitution of the national organization.

This assurance was received by Marvin Cox, head of the splitting group, from Tyre Taylor, of Raleigh, N. C., national president of the Young Democrats, who declared he would ask the national committee of the club for a charter.

Letter Added to Rift.

The split in the Young Democrats ranks was brought to a head by a letter written by Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, daughter of Senator Wheeler, to allied groups throughout the country, saying that the group here was opposed to the constitution which would place the Young Democrats under the guidance of Postmaster General Farley, chairman of the national Democratic committee.

In their number were: Radford Ross, son of Nellie Tayloe Ross, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee; Lyda Mae Francis, secretary to Mrs. Ross; Louise Falligant Gelleher, attorney, protege of Ruth Bryan Owen; Winfield Scott Magill, jr., Francis B. Taylor, jr., Ralph Lawrence, Homer Tatum and John Goodloe.

Attack Farley Aim.

Miss Wheeler said she was fighting to keep the youth movement from being dominated by older party heads. She said Farley wanted the Young Democrats to abandon conventions of their own, to submit their slate of officers and delegates to the approval of national committeemen.

"So the whole thing would eventually turn over to his control," she said, "he put a time limit of April 1 on ratification of the constitution containing these provisions, trying to rush the thing through, instead of waiting until our convention in June."

Cox, president of the new organization, "The Young Democratic Clubs of America, District of Columbia Division," said:

"It is self-evident that it is the duty of every young Democrat to support the administration first, last and all the time.

Mrs. Frazier Tells Reasons for Killing

Blames Death of Mate's Secretary on Insanity; Describes Liaison.

Jacksonville, Fla., April 6 (A.P.).—In tones scarcely audible, Mrs. C. R. Frazier, wife of a former United States narcotic chief here, today told a Federal court jury trying her for murder that she deliberately shot and killed Miss Manona Murrell, her husband's secretary and alleged sweetheart, during a state of temporary insanity.

Having related at length an alleged love affair that grew between her husband and his 26-year-old secretary, culminating in alleged intimacies between them and the fatal shooting of the blonde divorcee, Mrs. Frazier said she shot the woman to prevent the breaking up of her home and was carried from the witness stand in a state of near-collapse.

The defendant said Miss Murrell had told her of the alleged intimacies with her husband and that Frazier had demanded a divorce so that he might marry the girl.

Police Are on Trial In Show Raid Suit

Los Angeles, April 6 (A.P.).—A $226,000 damage suit against Capt. Deighton McDonald Jones and his police "purity squad" by members of a raided stage show cast went to trial today.

The suit grew out of two raids led by Jones on performances of the ancient Greek comedy, "Lysistrata," at the Carthay Circle Theater in January, 1932. Jones contended the play was "indecent."

Twenty-three actresses and actors, including Lysistrata herself—Nance O'Neil, well-known New York stage actress—were arrested in the raids. Twenty-one players are suing, charging false arrest and malicious prosecution. Of those arrested, some were acquitted and charges against the others were dismissed.

Tug Frees Spanish Vessel From Reef

Miami, Fla., April 6 (A.P.).—The Spanish liner Marques de Comillas was Havana-bound again today, after being pulled free of Carysfort reef, on which she ran aground Tuesday night. Apparently undamaged, the vessel, carrying 104 passengers and a cargo of wines and preserves, proceeded under her own power.

She was pulled free of the reef, 40 miles south of Miami, about 6:30 a. m., the Coast Guard cutter Unalga reported. The tug Relief, from Key West, aided by the Unalga, got the Marques off the reef.

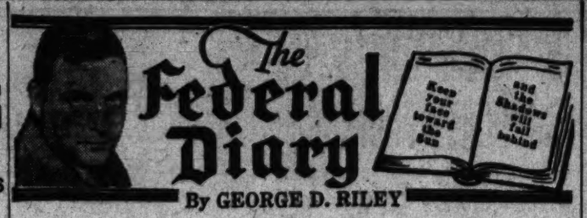
Oklahoma Income Tax Bill Passed by Senate

Oklahoma City, April 6 (A.P.).—The net income tax bill was passed by the State Senate today to become effective in 90 days.

One of Gov. W. H. Murray's measures, the bill provides a rate of 1 to 5 per cent on incomes of individuals and corporations with surtaxes up to 10 per cent on incomes above $10,000.



"CAN you see as far as Missouri in the crystal ball?" we asked Swarmi Fedd. "Yes, and farther," but it was Havv Fedd, Swarmi's half-brother, who answered. Swarmi was feverish—spring feverish—and was taking the day off. We must rely upon Havv to do the honors.

"Well, Mr. Havv, What do you see in Missouri?"

Swarmi had always sworn by his beard that Havv must never have a look-in on the ball of mystery and discernment. And if he reads this he may still wax wroth. But the Swarmi's beard has been cut recently, so there isn't as much beard to swear by.

"I see where Arthur Hyde is looking over G. O. P. machinery—seems to be farm machinery—wondering if it will stand the strain of a trip to Washington as senatorial nominee."

"You're sure you're not letting the cat out of the bag Havv?"

"No; it'll be no easy sailing after the wind is taken out of Artie's sails; all the cats will be free to hop, skip and jump from the bag."

"What do you see in Commerce?"

"I see furniture, and more furniture. It's being moved. It's on the fifth floor."

"Then they're finally starting the spring drive?"

"What's doing at Interior?"

"I can see Henry S. Selden. He's back on the job. He's had a hard fight but he's won. And with springtime and nature's colors Henry's studying outdoor hues in his spare time for a purpose."

"The drouth at Agriculture, is it over?"

"And how! William T. Raine is back."

"What at Forest Service?"

"I can see the revolving door revolving."

"Yeah? Why?"

"Hundreds applying for reforestation jobs. And some one seems to say, 'Please tell them we have no jobs to offer just now. That will save wear and tear on the front door.'"

"But how did the door glass get broken?"

"And at Customs Bureau?"

"Ah, bravery knows no bounds. In fiscal administration I can see O. M. Williams, a handsome black-haired chap, who quietly took his little fiancee from Alexandria to Rockville, Md., last Saturday evening, April 1, first day of the 15 per cent pay cut, and they were married. Although married April Fool's Day, it was no April Fool joke—even if they did get married in the face of the much-discussed salary reduction.

"And I can see Miss Dorothy von Toerne and C. W. Simonson, both of Customs, who were attendants at the ceremony performed by a clergyman at Rockville. The bride is not in the Government service. The bridegroom attends Columbus Law School. A senior. Luck! They'll need it!

"What at Alien Property?"

"Ah, I can see an attorney leaving Washington for home, Oklahoma City. Yes, it is Marion Henderson, general counsel to the Alien Property Custodian and Special Assistant to the Attorney General. He will resume practice of law. But more details about the judge and the farewell party tomorrow."

"You have not mentioned Prohibition."

"Right! I can see Miss Frances Skelly working that same jig-saw puzzle from the Federal Diary contest. And she does it in 1:45 flat."

"That's marvelous, Havv. What about the boys and girls at Commerce? What're they doing or what's being done to them?"

"I can see and hear Commerce advising its personnel that annual leave started April 1 at the rate of one and one-quarter days per month through the calendar year. Listen closely, leave can be accumulated from one year to another. This will be the first annual leave Commerce employes have had in many of what you call moons."

"The Patent Office?"

"Ah, yes, the Patent Office. The bank holiday cut up di-does there. That Patent Gazette that's been carrying a list each week of perhaps a thousand patents. This week it only had 140. The shrinkage came when banks were closed and inventors were unable to pay the usual fee to defray expense of printing the patent. I can hear the commissioner, Thomas E. Robertson, explaining. But the commissioner is optimistic. Everything will right itself. We've all got more leisure to tinker and think and work up patents."

"Are those the bright lights of Broadway?"

"I should say not. They're only the lights in the windows at Agriculture, where they worked overtime."

"You don't say. Surely you can see more."

"Yes, surely. I can see Mrs. George H. Schoolmeester entertaining at bridge for Miss Glendoris Huffman, Agriculture; Mrs. T. J. Kastanek, Customs, and Miss Frances Skelly, Prohibition. I can see Miss Jessee Kunkel, Veterans Administration, and Miss Glendoris Huffman, they guests at dinner, with Miss Louise LaCombe, Federal Farm Board, joining them for bridge.

"You haven't overlooked Internal Revenue?"

"No, there is A. L. Duncan returning to work, after being confined to his home several days."

"Havv, you mentioned something about bravery a while ago. Does that still go?"

"More than ever. More brave folks. Congratulations showered upon Mrs. Julian Ninde, the former Miss Alice Waite, secretary to the chief, Loans and Accounts, Treasury. They're at home in East Falls Church, Va.

"What's this? More bravery! Richard C. Cady, Geological Survey, Interior, and Miss Beatrice Dunn. The wedding's this p. m., then away to New York."

"That youngster who sells magazines in Commerce. His face, so bright and hair so well groomed lately. What do you know?"

"Mrs. Honnora Irene McCarthy, economic research, knows that kids' faces can be cleaned. It's a pleasure. The lad didn't know exactly whether he ought to——"

"What at War Department?"

"I can see 'War Department Clerk' addressing a letter to the Federal Diary. It says 'Why don't you run some of those interesting things from Philip Ebert, G. A. O.?'"

"Do you know who wrote it?"

"Yes. Don't you?"

"What on the Hill?"

"Ah, I can see representatives and senators. Some write, some telephone, to Crop Production Loan. 'You will oblige if you can place this deserving and capable young man or young woman.'"

"Men of few words, eh?"

"What at Chemistry and Soils?"

"They're planning another big blowout at Arlington."

"What does the Federal Diary have in mind for an early date?"

"You don't want me to betray a confidence. Suppose you invite the readers to watch the column."

"Okeh, Havv, Abyssinia."

Ouster of Student In Rum Case Hit

Williamsburg, Va., April 6 (A.P.).—William and Mary College students carried to the administration today a protest against the removal from school of a member of the men's study body in whose room liquor allegedly was found.

The student, who later was charged with the possession of intoxicants, will be given a hearing at the Williamsburg courthouse tomorrow. He is under $500 bond.

After two meetings of the men's student government today a committee was appointed to confer with President J. A. C. Chandler in regard to the matter. The result of the conference with the college president was not disclosed.

Schall Accepts Offer Of Second Police Dog

(Associated Press.)

Blind Senator Thomas D. Schall, of Minnesota, whose faithful police dog guide, Lux, died while the senator was attending Senator Thomas J. Walsh's funeral in Montana, has accepted the offer of J. L. Sinykin, of Minneapolis, to replace Lux with a similarly trained animal. In a letter to Sinykin Schall expressed belief Lux died because of "his untamed temperamental nature mourning my absence."

"No other dog, I believe, can ever take his place in my affections," Schall said, "but the wonderful training Lux had at your kennels gives me reason to believe that in service, perhaps, what you have done with one dog you can undoubtedly do with another."

SENATE UNIT BACKS FOREIGN BONDS BILL

(Associated Press.)

A Federal ban on loans to governments in default to America or its citizens was recommended to the Senate yesterday by its Judiciary Committee in a formal report on the Johnson bill while the administration's stringent securities bill forged ahead in congressional committees.

Passage of the Johnson bill, sponsored by the California Republican independent, which would prohibit sale in this country of obligations of defaulting governments, was urged by the Judiciary Committee as "a measure of simple justice for the protection of the American investor and the American people generally."

Before the Senate Banking Committee, Robert E. Healy, counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, cited commission disclosures in its public utilities investigation and advocated the administration bill to regulate domestic stock and bond issues.

Early Report Hoped For.

The House Interstate Commerce Committee considered the administration bill in executive session, with the hope it could be reported to the floor next week. The Senate committee continues its hearings today.

Johnson's bill, an aftermath of the Senate Finance Committee investigation of the flotation of foreign issues in the United States, was considered by the Judiciary Committee as justified by that inquiry and necessary "on behalf of the American people."

In the committee report, Chairman Ashurst said that the investigation was "so recent and its results so astonishing that apparently nothing more need be done in demonstrating the necessity for legislation upon the subject."

Designed as Admonition.

Senator Ashurst said the legislation was designed "to curb the rapacity of those engaged in the sale of foreign obligations, and as an admonition to governments able to pay, but which nevertheless repudiate their written engagements."

Mr. Healy suggested revisions in the administration securities bill, which puts the power largely in the hands of the Trade Commission.

His recommendations were based on evidence during the utility inquiry, in which he was a central figure, and which he said showed evasion of State stock laws. He reviewed evidence of watered stock, overcapitalization, alleged fraudulent practices of subsidiary holding companies and other utility corporation tactics.

Sabotage Is Hinted By Fiske in Crash

Quoted at Yale as Feeling Loss of Akron Due to Viciousness.

New Haven, Conn., April 6 (A.P.).—Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, U. S. N., retired, was quoted in a Yale news interview today as saying "no explanation is available for the Akron disaster unless it is sabotage."

"I feel sure," he was quoted as saying, "that this (tragedy) came not as a flaw in any principles of dirigible construction, but, through some outside interference. I hope that more light will be shed on the case which came up during the construction, and I have an idea that a thorough investigation can not fail to show meddling of a more vicious nature.

"As horrible a disaster as this is," he said, "we can not call this tragedy an indictment of the Zeppelin in general—I think Admiral Moffett would admit that even now."

Better Meter Cab Markings Ordered

Keech, in Suggestion to P. U. C., Cites Confusion of Passengers.

Upon suggestion of People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech, the Public Utilities Commission yesterday decided to order taxicabs now operating with meters to identify the fact more clearly on the cabs.

In a memorandum to the commission, Mr. Keech pointed out that he had received numerous complaints from persons who had ridden in meter cabs under the impression that they were using the flat-rate or zone cabs.

This confusion, he pointed out, results from the fact that there are few meter cabs in operation and that the Black and White and Yellow Cab Co., although operating on the flat rate basis, has meters on all of its cabs.

Macon Will Make Flight Next Week

Goodyear-Zeppelin Officials Deny Plans for Testing Have Been Changed.

Akron, Ohio, April 6 (A.P.).—The U. S. S. Macon, sister ship of the ill-fated Akron, positively will make her maiden flight next week, officials of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation said today.

The ship, built for the Navy, will be ready for her first flight Monday, but whether she will be flown depends on both the weather and the condition of the field. Goodyear officials said a definite date probably would be set after a study of weather forecasts tomorrow.

Capt. A. H. Dresel, skipper of the Macon, said he was ready to order the Macon up early next week, and that he had received no instructions from Washington changing these plans.

Public Schools May Yet Teach Odds on Gambling

States, in Throwing Off All Artificial Restraints, May Now Have to Educate People How to Enjoy Life, Even in Shooting Craps.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

It is a little early, perhaps, to propose the teaching of gambling odds in the public schools but it may come to this eventually as the States throw off more of the artificial restraints which they adopted in a spirit of piety during the ten years preceding and ten years immediately following the enactment of prohibition. Maine has sanctioned the new beer and even New Hampshire has approved horse-racing with gambling facilities, after which it would not be very surprising to hear that South Carolina had voted to establish craps as a varsity sport in the State university and all the public high schools.

There was a time not very long ago when horse-racing was not only illegal but prohibited in all the States except New York, Maryland, Kentucky and Louisiana. It was illegal, but not prohibited in Ohio and Florida where the horse-track promoters made private adjustments with the county prosecutors, sheriffs and other politicians and were permitted to violate the laws with the understanding that they would not do so to excess. This was an unsatisfactory arrangement, however, because inevitably unsympathetic citizens bobbed up, calling themselves leagues for one thing or another, and obtained court injunctions to restrain the horse people from violating the law even to a moderate degree. This made it necessary for the horse people to institute further court actions to have the injunctions set aside and confirm their right to break the laws. Further embarrassment arose from the fact that safe-crackers, pickpockets thought that they would be allowed to pursue their vocations also. This caused considerable unrest because a league for this or that can not very well enjoin a safe-cracker from blowing a safe unless he has signified his intention in advance. This he is not likely to do, safe cracking being a reticent trade.

Horse Racing and Gambling.

In order to clarify the situation, steps were taken in many States to abolish the laws against horse racing and gambling and there are now so many sites at which the horses may run and the citizens gamble on a legal basis that there is likely to occur a shortage of live stock to fill out the racing cards. It is possible also that there will be a shortage of money for gambling purposes, but this possibility is very remote. There seems to be money for gambling when there is no money for rent or groceries.

I do not know why the people wish to gamble and have been demanding the right to do so in many jurisdictions during the last few years, but that is their own business and they do not have to give any reasons. Perhaps it is because they feel that they might well be completely broke as the way they are, although that is a mere speculation. Whether they know it or not, however, the citizens are certain to wind up losers with the few exceptions of those novices who gamble once, happen to win and quit permanently. On the other hand, it is untrue that the race track promoters and bookmakers accumulate the bulk of the money in the course of time, because the majority of them wind up losers also. The promoters are exposed to the risk of fidgety public sentiment which does not stay fixed and the prosperous horse track of today becomes the abandoned and weed-grown wreck of tomorrow when a new Legislature or reform governor decides that the citizens do not know what is good for them and runs the horse crews over the State line. The bookmakers spend most of theirs away, and nobody can really say what becomes of the money.

In Los Angeles.

The plant at Agua Caliente, which for several years prospered on the loose wages of the Hollywood moving picture actors and California tourists, seems likely to become another example of the ephemerality of the magnificent horse park and money trap. Caliente ruined Tia Juana and now it is likely that racing will be sanctioned in Los Angeles, in which case there will be no reason for the customers to travel all the way to Caliente to contribute their funds. Jack Dempsey appeared briefly a couple of years ago as sponsor and ostensible promoter of another resort in Mexico which was to have done to Caliente what the Los Angeles track now threatens to do, but there was just one serious oversight in the plans for Dempsey's place. There was no road leading to it, so the project was abandoned.

Inasmuch as horse-race gambling is coming to be considered moral again and the end of the tendency is by no means yet, it is reasonable to contemplate a further relaxation of public sentiment which would permit of craps-shooting, poker, roulette and many other games of more or less chance, under State supervision and subject to State tax. There is a strong sentimental prejudice against the distinctly American game of craps, which I am unable to account for. It was the favorite diversion of the armed forces, which fact should give it good patriotic status and, if disorder and vulgarity be held against the sport, it may be said that it is certainly no more to be condemned on such ground than horse-race betting, which is attended by noisy rooting and thrives on money-lust. Moreover, it is the one American game which is known to more Americans of both sexes and of all social classes than any other. You may rattle a pair of bones in any given company of 10 or 12 American ladies and gents and find not more than one, if any, who is ignorant of the rules and terminology.

Square Shake for Craps.

If gambling is to be acknowledged as a decent practice in any form, then it were very arbitrary and, possibly unconstitutional, to legalize horse-gambling, with its calculated odds against the victim, and discountenance the American sport of craps, which offers a square shake, as the phrase goes, to any one with sufficient mental agility to follow the odds and lay the correct prices.

As to the teaching of gambling in the schools, it is my suggestion that children growing up to face the realities of horse-park speculation and possibly the hazards of the legalized craps table, should be taught the mathematical formulas which they will need to know. It may be of no practical value for the citizen of the next generation to know whether Andrew Jackson or Benjamin Franklin, if either, said "Give me liberty or give me death." But he, or she, has a right to be told how much the mutuels owe on a $5 ticket on a horse which pays $5.35 for $2 and the correct price to lay for or against Big Dick or Little Joe.

CUMMINGS PUSHES CUTS IN PERSONNEL

"Hundreds" Are Marked for Department of Justice Economy Drive.

Drastic slashes in the personnel of the Department of Justice will be made immediately, Attorney General Cummings said yesterday.

"There are a large number of people on the pay roll who have no business there and they will be eliminated as rapidly as I can get to them," Mr. Cummings said. "'I have put my hand to the plow and I won't turn back'," he quoted.

"This cutting won't leave many jobs to be given away, will it?" the Attorney General was asked.

"Yes, that's what's worrying the politicians," he said quickly.

He said that an estimate of "hundreds" to be released was "conservative." Already about 45 officials have been allowed to go, with an annual salary saving of about $200,000.

Assistant District Attorneys.

The heaviest cuts will be made in the ranks of the deputy marshals and the assistant district attorneys. Great savings are possible from the marshals' pay rolls, and "assistant district attorneys have been carried too far. Those who remain will have to work harder, but they can stand it." No study has been made of the number of Federal judges who can be dispensed with.

The 25 per cent cut in the appropriation for the Prohibition Bureau will result in distinct curtailment of this service. It is hoped that the return of beer will lessen the number of liquor law violators, with additional decreases in the number of men needed for enforcement and trial of offenders. Mr. Cummings could not estimate the additional work which might be thrown on the department through the prosecution of gold hoarders.

The plan for the consolidation of the Prohibition Bureau with the narcotic and industrial alcohol forces has been sent to Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, for study, it was learned yesterday. Officials of other departments concerned in the merger have been studying the plan with Mr. Douglas.

Problems of Consolidation.

The plan is expected to simplify, improve, make more efficient and make less expensive the operation of these separate bureaus, it was said. Whether or not the consolidation is carried through, it is expected that the Prohibition Bureau will be reorganized.

The study of the possibility of releasing Federal prisoners charged with possession of beer revealed that very few prisoners are being held for beer violations alone. For this reason there can be no wholesale releases, but individual cases will be considered where some great hardship is being worked on the prisoner. Release from padlock of premises used for beer violations will be treated individually also.

A "clean-up" in the Prohibition Bureau is under way, Mr. Cummings said, with the aim of eradicating all injustices in the service. Among these are the unbridled use of entrapment proceedings in apprehending liquor law violators, he went on. No definite orders to cease all entrapment will go out, however.

British Rulers Go to Windsor.

London, April 6 (A.P.).—The king and queen left Buckingham Palace today for Windsor Castle for the Easter holidays. They probably will return during the first week in May.

AKRON DEBRIS THOUGHT FOUND

version of the catastrophe in which he was miraculously washed out of a window and into the path of a passing German ship, while 73 of his comrades were pulled under the surface and to their deaths.

Couched in simple, direct wording, Wiley's report is a colorless masterpiece of direct fact reporting, a written symbol of the discipline displayed by the men as they faced death.

Characteristically listing himself simply as "a survivor, Lieut. Comdr. H. V. Wiley, U. S. N.," he wrote in part:

"Paragraph 1. The U. S. S. Akron was destroyed when she crashed on the sea 20 miles southeast of Barnegat Inlet Light at about 0080 (12:30 a. m.), 4 April, 1933. So far as known the only survivors are Lieut. Comdr. H. V. Wiley, U. S. N.; R. E. Deal, boatswain's mate, second class, U. S. N., and M. Erwin, metalsmith, second class, U. S. N. Except for slight bruises, the above named are ready for duty."

"Paragraph 2" of Wiley's report picks up the story of the last flight of the Leviathan of all airs from when she departed from Lakehurst at about 1030 (7:30 p. m.) 3 April, 1933, on a regularly scheduled flight.

He discloses that the ship took off with a ceiling of about 300 feet for Newport, R. I., but that because of unfavorable weather conditions it was decided to cruise inland for several hours. Later the course was changed to the east and the Akron proceeded to sea, where she was ultimately destroyed after a terrific battle with the elements. Then follows a detailed log of the flight and the weather encountered and the tense moments that followed until he ordered "Stand by for a crash" to a crew of the Nation's finest sailors of the air that included the greatest of all naval aviators, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, America's leading disciple of lighter-than-air ships.

Other Outstanding Facts.

Other outstanding facts reported by Wiley are these statements:

"A wind gust of terrific intensity, short and sudden as a blow, struck the ship as she battled to stay up in the heart of a storm.

"As the ship was struck by this gust, the control rope of the lower vertical rudder gave way.

"Attempts to steer with the upper rudder failed, for that control, too, gave way.

"Girders buckled and gear tore loose amidships. This was reported by Richard E. Deal, enlisted man, who said he saw it as he left his bunk, answering the order for all hands to stand by. He saw control lines slack, but noticed no breaks.

"Practically Out of Control."

"The survivors believed this was after the gust, and also after," said Wiley, "the ship had begun its last descent, practically out of control."

Wiley, swept into the water after the crash, said he distinctly saw the big hulk, cracked in three places, lying on the water and drifting away rapidly.

Nowhere in the report was there the slightest suggestion that anything was amiss before the ship ran into the storm. Wiley minutely reported each development of the flight, from his vantage point in the control cabin.

This report, combined with radioed flashes from the fleet of vessels and aircraft searching for survivors, furnished so far the only clews for investigation.

Swanson Appoints Butler.

Meanwhile in a surprise move here Secretary Swanson signed naval orders directing Rear Admiral Henry V. Butler, commandant of the U. S. Navy Yard here, to head the special board of inquiry which will convene Monday at Lakehurst. He replaces Admiral W. W. Phelps, named yesterday to head the inquiring group, but whose health is understood to make it impossible for him to hold this post.

Commander Garland Fulton, head of the Navy's lighter than air division, was also removed from the make-up of the original board and Commander Sydney M. Kraus, named in his place. Commander Fulton's entire attention is demanded at Akron, for which city the lost ship was named and where on Monday, the Navy's new queen of the skies will first float from her dock. Thus on that day at almost the same hour the Navy will start the study of the tragedy off New Jersey and will put into the air the Macon, sistership of the ill-fated Akron, on its first trial flight.

Yesterday Wiley, accompanied by the two surviving enlisted men of the dirigible, laid their report on the desk of the Secretary of the Navy and then went to the White House, where at the request of President Roosevelt to "tell me all about it," they once again told their tragic stories.

Investigation Is Public.

Wiley, summoned later to the Capitol, found several investigating groups proposed and one ready for preliminary hearings. This one headed by Representative Vinson (Democrat), of Georgia, chairman of the powerful Naval Affairs Committee and close personal friend of Admiral Moffett, immediately received him and heard the report.

"We propose," said Mr. Vinson, "to investigate every phase of the accident as well as look into the military and commercial value of airships.

"It will be an open investigation from top to bottom with all witnesses under oath.

"If witnesses who know things will not appear voluntarily we will ask the House for authority to demand their presence by subpena."

May Bare Sabotage Stories.

Mr. Vinson added that he proposed to make public a special report the Justice Department had received on alleged sabotage activities on the Akron by Paul P. Kassay. That report was filed with the Justice Department two years ago, but has not been made public.

While Vinson's committee was taking this action it became known that some other House leaders were favoring the proposal by Representative McClintic (Democrat), of Oklahoma, for an investigation by a special committee.

McClintic was advised to appear before the House Rules Committee today on his plan. He said that Representative Byrns, the majority leader, and Chairman Crosser of the Democratic Steering Committee favored his proposal.

Two Funerals Today.

Today the funerals for two of the officers who lost their lives, one in the Akron and the other in the J-3 blimp, will be held in Arlington National Cemeteery.

Services for Lieut. Comdr. MacLellan, whose body is the only one on the Akron so far recovered, will be held at 1 p. m. with full military honors. Capt. Sydney K. Evans, Chaplain Corps of the Navy, will officiate.

Services for Lieut. Comdr. Cummins will be at 2:15 p. m., with Lieut. S. W. Salisbury, Chaplain Corps, officiating. Pallbearers for both of the drowned officers will be Lieut. Comdrs. E. D. Gibb, M. L. Lewis, A. T. Moen, H. S. Kendall, M. R. Browning and J. W. Fowler.

Plans for Memorial Rites.

Plans for a group memorial service for all of the officers were being discussed last night by Naval officials. In all probability these will be held in abeyance, however, until officials at the scene are sure that there is no chance of recovering any more bodies.

And as all hope fades for the other members of the crew of the Akron I am reminded of a quotation from a speech delivered by Admiral Moffett at the chistening exercises in August, 1931, of the ship that carried him to his death in the Atlantic. This speech was read to a group of his friends in his office prior to its delivery before he handed each of us a copy with his own marginal notes outlining the portions he considered important. I copy from the transcript of the speech which he handed to me.

A masterpiece of English writing, it is at this time a beautifully appropriate tribute to William A. Moffett, whose belief in the airship never faltered.

Products of Hundreds.

He said:

"In coming here today you are rendering honor to those, both living and dead, who have made this great airship possible. It is the product not of one man, nor group of men, but of hundreds, some of them great pioneers who believed in airships because they knew what they could do. And included in the group of pioneers, there have been some who gave their lives—not only our own countrymen, but brave men of other nations. In building this great ship the United States has honored their memory and in a way it is a monument to them and to their sacrifice—to our own Shenandoah and the ZR-2, the Dixmude and the R-101, and their gallant men. With this ship, and with others like her but larger, we will carry on and show ourselves worthy of their trust, and that their faith was not misplaced."

And now to the list of airships we sadly add the name Akron, and to the line of "great pioneers who believed in airships," even more sadly, we add the name of William A. Moffett and his men.

ONE DEAD, 3 INJURED IN HEADON COLLISION

Baltimorean in Accident at Beltsville Expires Here; Woman May Not Live.

A head-on collision between two automobiles on a straightaway stretch of the Baltimore boulevard at Beltsville, Md., yesterday afternoon resulted in the death of one man and serious injuries to three women. Andrew McGuire, 35, of Baltimore, succumbed in Casualty Hospital several hours after the accident. He suffered a fractured skull.

Both machines were demolished. The highway at the accident's scene is four lanes wide and straight.

The most seriously hurt was Mrs. Margaret McCabe, 40, of Baltimore, who was riding with McGuire. She suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries. Little hope is held for her recovery. Police said their car was driven by Miss Mary Burns, of Baltimore, and was occupied also by her brother, Frank Burns. They escaped serious injury.

The other machine was occupied by a mother and daughter of Upper Montclair, N. J. Miss Jean Sawyer, 18, was riding in the car driven by her mother, Mrs. Edith Sawyer. The former received concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull, while Mrs. Sawyer suffered severe leg injuries and lacerations to her face.

Passing motorists and the Bladensburg Rescue Squad took the injured to the hospital. McGuire died several hours later.

Invitation to Hold 1934 Convention May Bring 50,000 Visitors.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States will be invited to hold their 1934 convention in Washington by the Washington Department Council of Administration of the organization. If the invitation is accepted more than 50,000 members and their friends will attend.

Decision to invite the organization to Washington was made following an address to the department council by Augustus Cumpert, of the Greater National Capital Committee of the Washington Board of Trade.

The invitation will be given by the Washington delegation attending the national convention in Milwaukee in August. The delegation will be appointed by O. W. Hollingsworth, department commander.

Lake Sailors Seek 12-Hour Day's End

Roosevelt Told Long Shift Is "Disgrace" to New Deal in Industry.

Cleveland, April 6 (A.P.).—Elimination of twelve-hour working days was asked by the Sailors Union of the Great Lakes today in letters sent to President Roosevelt and Federal and State officials. The letters, signed by C. M. Goshorn, acting secretary, asserted:

"Five thousand Great Lakes sailors, both union and nonunion, earnestly feel that the time has arrived for a 'new deal' in working hours on board bulk freight vessels. Exploitation of these sailors under the twelve-hour day is a disgrace to American industry and should be ended now. * * * The bulk-freight vessel owners of the Great Lakes are the last important group to cling to the obsolete two-watch system, or twelve-hour day."

The letters listed 22 steamship companies which Goshorn said employ the twelve-hour day.

Robinson Indicted In Bohn Kidnaping

2 Unnamed Persons Also Accused by Grand Jury at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., April 6 (A.P.).—Three persons, including Ray Robinson, were indicted today on charges of kidnaping Haskell Bohn, of St. Paul. Robinson, in custody here, is expected to be arraigned tomorrow. The names of those indicted with Robinson were kept secret because they are not yet under arrest.

Mr. and Mrs. Verne Sankey have been named by Robinson as his accomplices in a confession he made last week when he was arrested at Rorketon, Manitoba.

Bohn was kidnaped from his home June 30 and released on payment of $12,000 ransom following a week's captivity. The ransom was paid by Bohn's father, wealthy St. Paul manufacturer.

Cult Leader Gives Theory of Murder

Literal Interpretation of Symbolic Ritual to Flame, He Says.

Martinez, Calif., April 6 (A.P.).—Literal interpretation of a ritual intended as symbolic was blamed by C. E. Alfarara today for the cult burial alive of Mrs. Celina Novarro, 26.

Alfarara, grand recorder of the Filipino Order of Caballeros de Dimas-Alang, said four men and three women members of the order, indicted on murder charges for the alleged burial of Mrs. Novarro, accused by them of unfaithfulness in marriage, had mistakenly interpreted the ritual literally.

Meanwhile authorities continued to investigate reports that other missing persons at Merced, Monterey and San Francisco were victims of cult "justice."

German Sagas Held Basis Of Hitler's New Religion

Nazi Organ Says Plan Would Oust Old Testament and Substitute "Personalities From Nation's Spiritual, Philosophical and Artistic Life."

Berlin, April 6 (A.P.).—The religion of Germany under Hitler rule, as defined today by the Protestant Nazi "German Christian Movement," would oust the old testament and would erect in its stead the sagas and fairy tales of Germany and the leading personalities from German spiritual, philosophical and artistic life.

At their first national convention the members of this movement named a commission to amend German church life in conformity with Nazi ideas and "in a pure Aryan spirit."

The Nazi urge for a realignment of religious values was further stressed in an address by Alfred Rosenberg, new head of the foreign political division of the party, who declared that 2,000,000 German World War martyrs form a living mythology and a new religion for uncounted millions in the new Germany.

The supreme council of the Evangelical Church, disturbed by Nazi attempts to reorganize the Lutheran communion to coordinate it with Nazism, reminded Chancellor Adolf Hitler that he had promised not to touch the nation's independent ecclesiastical institutions.

The policy the Nazis will adopt toward the Catholics remained uncertain. Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen will discuss the situation with the Pope when he visits Vatican City within the next few days.

Observers holding the theory that the Nazis plan further to nationalize the church saw evidence to that effect in a press report that the government intends to abolish the church tax, substituting a "culture tax" in its place.

The "German Christians" adopted resolutions asking "equal fusion of the church with the Nazi movement in a pure Aryan spirit, equalization of organist and pastor, and the living language to the exclusion of the ancient, dismissal of the Old Testament basis and substitution of the German inheritance, instead of prophets, sagas and fairy tales to take the leading personalities from German spiritual, philosophical and artistic life."

Athlete Gets Year For Plot on Wife

Former Football Star Is Accused of Plan to Have Her Slain.

Los Angeles, April 6 (A.P.).—Gerald (Jerry) Craig, former college football player, was sentenced today to a year in the county jail on conviction of plotting to have his wife, Ethel, slain by thugs.

The State accused Craig of desiring the death of his wife so he might marry another woman, Ruth Shearer.

"I can not understand why a man of your intelligence could have conceived such a crime," Superior Judge William S. Baird told Craig.

Kansas to Raise Walls Against Fuel Bootlegger

Topeka, Kans., April 6 (A.P.).—A "tariff wall" is going up around Kansas May 1. There will be 34 ports of entry and exit, through which truck carriers of gasoline and other motor fuels will be required to enter and leave the State. It will be illegal to cross the Kansas borders elsewhere.

The new regulations are designed to prevent bootlegging of motor fuels and the consequent evasion of the State tax of 3 cents a gallon on gasoline.

CATHOLICS CONDUCT HOLY HOUR SERVICES

University Shrine Ceremony in Obedience to Orders From Vatican.

The National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Catholic University was the scene of a special program last night in observance of the world-wide Holy Hour decree by Pope Pius XI.

After the entrance of the students and faculty of the university there was exposition of the most Blessed Sacrament. The university choir under the direction of Leo Behrendt sang the hymn, "Stabat Mater."

"While the patience of God is infinite there are indications sometimes that the sinful forgetfulness and ingratitude of the world almost try the Divine patience too far," declared the Very Rev. Joseph M. Sullivan, S. M., preaching at solemn Holy Hour exercises yesterday in Immaculate Seminary.

The services were in compliance with the order of Pope Pius XI that a Holy Hour be conducted in all Catholic Churches the first Thursday of April to open the Holy Year.

Father Sullivan urged his hearers to give frequent consideration to the love that prompted the death of Christ. The Blessed Sacrament was solemnly enthroned upon the altar throughout the services, which included the Litany of the Sacred Heart and Benediction. The Immaculate student body and Sisters of Providence sang the Holy Hour hymns.

First Eggs

Laid by Surinam Toad in Captivity Are Reported by Dr. Mann.

For the first time in zoological history, the Surinam toad has laid eggs while in captivity.

Several hundred have been laid by the reptile, Zoo attendants discovered yesterday morning. The eggs were placed in tiny pockets on the back of the toad by the mate after they were laid.

A skin now grows over the pouch. When the young toads are hatched they have to break through the skin. One of the king snakes and an iguana also have laid eggs, Dr. William M. Mann, director of the Zoo said.

Rubber Overproduction Compelled, Club Told

Rubber production can not be curtailed because the rubber trees dry up if they are not tapped daily, Ross W. Wilkes, local representative of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., told his fellow Cosmopolitans at a meeting of the club at the Carlton Hotel yesterday. Mr. Wilkes illustrated his talk with a film showing the operation of rubber plantations in South America and the making of tires at Akron.

Present low tire prices are due to overproduction of rubber, Mr. Wilkes said, but there is nothing that can be done except to increase the market for rubber because of the peculiar action of the trees. It takes about seven years to develop a rubber tree and after it is once tapped it becomes worthless in a short time unless tapped regularly.

Hawaiian Legislature Considers Beer Measure

Honolulu, April 6 (A.P.).—A territorial beer bill, which is before the Hawaiian Legislature for regulation and taxation of the beverage is expected to be enacted in time to permit sales when the first shipment of beer arrives here from California Wednesday.

The measure would prohibit sales between midnight and 5 a. m. and in taverns. A proposal is pending to impose a tax of 4 cents a gallon.

NATIONAL SYMPHONY COMPLETES SEASON

Great Ovation Marks Close; Dr. Kindler Makes Plea for Subscriptions.

The National Symphony Orchestra of Washington gave its last concert this season yesterday afternoon in Constitution Hall.

At the close of the concert, when the orchestra gave a superb performance of the overture to Wagner's "Tannhauser," the applause burst like a bombshell from all over the house. Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor, passed around the orchestra and shook the hand of the head player in each section. Then he stepped upon the platform and motioned his men to rise, when they received the cheers and "bravos" which echoed and re-echoed through the hall. Dr. Kindler was perceptibly stunned with the ovation and as always, before accepting any of it for himself, he gave the signal for his players to rise and partake of it. He did this after the playing of each number.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who occupied the Presidential box, was among the first to applaud their work, and among the last to stop it. She did not leave her box until after the last appearance of the conductor and the door was shut behind him.

And this is the orchestra which Washington will lose if the necessary fund of $23,000 is not forthcoming to complete the quota for next season.

The program yesterday was not a long one. It opened with the overture to Weber's "Der Freischutz," which was followed with the Cesar Franck Symphony in D minor. The other two numbers were Saint-Saens' "Le Rouet d'Omphale" (symphonic poem), exquisitely played, and the overture to "Tannhauser."

The time taken up usually by an intermission was utilized by an effective and appealing little speech given by Dr. Kindler for the continuance of the orchestra next season.

Attorney

Busy on Beer Permit for Client Neglects Law on Parking.

His efforts in behalf of a client yesterday resulted in the arrest of Harry C. Weston, 44, Vienna, Va., an attorney with offices in the Woodward Building, for alleged gross disregard of parking regulations. Police said he left his car parked on two successive days in restricted space at the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Weston explained that he was so busy trying to get a beer permit for a client that he did not have time to find an unrestricted parking place.

What's the Value of a TRADE-MARK?

TODAY the Chesterfield trade-mark is very valuable. Back of it is the good will of thousands—perhaps hundreds of thousands—of smokers.

Chesterfield cigarettes were first manufactured more than twenty-five years ago. At the start, they were sold at a loss, but the quantity sold increased steadily from year to year, until now Chesterfields are sold in great volume at a very small percentage of profit.

The Chesterfield trade-mark, as indicated above, is registered in the United States Patent Office. This means that the United States Government says that only Chesterfield may use this trade-mark for cigarettes.

This is not only for our protection, but for yours as well, because what the Chesterfield trade-mark really means is that you and all Chesterfield smokers will get Chesterfields manufactured under the same formula, by the same people, and in all respects absolutely the same, in every package you buy, year in and year out.

Wherever you buy them, in this or in any other country, you can depend upon the Chesterfield trade-mark.

RELIEF FROM THE TARIFF.

An interesting feature of the farm relief bill is the drastic increase it will make in agricultural tariffs. Indications are that the wheat tariff will be more than doubled and that a 50 per cent ad valorem duty will be put on cotton, which is now on the free list. All tariff rates on commodities that are to benefit from the bill will be raised by an amount equal to the tax on processors of those commodities.

The purpose of these higher tariff rates is to prevent farmers in other countries from claiming the benefits Congress is planning for domestic agriculture. President Roosevelt realizes that there would be little chance of improving domestic prices without granting agriculture a greater degree of protection. Instead of lowering the Smoot-Hawley tariff, as the Democrats have talked so much about doing, the administration seems determined to make its first change in the tariff structure an emphatic boost of protective duties.

No one will complain about this additional protection for the farmer against foreign competition. American producers are entitled to preference in the domestic market, whether they are farmers, laboring men or manufacturers. But how does this program of doubling the protective duties for agriculture square with Secretary Hull's plans to barter away the so-called high duties of the Smoot-Hawley act?

It is evident that no concessions will be made in the agricultural schedules to promote export trade. If any tariff agreements are made, Mr. Hull will have to rely largely upon reductions in industrial duties for bargaining purposes. Many American industries have already been crippled by the importation of goods from countries using depreciated currency. It is estimated that 1,000,000 men have lost their jobs because of the influx of commodities made excessively cheap by the debasement of foreign money. Records of the Department of Commerce show that imports of 200 commodities increased in 1932 over 1931 in spite of the continued decline of domestic business. Further reductions in industrial duties under present conditions would be fraught with the most serious consequences.

If the United States should undertake a bargaining program, it would labor under tremendous difficulties. Lower American tariffs would turn loose a flood of imports from depreciated currency nations, but lower foreign tariffs would not open markets to American exports because other countries can not afford to buy high-priced American goods with their cheap money. It is absurd to talk about tariff bargaining until the monetary situation has been stabilized.

Consistency would require Congress to extend emergency relief to industry as it is doing for agriculture. That emergency relief would consist of a tax on imports equal to the amount by which the currency of the producing nation is debased. Such a tax would also give the State Department a reasonable basis from which to bargain, if it is determined to pursue that course. The demand for such tariff protection may be expected to become emphatic when the disguised duties in the farm bill become better known.

AGENTS FOR WORLD TRADE.

Sweeping plans for the reorganization of the foreign service of the Department of Commerce have aroused keen interest in the business world. In a recent appeal to President Roosevelt to maintain the prevailing high standards of the foreign service, both in the State and Commerce Departments, the National Foreign Trade Council suggested that coordination of the two services could be helpful only if the essential functions of the commercial units were preserved. The communication emphasized that the United States commercial representatives were established "at the behest and with the cooperation of the foreign trade community."

The letter also recalled that a well-rounded plan for the unification of the State and Commerce services had been worked out by representatives of the two departments in May, 1932. "This document," it was suggested, "should be the basis of future developments in the coordination of the work of both services." Fourteen national organizations interested primarily in foreign trade indorsed this appeal to the President.

No little confusion has arisen in the past because of these overlapping services in the foreign field. There have been notable inequalities in the career services as between the two departments, and these have led, in certain instances, to unfortunate clashes of authority. Such problems, however, might easily be adjusted without destructive action in either department. The memorandum of May, 1932, appears to offer a sound solution, which would at once preserve the high standards of the diplomatic service and retain adequate foreign representation for American trade.

THE FRIENDLY SENATE.

The inconsiderate treatment accorded the District by the Budget Bureau and the rubber-stamp action of the House in approving the appropriations bill will not divert the Senate from its policy of giving the National Capital a square deal. When the House approved the supply bill by default it doubtless realized that the Senate would insist on the maintenance of governmental efficiency here. But the House is in the habit of rubber-stamping everything that comes out of executive chambers. It merely shunted the whole problem of formulating a reasonable supply measure for the District to the Senate subcommittee.

As passed by the House, the District bill would set up three surplus funds. The surplus in the general fund would amount to about $6,000,000; the surplus in the water tax fund to about $765,000, and the surplus in the gasoline tax fund to about $760,000. While the House was not quite so niggardly in drawing upon surplus revenue for needed repair and development work, it would still leave a large sum inactive while men go without work and District property deteriorates for want of care.

Part of the $6,000,000 might be redistributed to taxpayers in the form of reduced levies on real estate. But the people are not anxious to have taxes cut down if it means inadequate school facilities for their children, insufficient police protection, and neglect of public health. The Senate promises to give consideration to these aspects of the District budget which were ignored by the House. If the Senate allows a reasonable Federal contribution to take care of Washington's extraordinary expenses by reason of its being the National Capital, tax reduction can be effected without curtailing essential municipal services.

The people of the District are grateful for the attitude of the Senate in former years. In view of the abandonment of all reason in dealing with Washington's fiscal affairs in the south wing of the Capitol, the residents of Washington now look with even greater reliance upon the Senate as their defender.

MERCHANT SHIPS AND NAVY.

Unsettled world conditions and the failure of the United States to build up the Navy to treaty strength give significance to the radio address delivered yesterday by Admiral Hutchinson I. Cone, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board. The address formed part of the exercises in observance of Army Day.

The new Chairman of the Shipping Board, in discussing the subject, "The Merchant Marine and National Defense," called attention to the peace-time role of merchant vessels as promoters of foreign trade, and sketched the growth of the American Merchant Marine since the war. Looking to the future, he said:

> The United States must maintain a strong position upon the seas if it is to continue as a nation of the first rank. It must maintain a first-class navy comparable to that of any other nation and develop its merchant marine to a point where it can successfully meet all competition and provide the necessary naval and military auxiliaries. It must have available, also, a trained seafaring personnel to function as an efficient naval reserve, together with shipbuilding facilities and skilled artisans adequate to meet its requirements in the event of national emergency. These things, combined, represent the real strength of our nation upon the seas and only by the maintenance of them can we properly serve and protect our national interests.

The designation of Admiral Cone to head the new Shipping Board gives universal satisfaction. His long naval training, including his service during the war, has been rounded out by years of experience with the post-war merchant marine, which he has been instrumental in helping to bring to its present high place among the merchant marines of the world. A man of action and a capable executive, he can be depended upon at all times to safeguard its best interests.

The present drive for economy throughout the Government service may result in changes in the organization and administrative procedure of the Shipping Board and Merchant Fleet Corporation. The appointment of Admiral Cone is a guarantee that whatever changes are made will be effected without detriment to the splendid work already performed in building up American commercial shipping, valuable not only for its peace-time usefulness but as an efficient auxiliary of the Navy for purposes of national defense.

APPROVED INVESTMENTS.

The basic theory of the bill to establish Federal supervision over security issues appears to be open to question. The mere fact that an official board of some sort approves an issue does not make it a sound investment. If recent economic history teaches anything the most conspicuous lesson is that an official O. K.—even if it is informal—does not assure much.

It should not be forgotten that rail security issues have been subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission for some fifteen years.

A great number of foreign issues have been submitted since the war to the hasty scrutiny of the Department of State.

Millions of dollars in shipping stocks have been sold throughout the country since 1920 with the tacit approval of the United States Shipping Board.

Hundreds of millions in defaulted farm mortgages are now in the hands of the Federal Land Banks.

Through the Department of Agriculture, Seedloan Sam is holding the bag on tens of millions in imprudently invested crop advances.

On the whole, it is still a debatable question whether some of the subsidiary shares of the late Ivar Kreuger are not worth more per dollar of face value than some of Uncle Sam's so-called seed loans. And to this day, almost any one would rather hold a thousand dollars' worth of Samuel Insull's "securities" than an equal amount of those Ecuadorean 8's, maturing in 1976, which did not, at the date of issue, conflict with the high policies of the Department of State.

Six men on a government board are no better judges of sound investments than another six sitting around a directors' table in the Empire State Building.

The point should be made clear that government boards always are susceptible to the mortal impulses which rule other men; that every government has some notoriously bad investments on its own books; that whatever government does or does not attempt, prudent men who keep their eyes open will discover from time to time opportunities, develop them, and so grow rich.

Nor is it fantastic to suggest that those who wait for the approved investments of their government board may experience, on the whole, the ups and downs of an awful array of checks-and-balances.

AN OIL COMPROMISE.

The oil conference in Washington demonstrated anew the difficulty of making general regulations to cover extensive areas and differing conditions in a manner that would be satisfactory to all States or all classes of producers. This was evident before the executive conference began. The independent producers and corporate interests were unable to agree among themselves. Divergent views among petroleum producers are as tenaciously held as opinions among farmers regarding relief measures for their industry.

President Roosevelt wisely avoided an attempt to recommend general regulations in matters where widely varying State conditions would render them inapplicable or unjust in many instances. He declined, likewise, in his letters of recommendation to the governors of 17 oil-producing States, to support the suggestion of a shutdown of all flush fields for two weeks.

Executive approval was given the appeal for stopping interstate shipments of illicitly produced oil. This abuse in violation of proration agreements had reached important proportions. The independent producers were supported in their contention that interstate oil pipe lines be divorced from other branches of the industry. The plea of the majority group for strict enforcement of the Federal gasoline tax was likewise approved. In the main, however, President Roosevelt has left the issue of regulating production in the hands of the States where it belongs.

THE PURPOSES OF THE BANKRUPTCY BILL

From the New York Times.

Heavy feet tramped up the stairs to Dr. Joseph I. Herman's dental office on the second floor at 152 Second avenue at 11:30 a. m. yesterday. The dentist heard the feet in the hall and presently a knock at the door.

David Leef, city marshal, presented a dispossess order signed by Municipal Court Justice Abraham Horowitz. Dr. Herman owed $300 in back rent for the offices and his living quarters, which were on the same floor.

The dentist, a man of 40, who had practiced in the neighborhood for years, read the order.

"I can't pay now," he stammered. "I don't know what to do."

Leef was sympathetic, but he had to carry out his assignment. He motioned to his men. They picked up some of the office furniture and started downstairs with it.

The city marshal took the dentist's arm and guided him gently into a reception room. Dr. Herman was taking it hard. His bedridden father, 60, was ill in the rear apartment he explained, and his mother, who is slightly deaf, was attending him.

Suddenly Dr. Herman paused.

"Excuse me a minute, please," he said to the marshal. "I need a drink."

Leef heard the sound of running water in the next room. When Dr. Herman came out again he was paler than before. He thrust a white envelope at the marshal.

"I've written three telephone numbers on the back of this," he said. "Please notify the people when you call them that I've just taken poison. I——"

He dropped at the marshal's feet and he was dead when a doctor from Bellevue Hospital arrived. Leef, deeply shocked, stopped his men when they came up for a second load of furniture.

"Bring back the stuff you took down," he said. "He just took poison. I wish we'd never started this job."

Mrs. David Herman, the dentist's mother, became hysterical when she saw her son's body. News of the death was withheld from the father.

The police were not certain as to what chemical Dr. Herman had taken. In the bathroom they found an empty bottle. The dentist's accounts indicated that patients had not been paying their bills.

Dr. Herman was married, but his wife did not make her home with him, according to the police. One of the three telephone numbers on the envelope was hers.

Chanticleer Hitler will think up something horrible to do to the German people if the world doesn't stop offering less for marks.

At this end of the first week in April beer is no joke.

Congressmen would like to believe that patronage delay is due exclusively to executive duties, but they can't help feeling their situation is a bit more clubby than chummy.

Congress barred beer because it was intoxicating; now it has legalized it because it is not; and it is only necessary to bar it from the Capitol because it is to complete the double back flip-flop.

In welcoming Comrade M——es to the press fraternity it might be well to remind him at the earliest opportunity that without senatorial immunity some things can not be said with impunity.

Michigan elected a convention 99 per cent for repeal. Almost as pure as that wet affiliate, Ivory soap.

When we can get around to it an official guarantor for the guaranteed mortgage will be needed.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE HAPPY GARDENER.

He stopped me on the street, Thought I,
He's going to tell me a tale of woe,
I'd rather men would pass me by
Than talk about the debts they owe.

I knew he'd had his days of care,
As other men; I fancied he Intended to delay me there
To tell a sorry tale to me.

And then he grinned and this said he:
"I know that you are fond of flowers,
I wish you'd drop around and see
That little tulip bed of ours.

They've just come into blossoming,
And there's a bronze one, straight and tall,
That really is a handsome thing!"

I promised that I'd drop around,
Rejoicing in these days of doubt,
That some one in the town I'd found
Who had a joy to talk about.

Men Never Complain About the Tone of the Dinner Bell

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A FEW years ago the members of a certain village church divided over some trivial matter and began to hate one another.

When the quarrel had become too bitter to admit of compromise, the larger faction determined to dismiss the smaller from the church.

This tragic business required a vote. But all members of the church had equal rights, and many of them were too young to know what it was all about. These did not vote their convictions but merely obeyed orders.

When a rising vote was taken, stern-faced parents turned to their children and whispered: "Stand up!" And the children stood.

Those who have authority use it to enlist support in time of controversy.

"Whose bread I eat, his song I sing."

That isn't a popular doctrine in a free country, but it is human nature. And if you support and protect another man and in your time of trial he denies you his support, you regard him as an ingrate and a traitor. That, also, is human nature.

If you have authority, you use it. And, unless you are a rare specimen, the man who herds your cattle for hire is expected to fight your battles for loyalty.

One of the rich men highly honored by the new President employs many helpers. Some time ago he called them together and gave them his opinion of certain proposed legislation.

Then he suggested that each of them take certain steps to influence legislators and intimated that some of them would be jobless if they failed to do as bidden.

Doubtless there are times of national danger when an employer, understanding the situation better than his employes do, is justified in using his influence to awaken and harness their patriotism.

But if you have wit enough to form opinions of your own, there is bitterness in your soul when the boss suggests that you vote as he thinks. No matter how tactfully the suggestion is made, it seems a threat.

A threat it is in some cases. It means, in plain words: "Do as you are told or lose your job."

Therein lies the menace of great fortunes. As billions accumulate under the control of a few men, the few are empowered to think for the many. Liberty of conscience remains, but hirelings must choose between conscience and job.

As surely as two and two make four, so surely will freedom be gone when a few great fortunes provide the Nation's pay roll.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Houston Post.

Home from Washington for a brief time, Representative Joseph W. Bailey tells Texans that the period of easy sailing for President Roosevelt is about over. Pretty soon the new Executive will find the going rougher, he thinks.

Party lines are reappearing in Congress, and also the rise of individuals and groups opposed to probable futher proposals in the President's program. During the first month of the Roosevelt term the emergency was so acute that Congress was willing to forget party differences and individual opinions, and to rally to the support of the President on the ground that such action was necessary to save the country from economic ruin. But with the most pressing emergency legislation out of the way, the unity that has prevailed since March 4 tends to disappear.

On Censorship.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

President Roosevelt has been quick to let it be known that the House official secrets bill, passed hastily with an air of much mystery and shushing, was not sponsored by the White House. It is likely, therefore, that the measure will come in for close scrutiny and considerable amendment in the Senate.

It should receive much scrutiny. While the country is willingly giving the President unprecedented peace-time authority to meet the national emergency, it is well not to do anything to muzzle the press.

And We Need One.

Detroit Free Press.

The President's program may not be perfect, probably it isn't. But it is a program.

From the Roots Up.

Chicago News.

The Government plans to fight unemployment by reforestation projects. Going to the root of the matter?

Industry Curves Upward.

Buffalo Courier Express.

It is apparently a lucky twist of fortune for them that a St. Louis plant has recalled 68 of its old pretzel benders.

Arkansas City Traveler.

If the action taken by Mr. Roosevelt and Congress relieves the existing emergency, it does not cure the ills of the country. Nor does it prevent a recurrence of the madness that brought on the depression. We believe there are steps the Federal Government can take to stabilize industrial expansion and employment. We don't believe these wracking economic cycles are necessary. They are man-made, not nature's manifestations.

Real Centralization.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

The order of President Roosevelt consolidating all farm credit agencies into the "Farm Credit Administration" is the new President's first step in the direction of real centralization of governmental functions. It terminates certain powers of the consolidated bureaus and places the remainder of them virtually in the hands of one man, the governor of the Farm Credit Administration.

The consolidation should effect a considerable saving by putting an end to various overlapping bureaus. But it does more.

The costly and futile stabilization operations of the Farm Board, which lost the Government approximately $350,000,000, are ended by the order.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

All Loyal Americans Called Upon to Support President Roosevelt—"He Will Win."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We have a man in the White House with the will to win, and he will win. The money changers, the Wall street shylocks and financial bootleggers and hijackers will be driven from power.

During a Republican administration, several of our best naval vessels, costing many millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money, were taken out and sunk in Chesapeake Bay—used for target practice. Our Navy now ranks about third in strength. In order to get it back to number one in rank, the taxpayers will have to be taxed again to build vessels to take the places of those that were so foolishly destroyed.

The people of the United States have confidence that under the leadership of President Roosevelt the country will soon return to normalcy, and the ship of state will come into the harbor safe and sound.

The promptness and dispatch with which President Roosevelt met the financial crisis proves beyond a doubt that the people of this country made no mistake when they elected him in November. Now is the time for all loyal American citizens, without regard to party, creed or previous condition of servitude to get together and give President Roosevelt their whole-hearted and loyal support.

Japanese Cherry Blossoms Now Appearing—Beauty of Washington in Spring.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Spring comes quickly in Washington. Willows are greening and hardy pansies and crocus gold are already abloom in sheltered areas. The Capital is on the half-way line for migrating birds. We hear many northern species here both in spring and fall, in addition to the songsters that are with us all summer. The robins have long been urging an end of winter and now the greening trees are filled morning and evening with the rich notes of many varieties of song birds.

The famous Japanese cherry blossoms are promised for next Sunday. The first to come are the pink single blossoms on the trees surrounding the Tidal Basin, followed, as they fade after several weeks of beauty, by the double blossoms that line the Speedway along the Potomac and around Hains Point.

The trees of Washington's parks and those that arch over the avenues are at the height of their beauty in the spring. A visitor is struck by the great variety of green hues that abound in the trees of the Capital.

Rock Creek Park, with its unspoiled natural beauty, is at its best and the views from the bridges crossing its verdant expanse are worthy of frequent visits.

VIATOR.

Labor and the Machine — Shorter Work Day and Week Necessary to Restore Equilibrium.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A friend doesn't agree when I maintain that the only practical remedy for present business conditions is a short work day and week. He says the machine has nothing to do with it. The machine, I'm told, can not be responsible, because all the machines are now idle. Not all; but that is beside the issue. It is not what the machines are now doing, but what they have been doing. The chief menace to business traffic these days is the great number of trailing mentalities on the road.

It isn't necessary for the average factory to run full time any more. The up-to-date plant can turn out enough in three months to more than supply the trade for the year. Industry insists on producing things for the public to buy without giving adequate spending power.

Many of the now employed are not of the spending class; they either hoard their earnings or gamble in Wall street. And they spend less now than ever before. The people who would spend have nothing to spend. Present and contemplated laws may materially help, but unless the rugged individual is lined up, the slump will return. We want prosperity outside as well as inside the poorhouse.

PADRIAC LAGAN.

Danger to Honest Business in Bureaucratic Dictatorship.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to congratulate the gentleman who wrote the editorial "No Business Dictator," in The Post of April 4. If passed as indicated in some newspaper reports it will "throttle business with bureaucratic dictatorship."

Honest business men, and their number is legion, will be square, and it is devoutly hoped that the bill will be so passed as not to discourage men who must have ample capital to carry on their business and may find it necessary to incorporate and sell some of the stock for that purpose.

Again, many congratulations, and the hope the article will so sink in Congress as to help those who are making every effort to help good business get on its feet without the "internal, external and infernal" delays which are bound to be a part of a "bureaucratic dictatorship."

CHARLES W. REED.

Put Plain-Clothes Men at Work and Cut Down Traffic Crime.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I see that the Washington Chamber of Commerce favors "the creation of a special detective squad to hunt down hit-and-run drivers." I am glad the idea of plain-clothes traffic cops is beginning to catch on. With plain-clothes traffic-law enforcement in operation the drop in the yearly number of motorist accidents would be something for the National Capital to boast about.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE

COMBATING CONTRARINESS.

A GREAT many children go through a stage when they say "I won't" to every suggestion. Usually this occurs at about 2 to 3 years of age, the time when the child is subjected to a great many demands made by the adult world.

It is at this time the child hears "Don't" a good many times in a single hour, that he is punished for disobedience, that he is required to eat all sorts of new foods, that he is expected not to cry when he is angry and that he must submit daily to the restraint of many of his natural impulses to climb, throw, handle, hit and be noisy.

In short, it is the time when the nature with which he was brought into the world is submitted suddenly to the most rigorous discipline. No wonder he frequently tries to assert his own will against all comers. No wonder that conflicts are arising continually as a result.

The best way to prevent this phase from becoming acute is to give the child as few occasions as possible for asserting his will against yours. This can be done through never crossing his wishes except when it is really necessary and then doing it in such a way that the child feels that he is being led rather than forced.

He will, for instance, sometimes give up an undesirable plaything if another attractive one is offered him in exchange. He will do in the spirit of play what he would never do at a command.

The look on your face, your voice, your manner suggest to him the response he will make. Either you betray that you expect him to be naughty and that you are ready for battle, or you show through calmness and assurance that you expect him to do what you want.

Now That Beer's Here Let the Meanderer Advise on Accessories.

FEATURES FOR WOMEN

The Meanderer

Finds More Brown Bread, Pretzels and Beer Glasses; Week-End Grocery and Bakery Suggestions.

Going home from a chain store in many family market baskets are new, long, sliced loaves of rye bread and bags or boxes of pretzels. The rye bread is selling by the thousands of loaves today. The popularity of this bread probably is due to its full rye flavor without the seeds.

"We sold pretzels only occasionally," the chain-store manager told the Meanderer, "until the last few days, and now we can hardly keep them in stock." The pretzels in pound packages are 27 cents and the bulk pretzels are 19 cents a pound.

Hob-nail beer mugs, to please the housewife who has gone in for reproductions of old glassware, sell for 50 cents each in the chinaware section of a large F street department store. For the party celebrations where the use of the thicker mug style of service may not be suitable, the department store suggests eight tumblers of the safe, nonnicking-edge type of good quality glassware, selling for 81 for the rest of this week. The eight glasses may be marked with the purchaser's initials free of charge, in hand-worked copper etching in Old English or diamond-shaped letters.

A big value in assorted colors of paper napkins, 125 in a package for 25 cents, is shown in the department store featuring the lettered glasses. "Lacettes," the cellophane doilies which do not curl up with moisture as do paper doilies, are useful in informal entertaining. They come in many sizes, patterns and colors and their cost is nominal. These cellophane doilies resemble lace very closely, especially when under glass for tray or bedroom use.

Diced candy in mint flavor, and in other flavors packed in square glass containers decorated with bright colored dots are 50 cents. The containers have well fitted glass lids which make them useful for icebox dishes when the candy is gone.

Fresh cocoanut pies made in an F street store's bake shop are being featured this week-end for 30 cents. The same shop's chocolate fudge cake is 35 cents for week-end selling.

Rye or cheese muffins for beer celebrations may be baked handily in paper baking cups which sell 100 for 10 cents in the paper goods department of an F street store.

Today's Recipe

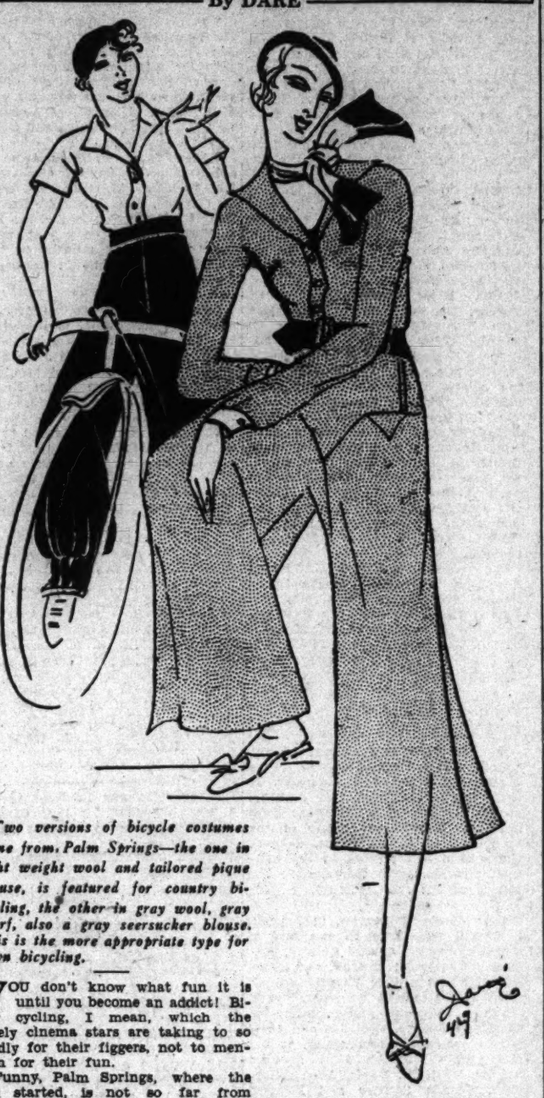
Queen Crumb Cake.

2 cups flour
2-3 cup fat
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon soda
1¼ teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup milk
½ cup chopped nuts
½ cup chopped dates

Mix flour, fat and sugar together until crumbly. Reserve 2-3 cup of these crumbs and add remaining crumbs to rest of ingredients. Beat 2 minutes. Pour into shallow pan lined with waxed paper. Sprinkle reserved crumbs over top. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. Cut in bars and serve fresh.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE



Two versions of bicycle costumes come from Palm Springs—the one in light weight wool and tailored pique blouse, is featured for country bicycling, the other in gray wool, gray scarf, also a gray seersucker blouse. This is the more appropriate type for town bicycling.

YOU don't know what fun it is until you become an addict! Bicycling, I mean, which the lovely cinema stars are taking to so avidly for their figgers, not to mention for their fun.

Funny, Palm Springs, where the fad started, is not so far from Dawn Mirage—although I am! Used to be horses, but the poor beasts have gone the way of all flesh in the interests of economy—and a bicycle seems to eat much less! Whatever it is, that there is a revival of bicycling there can be no doubt—and all the Hollywood and Los Angeles stores are crammed with suitable togs for this sport.

Needless to say, trousers are indispensable. Some ladies with what can well meet the eye, enjoy their bicycling in shorts. But mostly the long trousers prevail, or the trouser skirt if you wish. I sketched two types of bicycle costumes for you today—one, the tight at the ankle trousers, which one wears with sports blouse or jacket or sweater, according to the weather. The other, a divided skirt, in gray. This was worn with a matching pique blouse, and a gay red patent leather belt. This is the costume one wears around town, the first is what one wears in the country.

As a means of transportation, as a new fad, as a health measure and as a figure preserver—bicycling!

How many old hats have you that you think you can never wear again? Or maybe you are wearing 'em, and hating 'em all the time! Well, you can change all that by just sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, because it is full of ways and means of making new hats out of old. You can, whether you are clever with your fingers or not, too. And since you have nothing to lose, the hats being old ones anyhow—don't you think it worth while to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the leaflet?

Mother of pearl, often called "nacre" in the fashion bulletins, is seen everywhere, used by both modiste and couturier. And star sapphires or their imitation, are new and particularly lovely with the misty blue that is a feature for evening in evening gowns.

• • • •

Smart women are wearing short, brightly colored boleros over the decollete of their dark dresses. Some of these jackets or boleros, all with sleeves, you know, are of paillette net, or of heavy cut-out lace-like fabric. Something vaporous and transparent that widens the shoulder line and makes a gown less formal, or something rich and bright that dresses up a plain dinner gown, seem to be the two divisions into which have fallen today's evening jackets. One wears an evening wrap over these, of course, because their aim is certainly not one of warmth!

• • • •

The tight blouse, or moulded bodice, is on the way out. Better look to your bodices, as it were. This fullness is found in many different ways, but there it is—the continued width of the sleeve perhaps responsible. Wear out your tight bodice frock while ye may—because by fall they won't be in style, I say.

• • • •

Fringed evening dresses are to be taken into consideration without a doubt. The fact is that fringe has been too long demode, I think—and so apparently does the Haute Couture, by the fact that there was at least one, if not more, in every collection. Fringe has ever been graceful and fluid, and for the woman who does not wear ruffles and the lovely but too feminine lines of the one-half of the mode today, fringe is perfect. It is sophistication in itself, and sophistication lending!

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

NEUROTICS AND THEIR COUSINS.

PHYSICIANS divide the psychoneurotics into three groups: Those with neurasthenia, those with psychasthenia and those with hysteria. The neurasthenics have aches, pains and disorders of many kinds. They sleep poorly, have poor appetites, are apt to be constipated, and complain of poor memories. They tire easily, both physically and mentally. But in spite of their multitudinous symptoms physicians can not find much that is wrong with them. Although they have much to complain of they are apt to live long.

The psychasthenics have more mental disturbance, but they have fewer physical disorders. They worry and are always anxious. They become fatigued mentally and physically more quickly than the neurasthenics. Their disorders are more in the emotional and mental than in the physical field. They have a variety of phobias, morbid fears, obsessions and peculiarities of behavior. While they complain about their mental disorders and those they think their neighbors have, they are not apt to say much about their livers and their lights.

The hysterics are the third group. Their symptoms and obsessions are quite apt to be purposeful. They generally have a reason for an outbreak, though they usually mask it very well. In major hysteria the outbreak generally takes the form of rather violent explosion of grief, joy, or something else that is in the field of the emotional, though there may be many physical manifestations.

Of these three, hysteria has almost disappeared, but the other two are holding their own, or perhaps becoming more prevalent. One or the other or several in combination are responsible for many of the personality disorders that make it impossible for people to get on with their marital partners, other members of the family, in the factory, the store and the office. They make many, if not most, of the failures in life in the sense that the subjects are not happy, contented, useful citizens doing their share of the world's work.

Three great men—Adler, Jung and Freud—have contributed to the solution of the enormous problem of the misfits who are so because of personality disorder. Freud attempts to explain them largely on the ground of sex relations. He tries to cure them by psychoanalysis and having them convince themselves that their supposed troubles are really unimportant, at least, far less so than they have considered them. Jung thinks neurotics are so because they are unwilling to grow up and face the realities and difficulties of life. Adler ascribes the trouble to a defeated will power.

Dr. Mary G. Schroeder, of the staff of the Elgin Hospital, in common with most of the psychiatrists, accepts the Adler point of view. She says that 90 per cent of all neurotics are produced by the overindulgence and cruelty of mothers. She quotes Jung as calling them "the terrible mothers."

Adler is quoted as saying that 80 per cent are due to overindulgent mothers and 10 per cent to cruel mothers, totaling his 90 per cent. He says that the overindulgent mother places the child in the center of the stage, where he is allowed to become a domestic tyrant. This desire for power becomes a ruling passion and when the child finds the world unwilling to continue him on the throne where his parents put him he considers himself abused and neglected. Out of this attitude the personality disorder flows. Basically, this is not very far from Jung's opinion. Maybe nature put the child in the center of the stage; the mother only failed to lead him away from it. Maybe father failed, also. Maybe all of use lent a hand.

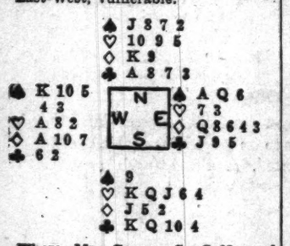
REVERSING SOUND THEORY.

THERE has recently grown up a small cult of players, fortunately centered mostly in New York, who are making a practice of reversing the principle, adhered to for years by all bridge players, that greater strength is required for an Opening bid in third or fourth position, after partner has passed, than in the position of first or second to speak. The time-honored theory is based upon the sound principle that the purpose of the auction in contract is to disclose strength. If a player has a bid, he makes it, provided, of course, no other player has already spoken, and his very failure to bid under these conditions clearly suggests that he does not have the strength to justify the making of a bid.

The illogical theory, followed by some Contract players, of passing very strong hands in first or second position and opening weak ones Third or Fourth Hand does not pay in the long run in the Rubber Bridge, and assuredly not in Duplicate. An interesting example of the fallacy of passing Opening bids occurred in one of the recent sessions of the Eastern pair championship in New York City. The hand was:

South, Dealer.
East-West, vulnerable.



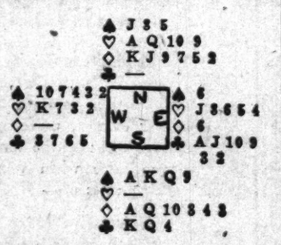
Where Mr. George S. Coffin, of Boston, and Mr. C. C. Read, of New York, were sitting, South and North, respectively, they had agreed to try out this method of bidding. South, therefore, passed his hand, which, of course, justified the making of a bid. West passed, and North, holding only 1½ honor-tricks, also passed. East had barely two honor-tricks, and as a result the board was passed out.

An analysis of the cards held shows that North and South can make four hearts against anything but the most exact defense. The most that East and West can make is two spades. It is, of course, doubtful whether the hand would be bid to game by the North and South players, but, in any event, whether playing Rubber or Duplicate Bridge and whether the stakes are money, marbles or chalk, by following this method of bidding, the North and South players forego a valuable part-score or the opportunity to inflict a worth-while penalty upon vulnerable opponents in case they should disregard the dangers of overbidding and seek to secure the contract.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

With the hand below, should North and South reach a Grand Slam, and what would be the steps in the bidding if East overcalled North's Opening bid of one diamond with two clubs?

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The answer will be given in tomorrow's article.

A New Yorker at Large

By MARK BARRON.

New York—With the exception of the West Forty-seventh street station, probably the most colorful police precinct in town is the Old Slip station down on the waterfront.

Here is stationed the squad of detectives who ferret out criminal plots on incoming and outgoing ships. Their chief duty is to keep check on the army of gamblers and thieves who seek their victims on transatlantic liners.

They Get Their Man.

For a fugitive from justice to arrive or depart on the steamer is practically the same as him walking through a police station. He can't stroll across a gangplank without one of the Old Slip detectives being there to look him over.

As a police reporter some years ago, I dropped into Old Slip just in time to witness something of a historic incident in police annals. For the first time, a telephoto, or picture transmitted by wire, was used to trap a criminal.

The fellow had robbed a bank in a Midwestern State and fled to Mexico. He was traced to Vera Cluz, but there the trail was lost. Finally it was discovered he was on a steamer, but this was found out only a few hours before the boat was due to dock in New York.

There were several hundred passengers aboard, and the Old Slip detectives knew it would be almost impossible to get their man unless they could identify him.

The telephoto at that time was still practically in the experimental stage, it having been used only a few times by newspapers. But the Old Slip sleuths thought it was worth trying, so they asked the chief of police in the Midwestern town to rush them a picture of the fugitive on the telephoto. As the bank robber stepped down the gang plank he was identified from the picture. A detective stepped up and tapped the very much surprised fugitive on the shoulder.

At first he protested that he was not the man, but when he was shown the telephoto of himself in the Old Slip station, he made a full confession.

Dance War.

One of the more amusing quarrels in this Manhattan circus has Mayfair and Roseland as antagonists.

Mayfair is the swanky, ultra exclusive club which caters to stage and society celebrities. Roseland is a taxi dance hall on Broadway which has a clientele largely made up of shop girls and clerks.

Later Mayfair announced they would stage a "Lindy Hop" contest, a feature which is staged weekly at Roseland.

Wherewith Roseland charged the Park avenue crowd with trying "to steal their stuff" and they asked for an injunction to stop Mayfair from doing the "Lindy Hop."

Adas Israel Will Hold Pre-Passover Service.

Special services will be held tonight at the Adas Israel Congregation, Sixth and I streets northwest. This service will be known as the Service of the Great Sabbath, since is precedes the celebration of the feast of Passover, which begins at sundown next Monday, and lasts until Tuesday, April 18.

Rabbi Solomon H. Metz's subject for the evening sermon will be on "What of the Night?" Following the regular services, the round table forum will be held in the vestry rooms of the synagogue, led by Morris Wewirz.

"Day of Recollection" Sunday.

The Rev. Francis Burke, S. J., of Georgetown University, will give a "Day of Recollection" at Nazareth Social Center, 200 I street northwest, Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Other conferences are scheduled for 3:30 p. m. and 4:30 p. m., the beginning of the Holy Hour services.

A Style A Day

Cotton fabric for both gloves and shoes is much talked about. These gloves are piqué and the oxfords striped cotton trimmed with leather.

Educator Makes Plea For Increase in Taxes

Spokane, Wash., April 6 (A.P.).—A call to educators to "go out and fight for more taxes" was sounded by Miss Elizabeth Fish, of Minneapolis, to the Inland Empire Education Association today.

"The big question before America is not lower taxes," said Miss Fish, who is principal of a girls' vocational high school, explaining she believed it to be more sane spending. "Taxes must go up, not down, if the schools are properly to meet the problems of this depression," she said.

Hookey Is Blamed For School Strike

Chicago Teachers Doubt Salary Nonpayment Caused Walkout.

Chicago, April 6 (A.P.).—To the accompaniment of "spring fever hookey" charges, the striking student movement, to force payment of teachers from an empty treasury, alternately ebbed and gained strength in Chicago high schools today, although many who started it yesterday had returned to classrooms.

School authorities estimated about 12,000 students were absent today. Many recruits were added to the waning original insurgent groups.

School teachers were inclined to doubt whether nonpayment of instructors was the underlying cause for the walkout. This being spring, several pointed out, with the outdoors exerting its seasonal lure, most of the pupils were merely utilizing the teachers' financial plight as a convenient springboard.

P.-T. A. Invited to Hold 1934 Convention Here

The National Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations was invited by the District Board of Education yesterday to hold its 1934 convention in Washington.

The congress meets next month in Seattle, Wash. The invitation was sent by Dr. J. Hayden Johnson, president of the board.

What Today Means to You

"ARIES."

IF April 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6:20 a. m. to 7:30 a. m., from 1:45 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 7:15 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

Social or business advancement of some sort may come to you on this day. You may perhaps find yourself involved in a situation that will prove a real test of character; guard against temptations that come to you garbed in misleading dress.

The child born on this April 7 will show himself to be a very emotional little one when with loved ones. To strangers he will show a cold exterior. Great ability in the use of his hands for artistic purposes. Not a roving nature, but one who will greatly enjoy his home.

If April 7 is the date of your birth, you are undoubtedly a person who takes a vital interest in a great many things. Primarily, you are interested in people, their actions and reactions to various situations. You have a strong desire to help them in the working out of their problems and your approach may be one of several. You may have a strong interest in the spiritual welfare of a group, or your approach may be psychological, medical, or possibly purely economic. One thing certain, you are not a meddlesome person. Also, you know human nature well enough to appreciate the fact that a helpful hand at the wrong time or to the wrong person may be detrimental to proper character building. You are quick to discern faults of character not apparent to the casual observer and you seem to have a rare ability to ferret out information concerning people and problems, and to be able to apply it to a good use.

Born on April 7, you are a person of great deliberation; you speak and act with caution, you avoid hurting another's feelings whenever possible, yet at the same time you are direct and firm in your contacts with others. You do not allow pleasure to interfere with business and in affairs of the heart you seem able always to maintain a fairly detached position. You are a good mate and parent, your friends are not, however, all in the home.

Successful people born on April 7: William Ellery Channing, clergyman.
Charles F. Barnard, philanthropist.
Jacques Loeb, physiologist.
Lewis Nixon, shipbuilder.
William A. Pinkerton, detective.
William Wadsworth, poet.

BRITAIN TO BOYCOTT ALL RUSSIAN GOODS

Embargo Passes Commons; Designed as Weapon in Vickers Dispute.

London, April 6 (A.P.).—The House of Commons gave third reading tonight to the government bill which would empower the cabinet to declare an embargo against all Russian goods. The measure was sent to the House of Lords and it is expected to become effective April 18 on the expiration of the present Anglo-Russian trade agreement.

The House vote was 291 to 41. Opposition Liberals who abstained from voting when the measure received second reading last night supported the government in the final vote. They switched over after being assured the measure would be effective for three months only.

This assurance from the government was taken as an indication that the embargo would be applied only as a weapon in dealing with the cases of the six British engineers who are facing trial in Russia on charges of espionage and sabotage.

Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, said it was hoped the wide powers of the bill never would be used. He remarked that this was a matter resting with the Soviet authorities.

League to Assist In Unifying China

Dr. Rajchman Ordered to Orient to Coordinate Modernization.

Geneva, April 6 (A.P.).—The League of Nations has thrown its entire organization behind the movement for reconstruction and modernization of China with the departure tonight for China of Dr. Ludwik Rajchman, director of the health section of the league, who has been instructed to coordinate educational, transit and labor movements in the Eastern republic.

This action is in fulfillment of the Lytton report, which held that the development of law and order required centralization of China's efforts to rebuild. It was pointed out that the mission is technical, but it was admitted that it will also probably be political.

Japanese circles gave importance to the mission as a league gesture to unify China. Already there has been some talk that Japan may never carry out her intention to quit the league.

Shell-Shocked Brother Is Found After 7 Years

Tiffin, Ohio, April 6 (A.P.).—A seven-year search by Harry Woods for his missing brother, Edwin, a shell-shocked World War veteran, ended today when the Federal Identification Bureau notified the searcher his brother had been located in Ruthferfordton, N. C.

The local American Legion post began arrangements immediately for the brother's return. Harry Woods said the brother disappeared in 1926, after being robbed of his identification papers, which later were used by the robbers to collect his Government compensation. The Identification Bureau reported the veteran was identified through Army fingerprint records.

PLANNED CAPITAL PARLEYS EXTENDED BY ROOSEVELT

two statesmen was marked by a minimum of official verbiage and a warm undercurrent of friendliness. The President said:

"Ever since my conversations with the British Ambassador at Warm Springs, I have been hopeful that you might find it possible to visit Washington. I should particularly welcome such a visit in the near future, as the preparations for the world economic conference, of which you will be president, are entering a more intensive stage and because of the need for making further progress toward practical disarmament. In my judgment the world situation calls for realistic action; the people themselves in every nation ask it. I, therefore, hope that you will find yourself free to come to Washington during the present month. If you can come, I trust that you will stay with us at the White House and bring with you any of your family you may desire."

Same Friendliness.

The same personal friendliness was evident in the MacDonald reply. The prime minister said:

"I am most touched by your friendly invitation to me to come to Washington to discuss with you the preparations for the world economic conference and the need for making further progress toward practical disarmament. My colleagues with whom I have discussed the matter urge me to agree; and it is with the greatest possible pleasure that I accept your invitation.

"If it is convenient to you, I will leave England by the Berengaria on April 15, returning by the same boat. I shall be very happy indeed to stay with you at the White House."

Daughter to Come, Also.

Mr. MacDonald will be accompanied by his daughter, Ishbel, and probably will remain in Washington three or four days or perhaps less. It will be necessary for him to miss as little time as possible from Parliament and for this reason his stay will necessarily be extremely limited.

American Ambassador at Large Norman H. Davis is now on his way to Berlin to confer with Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neurath on the purview of the German-American discussions which will be undertaken shortly after the arrival of the new German Ambassador, Dr. Hans Luther, well known financial authority and one time German representative to the Bank of International Settlements. During the course of the Davis-Von Neurath interview, Ambassador Davis will personally go over with the German foreign minister the probable details of the White House interview and the more particular problems embracing the economic interests of the two countries that will be on the carpet.

Threatening Shadow.

The State Department was unable to throw any light on the probable nature or date of the Canadian-American talks. However, there is even greater necessity from a purely commercial point of view for a Canadian-American understanding in advance of the world economic conference than there is for almost any other country. The Ottowa agreements still cast a threatening shadow athwart the Canadian boundary and the restriction of American exports to America's hitherto best customer has caused profound uneasiness in American commercial markets. During his conversations with Canadian Minister William D. Herridge in New York before he came to Washington, President Roosevelt expressed his satisfaction at any future interview between himself and Canadian Prime Minister Bennett. Since that time, however, the Canadian-American conversations have not made any further progress in the face of the concentrated discussions between the Department of State and the British Ambassador. The probability is that a date will be fixed shortly for an interview between the two statesmen where the reciprocal points of tariff friction between the two countries can be discussed and perhaps eliminated.

In a general way, the President is anxious to see represented in Washington all the major countries with problems affecting the commercial or economic interests of the country. For this reason, the invitation to Japan is still in a theoretical phase. Undoubtedly, the relations between the United States and Japan in the Far East will be improved by a discussion here similar to the Anglo-American talks that the arrival of Prime Minister MacDonald will inaugurate. But the definite decision to invite Japan is still not made.

Speculation Over Decision.

There was some speculation over the decision of the President to invite France to the bilateral parleys on seemingly the same plane as Great Britain and Italy, countries that had fulfilled their financial indebtedness to this Government last December. The French payment is still deferred, although there has been considerable report that the new Ambassador would bring with him the glad tidings of an eventual payment.

Of course, it is not believed that the President will sit down and talk intergovernmental debts with the French mission, with their lapsed payment still hanging over their heads. Some informal assurance is believed to be in the offing with regard to the deferred sum of $20,000,000. Reports from Paris indicate, however, that the French government is reluctant to make any commitment on its deferred payment, until the United States makes some preliminary provision for lifting the June 15 payment. A fortnight ago, assurances were given at the White House that this Government would make no concessions on the next intergovernmental payment from European nations and that this payment would be expected as specified in the contract.

Levee Dynamiting Effort Is Failure

Vicksburg, Miss., April 6 (A.P.).—A reported attempt to dynamite a levee near Silver City and a minor break in the levee system northeast of Greenwood today added new tenseness to the flood-threatened Mississippi Delta while additional rains promised greater burdens for streams already dangerously swollen.

The United States Government district engineer's office here was advised that an attempt had been made to dynamite the levee north of Silver City on the Yazoo River in Humphreys County, but the damage was quickly repaired. A previous dynamiting in the Cassidy Bayou area by unidentified persons attempting to relieve high water pressure elsewhere, resulted in flooding of several thousands of acres of Tallahatchie County lowlands.

Government engineers were also advised today of a minor break in the Teoc levee five miles above Greenwood but here also the gap was quickly filled.

Robert E. Daniels Rites Tomorrow

Truck Driver Is Absolved in Death of Schoolboy Patrolman.

Funeral services for Robert E. Daniels, 12-year-old school boy patrolman, of 311 N street southwest, who was killed Wednesday when crushed under the wheels of a truck at Four-and-a-half and M streets southwest, will be held at 8:30 a. m. today at his home, followed by mass at St. Dominic's Church. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Ellis K. McFadden, colored, 45, of Arlington, Va., driver of the truck, was absolved by a coroner's jury yesterday. He testified he attempted to stop his truck when he saw the youth run in front of the machine. Examination of the truck's brakes revealed that they were in good condition.

John Lohman, 10, of 1346 Four-and-a-half street, and Walter Cline, Jr., 9, of 1326 Four-and-a-half street, testified they were with Robert when the fatal accident occurred. Both told the jury that all three had started to cross the street, but on seeing the truck two of them turned back, of which Daniels was one. He ran into the path of the truck and was knocked to the pavement.

German Leaders To See Mussolini

Von Papen and Goering to Pay Rome Unofficial Week-End Visit.

Rome, April 6 (A.P.).—An "unofficial" visit to Rome will be made over the week-end by Vice Chancellor von Papen of Germany and Hermann Goering, German minister without portfolio, it was learned today.

The statesmen will arrive Saturday for conferences with Premier Mussolini concerning the latter's four-power peace plan, French reaction to the plan and other relations between Italy and Germany.

Relations between the National Socialist party in Germany and the church in that country also will be discussed by the visiting statesmen with Pope Pius, it was said at the Vatican.

Hope for Solving Brain's Acts Seen

Great Progress Made in Last Quarter Century, Says Professor.

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—If all the apparatus of telegraph, telephone and wireless in North America could be squeezed into a half-gallon cup, it would be less intricate than one human brain.

So Prof. C. Judson Herrick, of the University of Chicago, stated tonight in an address at the American Museum of Natural History.

But notwithstanding the complications of the brain, he predicted that science may hope some day to learn how this organ performs the work of thinking. The last quarter century, he said, has gone farther toward the solution of this puzzle than of the years preceding. Aids to the solution include new instruments such as oscillographs and tube amplifiers.

HERBERT N. STRAUS DEAD IN NEW YORK

Mr. Straus, president of L. Bamberger & Co., Newark department store, and vice president of R. H. Macy & Co., of New York, was a brother of Jesse Isidor Straus, recently appointed Ambassador to France. He was 51.

Mr. Straus was said by members of his family to have been suffering from a heart ailment for six weeks.

A native of New York, Mr. Straus was educated at Harvard University. During the World War he turned from his business activities to become a member of the Hoover Food Administration in Washington and later to serve as controller of the War Trade Board.

Jesse Isidor Straus, asked if his brother's death would alter his plans to sail for France on April 25, said "I have not had time to think about that yet."

The third member of the triumvirate of "merchant princes" is Percy S. Straus, who yesterday succeeded Jesse Isidor Straus as president of R. H. Macy & Co. The latter resigned to take over the French ambassadorship.

Herbert Nathan Straus was the youngest of the three sons of Isidor and Ida Blun Straus, who were lost in the Titanic disaster in 1912.

Pope at Rite

Vatican City, April 6 (A.P.).—On his knees in St. Peter's Cathedral this afternoon, Pope Pius commemorated the anguish of Christ 1,900 years ago in the Garden of Gethsemani.

As he knelt in silence Cardinal Pacelli and Cardinal Serafini prayed for Divine help to relieve unemployment and to restore world peace, for heavenly intervention in behalf of the "martyrs languishing in Russian prisons and exiled in Siberia."

A priest of the Basilica recited prayers in commemoration of the holy hour—the exact time at which the Lord suffered in the garden. With the Pontiff were the full pontifical court, the Sacred College of Cardinals and the diplomatic corps accredited to the Vatican.

It was his second visit to the cathedral in this holy year, which began last Sunday. The ceremony, including the Communion and the papal benediction, took place under the central altar, over the tomb of St. Peter.

Colorful as this ceremony was, it was simple in comparison with that which will attend the visit of the Pope to the cathedral on Easter Sunday when he will say a special mass and bestow his blessing from an outside balcony upon the Papal Diocese of Rome.

Stocks Again Climb Higher, Guided by Commodity Rises

Eight-Tenths Gain Added as Sales Mount to 1,232,020 Shares.

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—Speculative interest in the commodity advance quickened today and with this broader activity went appreciation in stock prices.

Shares, bubbling up 1 to more than 3 points at the outset, encountered enough sales thereafter to whittle down the rise, although net gains of 1 to 2 were fairly numerous. Commodity issues, such as foods, metals, farm implements and steels, tended to resist occasional pressure, but utilities might have been stronger. Rails appeared relieved by denial of rumors that Chicago & North Western faced immediate reorganization and by word that preparations had been made to meet its May 1 obligations.

Shares up a point or two net included Chicago & North Western common and preferred, Northern Pacific, New York Central, Santa Fe, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Can, Chrysler, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, Consolidated Gas, Inland Steel and Macy. Case, Corn Products, American Sugar, U. S. Smelting, International Silver, Goodyear, Penney, St. Joseph Lead, American Smelting and Procter & Gamble improved from half a point to about 2. Turnover was 1,232,020 shares.

Neither Government bonds nor the dollar suggested that those markets were worrying about possible inflation. Wall street is still wondering just how this contentious issue is to turn—whether there is to be controlled inflation to the extent that the long price decline will be halted without recourse to currency depreciation. At present, speculators for the rise appear to be giving the chief impetus to markets, as they endeavor to anticipate possible developments.

Reduction in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rate to 3 per cent from 3½ was smaller than had been expected in some quarters in view of the weakening of open market money rates. The bank lifted its rate to 3½ per cent just before the banking holiday when extraordinary demands had severely tightened all forms of credit. That the situation has eased swiftly has long been apparent and the new rate is still above charges for short-term accommodations. Thirty to 90 day bills are currently quoted at 1¼ asked.

It was thought that the Government's latest gold ruling, a demand that sums above $100 be exchanged for currency, would hasten the return of metal from hoards which already have disgorged about $600,000,000. Bankers pointed out that gold thus returned would provide a basis for credit expansion along familiar and normal lines.

Business news was rather routine. Columbia Gas & Electric directors reduced the quarterly common dividend to 20 cents from 25 cents, payable in preferred stock, as has been the company's custom for a year. Reading voted a regular quarterly disbursement of 25 cents a share on its capital stock, the chief owners of which are New York Central and Baltimore & Ohio.

Bonds.

A fight to advance under rail leadership was lost and the market declined one-tenth of a point. Japanese bonds recovered. Sales fell off in volume to $10,342,000.

Curb.

A dozen leaders improved in trend on a more active market. Mining issues, oils and foods were among the beneficiaries. Sales advanced in volume to 140,000 shares.

Wheat.

Trading broadened and prices of wheat soared 7¾ cents at one time. Corn, oats and rye joined the upturn. Agitation for money inflation was given credit for the advance. May wheat sold at 57⅝ to 57¾ cents.

Cotton.

Commission house and trade buying sent prices up 9 to 10 points. July closed at 6.67; May at 6.50. Liverpool was a seller in New York.

BONDS STAGE LOSING FIGHT UNDER RAILS

Efforts to Advance Fail on Lighter Sales Volume of $10,342,000.

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—The bond market, led by some of the rails, made a valiant effort to steam upgrade today, but slipped back in late trading to just about where it started.

Gains of 1 to 6 points in Chicago & Northwestern Railway issues generally were maintained, but advances of 4 points or more in some other hopeful transportation liens were either whittled down to fractions or transformed into small losses. The majority of the utilities and industrials dropped back to around their levels of yesterday and foreign obligations were again depressed by weakness of the Germans. The United States Government section, however, continued to edge up fractionally.

Federal loans were sustained by forecasts of a reduction in the rediscount rate of the New York Reserve Bank, easier money conditions generally and a quiet, but steady, demand both from public and institutional sources. The rediscount rate was cut to 3 from 3½ per cent after the market closed. Gains in this section ranged from 4-32 to 14-32 of a point.

The rally of the Chicago & North Western group, after a sharp slump yesterday, followed an announcement that the holders of 87½ per cent of the 5 per cent debentures, due May 1, had approved a plan for refunding this issue. Other rail gainers included some loans of Union Pacific, Chesapeake Corporation, Rock Island, Cuba Northern, Erie, Illinois Central, New York Central and Frisco. A heavy tone was displayed by issues of Iron Mountain, Pere Marquette and Baltimore & Ohio.

There was a heavy turnover of German government 5½s at a loss of 2½ points to 39, a new low for the year. Other declines of reich bonds ranged from 1 to around 6 points. Softness of the Germans was believed to have reflected not only the dwindling reichsbank reserves but further political uncertainties. Japanese bonds recovered a point or more while other foreign obligations were mixed.

Sales totaled $10,342,000, par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate bonds eased one-tenth of a point.

U. S. TREASURY RECEIPTS.

(Associated Press.)

Treasury receipts for April 4 were $6,117,142.70: expenditures, $18,784,103.27; balance, $465,921,367.85. Customs duties for 4 days of April were $2,351,102.34.

Nations' Default on Bonds Total 44 Per Cent of Lists

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—The American Council of Foreign Bondholders, of which Dr. Max Winkler is president, has completed an analysis which discloses that about 44 per cent of all the defaulted foreign bonds outstanding are the issues of national governments.

The total amounts of foreign dollar bonds in default, according to the council's survey, is apportioned as follows: National governments, $658,881,500; provincial governments, $275,703,700; municipal governments, $196,222,400; banks, $121,560,000, and corporations, $238,321,400.

"Perhaps the most discouraging feature of the situation," the survey points out, "is that so large a proportion of the whole should be national or federal government obligations since, evidently, the superior resources of supreme powers should enable them to continue payments after political subdivisions and corporations give up the struggle and confess their insolvency."

The government of the Republic of Chile heads the list with bonds in default with interest payments totaling $175,405,000. Following Chile, the Government of Brazil is listed with defaults of $144,672,000; Peru, with $87,210,000; Russia, with $75,000,000; Bolivia, with $59,422,000; Jugoslavia, with $43,804,000; Greece, with $36,518,000; Bulgaria, with $16,988,000; Salvador, with $12,663,000, and Costa Rica, with $7,198,000.

Germany's Mark Slumps 11 Points

Pound Eases 1-4 of Cent; Guilders and Francs Decline.

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—Foreign exchanges were generally easier today and the German mark, further depressed by dwindling Reichsbank reserves, slumped eleven points to 23.60 cents for cables, another new low for the year.

While dealings in marks were rather small in this market they were heavily sold at one time in London. At today's rate the mark is now 22 points below parity.

Sterling exchange eased ¼ of a cent to a cable rate of $3.42, being in supply from the Bank of England control. Dutch guilders yielded 3½ points to 40.35½ cents, Swiss francs were off 1¼ points to 19.31½ cents and French francs eased ¼ of a point to 3.93⅛ cents. The Scandinavians, Spanish pesetas and Canadian dollars were slightly lower. Mexican pesos firmed fractionally.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Gold mining shares and German bonds received most of the traders attention in a cheerful session of the stock exchange today. The former was strong on general buying and the latter slumped from 5 to 8 points owing to political fears. Oilfedged securities and oil shares were supported while transatlantic issues also improved on better Wall street advices. The closing was steady.

Paris—Encouraged by favorable Wall street reports, prices on the bourse registered firmer tone, rentes leading the improvement. The market closed well disposed.

Berlin—The tone of the boerse was firm throughout the session.

CURB LEADERS GAIN ON ACTIVE MARKET

Mining Issues, Oil and Food Improve; Sales Rise to 140,000 Shares.

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—A dozen or so of the Curb leaders showed a semblance of activity today on a generally rising price trend. Trading interest in this small group was stimulated by calculations of improvement in earnings in connection with rising commodity prices.

Mining issues, oils, food stocks and miscellaneous industrials were among the chief beneficiaries of improved sentiment volume, though still small, ran about 10,000 shares ahead of yesterday, at approximately 140,000 shares.

The best gains, running from 1 to 4 points, were registered by Aluminum Co. of America, Deere & Co., Montgomery Ward "A," Humble Oil, Gulf Oil and Southwest Penn Pipe Line.

Utilities were irregular, softening a bit after early firmness. This group contributed a few good-sized advances, mainly affecting American Gas & Electric, New England Power preferred, Utah Power & Light preferred and Columbia Gas & Electric preferred. The last named responded to the cut in the dividend rate on the common stock, which for some time had been payable in the preferred shares.

Swift & Co. issues led the upswing in food issues, but Great Atlantic & Pacific, a leading member of this group, worked against the trend by dropping 2 points. A. & P. in its recently announced report for 1932 revealed a considerable decline in earnings for the common stock as compared with the preceding year.

New York Reserve Bank Cuts Rate to 3 Per Cent

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Reserve Board announced yesterday the Federal Reserve Bank of New York had lowered its rediscount rate from 3½ per cent to 3 per cent, effective today.

The rate is the first change since early in March, when the New York Bank and the Chicago Bank increased their rates from 3 to 3½ per cent.

The rates at the other eleven Federal Reserve Banks now are 3½ per cent on all classes of paper. Previous to the March increase in the New York rate its rediscount rate had been 2½ per cent.

WHEAT VALUES SOAR TO NEW HIGH GROUND

Agitation to Inflate Money Aids Rise; All Other Grains Advance.

Chicago, April 6 (A.P.).—Grain trading broadened out today to a volume seldom equaled, and wheat prices jumped to heights unreached in over a year, 63 cents a bushel.

Extraordinary action of the markets, some pit authorities said, was mainly due to widespread notice taken of agitation for possible legislative measures to inflate United States currency. Other reasons given included killing frosts that threatened serious increase of almost unprecedented damage to domestic winter wheat Southwest.

At today's high point, wheat was up 7¾ cents; corn, 5¾ cents; oats, 3 cents, and rye, 10 cents above last week's low point. Wheat closed unsettled, ⅞ to 1¼ above yesterday's finish; corn, also ⅞ to 1¼ up; oats, ⅝ to ⅞ advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

Upturns in Wheat.

Brisk new upturns in wheat prices today amounted to about 2 cents a bushel, but big profit taking sales in the late dealings wiped out part of the gain. A weakening factor toward the last also was talk among traders that there was no criterion as to how much prices could be increased by inflation moves, and that the market was extremely vulnerable to a change of sentiment. Before setbacks of values took effect, however, not only wheat but corn, oats and rye as well, had surpassed the season's previous topmost quotations.

Greatly augmented public participation in grain futures trading was apparent, and a notable feature was that prices for immediate delivery wheat kept far in advance of deferred contracts. The maximum wheat quotation today, 63 cents a bushel, was for No. 2 red wheat, spot cash, 5 cents over the value of May delivery. Helping to stimulate buyers was an authoritative unofficial statement that no large accumulation of wheat supplies exists outside of the United States.

Corn and oats showed independent strength owing to unfavorable weather for corn transportation and because of evidence of a tenacious holding policy by growers.

Provisions reflected the upward trend of cereals.

Spot Silver Advances.

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—The spot silver market was firm today, advancing ⅜ cent, to 27½ cents, an ounce. Silver futures on the National Metal Exchange were 1-10 cent lower to ⅛ cent higher.

TRADE TRENDS.

(Associated Press.)

Construction—Heavy engineering construction awards last week totaled $17,256,000, compared with $11,994,000 in the previous week and an average of $11,743,000 for the past four weeks, the Engineering News-Record reports.

Flour—Market observers say that recent strength in grain markets has brought a fair volume of new buying. White flour prices have been marked up sharply. Most of the larger consumers are still well covered by previous contracts.

Linseed oil—Signs of reviving activity have been noted in this market in a more active inquiry received by seed crushers. Seed and meal prices have been marked up substantially in the past week.

Knitting yarns—Reports from the Philadelphia district say that yarns are being taken on old orders at a fair rate, but that new business in weaving and knitting counts is quiet.

Boys' clothing—Some manufacturers report a last-minute rush on the part of clothiers to fill their Easter requirements. Due to low inventories the situation in the boys' wear field is the most favorable in some time, according to the trade.

BOOMING GRAIN RISE LEADS ALL MARKETS

Wheat Sells at 63 Cents With Cotton, Sugar and Coffee on Climb.

Chicago, April 6 (A.P.).—Grains paced all financial and commodity markets into higher ground today.

A booming rise at the very outset of trading carried most grain prices to the highest levels for nearly a year and advances from that stage were only of a minor character.

Talk of currency inflation by a group of industrialists, and reports of freezing temperatures in Kansas, where the wheat crop has already been reported seriously curtailed by unfavorable weather, brought buyers to the grain pits in a hurry.

Opening transactions found wheat as much as 1¼ cents a bushel higher than yesterday's vigorous rise, with corn 1½ cents up. September wheat contracts later crawled up almost 2 cents above yesterday to a peak of 60⅛ cents a bushel, the highest price paid for wheat in many months.

Wheat at 63 Cents.

A single car of No. 2 red wheat sold in the cash grain market for 63 cents a bushel, the highest cash price paid in Chicago since March, 1932.

Security markets felt the pull of grains and also scored a sharp rise early, advancing 1 to 3 points. Later, however, stocks quietly tapered off and many gains were halved. Issues of companies that produce raw materials held up well in the reactions from top levels. Rails were quiet, chiefly because bullish news on grains, especially wheat, means smaller wheat shipments. Farm implement, metal, food, rubber and steel stocks were fairly strong.

Cotton prices pushed up with the grains, heavy buying orders and covering sales by short operators enabling it to finish with net gains of 45 to 50 cents a bale, as it did yesterday.

Sugar and Coffee.

A stronger tone was noted in sugar and coffee, both commodities encountering good buying.

Grains receded at the close from the day's peak prices, but held well above yesterday's final quotations.

Wheat finished midway between the day's high and low with net gains from ⅞ to 1¼ cents a bushel.

Corn finished with similar gains after having displayed independent strength much of the day. Despite sharply higher prices, country points booked very little corn for shipment to the cash market. Ordinarily higher prices for futures means heavy bookings from the country, but the total was only 25,000 bushels.

Rye, a spectacular performer yesterday with gains of 3 cents, fell away and was the only grain to close below yesterday's finish. All deliveries touched 47 cents yesterday, but closed today below that figure.

COTTON PRICES RISE ON TRADE'S BUYING

July Sells at 6.67 as General Market Gains 9 to 10 Points.

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—Trade and commission-house buying caused an advance of 50 cents a bale in cotton today.

July contracts closed at 6.66-67, or 14 points net higher and about $2 a bale above the low price touched on the reaction of late last month. The final tone of the market was steady at net advances of 9 to 10 points.

First prices were 1 point higher to 2 points lower. There was continued May liquidation and some further Liverpool selling, but the offerings were taken by the trade and buying became more active right after the call. Strength of wheat and other commodities influenced buying.

May Sells at 6.54.

May sold up to 6.54 and October to 6.92, making net advances of 13 to 14 points on active positions, but the tendency to accept profits was reflected by increased offerings at these figures. Closing quotations, however, were within 3 or 4 points of the best for the day.

There were reports of increased activity in the cotton goods market. Some of the buying was attributed by some traders to the inflationary theory affecting commodity values generally.

The Liverpool selling here was attributed to straddling on the narrow differences which were attributed to hedging foreign-grown cotton in the Liverpool market. The Liverpool market was quiet with the Manchester cotton goods situation unchanged, as buyers and sellers were apart in their price views for the most part. Exports today, 12,152, making 6,284,421 so far this season. Port receipts, 2,527. United States port stocks, 4,305,353.

Copper Price Gains On Curbing Plans

Producers' Accord News Sends Market Up to 5½ Cents.

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—The price of copper climbed a little today on reports from informed quarters that producers were gradually eliminating differences and conflicts in their program for a temporary complete shutdown of production.

The market for metal was largely nominal at something between 5 and 5½ cents a pound. Previously the quotation was 5 cents, with buyers showing very little interest.

It was reported in producing quarters that a lively speculative interest had developed around 5 cents, but that sellers were unwilling to book business at that figure in view of a possible agreement for a cessation of producing activities.

C. & N. W. Share Deals Investigated

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—The committee on business conduct of the New York Stock Exchange today ordered an investigation into all transactions in the securities of the Chicago & North Western Railway yesterday.

This was an aftermath of the severe break in the securities of the road, which was attributed by the management to baseless rumors of an impending receivership. After the close of trading yesterday officials of the company in Chicago issued denials of rumors that the road planned an immediate reorganization. Its securities recovered briskly today.

A notice to members of the exchange, sent by Ashbel Green, secretary, late today, said, "The committee on business conduct directs me to request that you furnish it by noon, Monday, April 10, 1933, with a list of all transactions made by you on Wednesday, April 5, 1933," in securities of the Chicago & North Western Railway Co., "giving the volume and prices, the name of the members of firms with whom the transactions were made, and the customers for whom you acted." A list of the securities was given.

Liquidation Is Sought In Fire Insurance Case

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—The State insurance department announced today it has made application to the supreme court for permission to liquidate the Globe & Rutgers Fire Insurance Co., which it recently took over.

George Van Schaick, insurance superintendent, set forth in the application that he considers it would be futile to make further efforts to rehabilitate the company, as was planned at first. A reorganization committee was formed but no plan was evolved which Van Schaick considered feasible

FISH WARNS LEGION OF DISLOYAL ALIENS

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, addressed the Alexandria Post of the American Legion last night at its annual Army Day banquet. His talk was mainly in support of legislation being enacted to deport aliens if they insist upon spreading their doctrine of hate against this country. He stated they do not fear American laws, judges or police, but they do fear being sent back to their homes, where they do not have the privileges this country gives.

He said it is known that for the last 50 years the labor of this country has been the best paid, the best clothed and housed of any country, and if the immigration barriers of Soviet Russia are let down, the terrified people of that country would try to flock to the United States.

He said that Congress would remain nonpartisan until the unemployment problem has been solved; that the most striking thing has been the loyalty of these millions without work, and the country will emerge from this depression largely through the courage and faith of the American people.

Prominent at Banquet.

Past Commander J. Randall Caton presided and presented the program. Incidental music was by Mrs. Anna Meeks, piano; Frank Perry and Kikran V. Kareljran, violinists, and Richard F. Ross, banjo.

G. Raymond King, commander of Alexandria post, was first presented. Greetings from the Department of Virginia were given by Department Commander M. E. Bristow. Others who were introduced were: J. William May, president of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce; W. Glenn Elliott, adjutant of the Department of Virginia; Col. Harry Cootes, commanding officer of Fort Myer; Col. Edward H. Shultz, commanding officer of Fort Humphreys; Capt. Frank R. Armistead, U. S. M. C., representing the Marine Corps, and a member of the Beauford, S. C., legion post.

Mayor Edmund F. Ticer, of Alexandria; National Chaplain Irvin Q. Wood, of Idaho; Dr. W. L. Kline, chief medical officer of the Veterans Administration; Miss Rosa Crilly, a former Alexandrian, secretary to Dr. Kline; Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey, president of the Alexandria American Legion Auxiliary; Mrs. Richard B. English, department child welfare officer of the legion; and Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club and a past president of the auxiliary.

Trophy and Citations.

Vocal selections were by Mrs. Evelyn Howard Sheridan, accompanied by Mrs. D. C. Book, and violin selections by Kikran V. Kareljran, accompanied by Mrs. Mildred Echols.

The Charles E. Dyer Trophy given each year to the department vice commander whose district has been outstanding in membership renewals, was presented to Robert Insko, of Quantico. Commander Bristow presented to Past Department Commander F. Clinton Knight and to Commander J. S. Hale and Adjutant White, of Buck Keys Post, of Quantico, and to Robert H. Forman, commander, and Chester Eichelberger, adjutant, of Arlington Post, citations of merit.

Past Commander Howard L. Arnold, of Alexandria, was given a citation for the best post history, and Commander King was given the post citation for having contributed through the historian, Dr. Arnold, an outstanding history of Alexandria Post.

ABOUT THE SHOW SHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

CLARK GABLE seems to have derived nothing but benefit from the considerable drubbing he received in the press for a wholly uninspired performance with Norma Shearer in the film version of Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude." He has been getting consistently better ever since.

CLARK GABLE.

In "Red Dust," opposite Jean Harlow and Mary Astor, he displayed a vigor, a ruggedness and a soundly intelligent grasp of his job that did much toward making up a good deal of the ground he had lost. Now, in association with so richly endowed an actress as Helen Hayes, he offers what seems to me one of his finest character portrayals to date, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's deeply reverent, tender and pictorially beautiful picturization of F. Marion Crawford's "The White Sister," which City Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's unreeled yesterday afternoon for the press and a few invited guests in the private projection room of the Fox Film Exchange.

No one, of course, ever steals a picture, nor yet a scene, from a player of such instinctive artistry as Helen Hayes. Nevertheless, as I watched his performance yesterday, I was impressed by the superiority of Clark Gable's Lieut. Giovanni Severi over Gary Cooper's Lieut. Frederick Henry in "A Farewell to Arms." There was warmth, variety and feeling here to counterbalance, at least in part, the ineffably wistful portrayal of Angela Chiaromonte offered by Miss Hayes.

Mr. Gable, obviously, has not as yet reached that point of histrionic development beyond which his dramatic stature is incapable of artistic growth.

As for "The White Sister" in its entirety, certainly the contemporary screen is not apt to encounter its superior as an example of painstaking production, conscientious performance or visual loveliness. Its movement, however, in many sequences is rendered cumbersome and slow by a plethora of unnecessary detail.

Great lengths of footage, for instance, are devoted to protracted and involved rituals of the church, which can lay scant claim to dramatic value beyond being, to all appearances, accurate and reverential reproductions of the actual ceremonies.

In diversity and breadth of scene the present rendering of the F. Marion Crawford story of the hopeless love between a soldier and a nun is a vast elaboration of the silent version, in which the roles now played by Miss Hayes and Mr. Gable were impersonated with fine effectiveness by Lillian Gish and Ronald Colman.

"The White Sister," under any circumstances, must remain a love story of such limpid beauty as to exert an unfailing appeal to feminine audiences of all ages and all tastes. Or so it would seem to a mere bachelor.

If the exaltation of spirit that was imparted to all who were present by the attendance of President Roosevelt at the National Wednesday evening could have been communicated to the theater at large, the troubles of "show business" would be largely over by now.

Never have I encountered an incident in the theater that so completely banished the doldrums as this simple spectacle of a President of the United States enjoying himself at the play.

I imagine it was something like the morning on the Ark when the dove brought the olive leaf back to Noah!

From that revered dean of all Washington showmen, Col. William Harryman Rapley, owner—and his father before him—of the National Theater, down to the lowliest of the dramatic critics, everyone present in the theater reacted to the courageous and contagious optimism and good humor of the Chief Executive.

There is an inspirational quality in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's personality that the theater sorely needs. It received a touch of it at the National night before last and the effect will be far-reaching and salutary.

Managerial Washington was well represented at the National Wednesday night, incidentally. Present, in addition to Col. Rapley, Manager Stephen E. Cochran and the National staff, were L. Stoddard Taylor, of the Belasco; T. D. Bonneville, formerly manager of Poli's; Robert E. Long, formerly assistant manager of B. F. Keith's and manager of the Rialto; Charles Warren McClintock and numerous others.

At yesterday afternoon's preview of "The White Sister," by the way, there was also screened a short-reel subject of timely and universal interest bearing the title of "Roosevelt, the Man of the Hour." Against a background of the world's unrest is pictured the entire public career of President Roosevelt, from the time of his entrance into politics as a member of the New York State Legislature down to the present. It is to be shown, I believe, as a special added attraction at the Palace in conjunction with first Washington screenings of Gloria Swanson's "Perfect Understanding," beginning today.

One hears casually that "dances after the manner of Andaluz and Broadway are imparting bubbles and brightness a-plenty to the Madrillon floor show this week. Those big-town favorites, Brice and Janita, are presenting a sequence of plenty torrid numbers, their act representing the ideal blend of Spanish fire and Manhattan hot-cha!

It sounds entirely logical—Spain for fire and Manhattans for hot-cha! As I remember it, that's the way it used to work.

Well, since you sat up 'til after midnight to get it, how did it taste?

RKO-KEITH'S

"CHRISTOPHER STRONG." RKO-Radio picturization of the novel by Gilbert Frankau, adapted to the screen by Zoe Akins, featuring Katharine Hepburn, with Colin Clive, Billie Burke, Helen Chandler, Ralph Forbes and Jack LaRue. Directed by Dorothy Arzner. Reviewed Thursday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Here is an instance—and they have not been too common since the early days of Garbo's career on the American screen—in which the play is completely subordinated to the peculiar power of its stellar personality.

After patiently following its none too breezy developments through a long recital of marital and adolescent misunderstandings, deceptions and near-tragedies, one awakens suddenly to the fact that he doesn't know clearly whether "Christopher Strong" is a pretty good picture or a pretty bad one. It doesn't much matter. The one vivid, inescapable memory, after all is said and done, is Katharine Hepburn.

Katharine Hepburn is a young woman who is impressive much in the Garbo manner and for much the same reasons. She is not beautiful either of face or voice—yet there are times when her features reflect a fine intelligence and a fascinating contour and her voice takes on a mellow tenderness as a welcome variation from a metallic coldness like clanging steel. Her figure is not cast in a voluptuous mold, yet there are times when she seems no less than imperiously lovely of form—in contrast with the sharp angularity of many of her postures.

It is all very puzzling—just as it was in Garbo's case. What is it this Hepburn girl has that so few others possess? Something, assuredly. The same thing Garbo has, if anyone is able ever to define it—personality, allure, magnetism, mental and spiritual strength, anything you like. The point is she has it.

That, then, is about the sum and substance of "Christopher Strong"—Katharine Hepburn. If you like her, you will like "Christopher Strong" a great deal; if you do not like her, "Christopher Strong" will be mildly awful.

For despite the earnest work of Colin Clive, in the name part; Billie Burke, as his wife who pits a Victorian prudery against the new viewpoint of the present generation and almost loses everything she holds most dear, and Helen Chandler and Ralph Forbes, as two young lovers for whom the path does not run smooth, the story falls pretty flat when Miss Hepburn's Lady Darrington is not around to bolster it.

Lady Darrington is a daring young woman, who goes in for aviation and all sorts of hazardous things, including another woman's husband, and finally after circumnavigating the globe in her ship, breaks the altitude record and then crashes, to eliminate herself from a love triangle in which she should not have been.

The play is exactly as good as Miss Hepburn.

The auxiliary attractions are led by "So This Is Harris?" a new-type screen musical, in which one of the West Coast's most popular entertainers is starred and which will probably set a new fashion in short-reels of this nature, and include a "Scrappy" cartoon, "The Beer Parade," and the Pathe News in which Lieut. Comdr. Wiley recounts his rescue from the Akron.

5 COMMISSIONERS RULED IN COUNTY

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 8706 Georgia Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone Shepherd 1363.

Division of Montgomery County into five commissioner districts instead of the seven now in existence was announced yesterday by the Montgomery County Commissioners. The new division will become effective at the expiration of the terms of the present board and only five commissioners will be voted for in the November, 1934, elections.

The new commissioner districts will be made up as follows: First, Laytonsville and Olney election districts; second, Damascus and Clarksburg; third, Poolesville and Barnesville; fourth, Rockville and Potomac; fifth, Colesville, made up as follows: First commissioner district, Olney, Laytonsville and Damascus election districts; Second commissioner district, Barnesville, Clarksburg and Gaithersburg election districts; Third commissioner District, Rockville, Darnestown and Poolesville; Fourth commissioner district, Potomac and Bethesda election districts; Fifth commissioner district, Wheaton and Colesville.

Nearly 100 inquiries regarding the possibility of obtaining licenses to sell beer in Montgomery County had been received up to closing time yesterday by Clayton K. Watkins, clerk of the circuit court at Rockville. No formal applications for licenses have been received, but several are expected today, Mr. Watkins said.

Montgomery County will be forced to wait at least two weeks. Under the law adopted for the county, all applications for permits must be published for at least a week prior to being granted, Mr. Watkins said.

This means that the applications first must be received in proper form and then advertised in a county newspaper. Since no county newspaper prints again before Wednesday, when the Maryland News of Silver Spring will issue, no permits possibly can be granted before April 20.

Montgomery County's aridity is liable of return at least in some districts. The new law provides that any of the 18 voting precincts can petition for a local option referendum in the 1934 elections, except that no country club can be deprived of the right to sell beer by the local option, provided it comes within the scope of the requirements announced for a bona fide country club.

These requirements are that it maintain a nine-hole golf course, or two tennis courts or a swimming pool or any combination of these and that at least 50 per cent of its membership, the minimum being 100, must be from outside the county.

FAIRFAX '33 BUDGET CALLS FOR $1.20 TAX

Council's Tentative Plan Cut Levy 15 Cents on $100 for Present Year.

The town council of Fairfax, Va., has drafted a tentative budget which would necessitate a tax rate of $1.20 on the $100 assessed property valuation. If the tentative budget is adopted it will be a reduction of 15 cents for the present fiscal year. The tax rate on which taxes will become due in the town this fall will be divided as follows: Eighty cents will be used for interest, sinking fund and payments on the local water bond issue, and 40 cents for streets and other town expenses.

The council at its last regular meeting instructed the treasurer to use every effort to collect all delinquent taxes, water rent and tapping charges at once, and to submit to the council at its next meeting a list of all persons failing to meet the demanded payments.

Councilmen Ford Swetman and James E. Nickell were appointed a committee to secure bids for construction of curbing and gutter on the south side of Main street, between Mechanic and Payne streets. The town sergeant was instructed to notify local dog owners to obtain immediately the State dog license, and to summon them into court for failure to comply with the warning.

Pollard Car Tag Slash Is Indorsed

Gasoline Tax Increase Is Opposed, However by Fanciulli.

Recommendation of Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia that the fee for automobile licenses be reduced 40 per cent was indorsed yesterday by Jerome Fanciulli, assistant director of the National Highway Users Conference.

Mr. Fanciulli, however, opposed the recommendation that the gasoline tax be increased by 2 cents if surrounding States do likewise. He estimated that the reduction in registration fees revenue would be $329,440.80, making a total net gain of $706,073.41 in revenue from both sources if no change were made in registration fees.

However, with a reduction of 40 per cent in registration fees, the loss on this item would be about $2,500,000, making the net loss on combined gasoline tax and license-fee revenue about $1,800,000, Mr. Fanciulli contended.

CROWDER TRIES ROUTE AGAINST DODGERS TODAY

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

The Washington Post,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Sir:

Why would it not be a practicable arrangement for the Washington Baseball Club to admit all children below a certain age to all games except those played on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, for 25 cents? On these days there are usually many thousands of vacant seats in the stands which could be put to good use by such an arrangement. It hardly seems necessary to mention the many obvious advantages of such a policy.

First—The club would pick up many thousands of dollars in the course of a season which it would not otherwise get.

Second—The club would be doing a fine thing for the youngsters by providing clean wholesome amusement in the fresh air.

Third—Baseball would be the gainer in the long run, as such a policy would undoubtedly have the effect of building up a great array of fans for the future. The 25 cent customer of today would become the dollar customer of tomorrow.

Most all youngsters are exceedingly fond of baseball, but there are few parents who can shell out 75 cents or a dollar a throw for a ball game.

I hope the powers that be in local baseball will give the matter some consideration. Yours very truly,

(Signed) CHARLES F. WARING.
2700 Connecticut ave.

The empty-seat situation has often caused this department to entertain just such ideas as Mr. Waring proposes and I have been able to reconcile the magnates' attitude in the matter only by the implication of the hoary economic theory that business is business, as Horatio Alger used to quote old Silas Skinflint.

But there is reason to believe that Griffith Stadium officials would not be averse to adopting the suggestion of Mr. Waring. For several seasons the owner of the Nats has set aside one day a week when he throws the gates to the park open gratis to the Boy Scouts, and there is none among the baseball magnates who is quicker to recognize the benefits of baseball interest inculcated in the fans of the future at an early age.

Mr. Griffith has sought also to stimulate baseball interest in the high schools, both white and colored, by presenting handsome trophies to the champions, and offering the use of his stadium for the high school series.

I believe though that the league rules which place restrictions on the price of admissions, present a barrier to the reduction in prices in favor of children. If such is not the case, I believe that Mr. Waring can be assured his suggestion will receive consideration.

A. A. U. Title Retained by Sholl's

Als A.C. Keeps Girls' Crown; Rockville Beaten, 24-22.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

THE name of Sholl's Cafe was indelibly written into the records as one of the greatest basket ball machines ever assembled within the limited confines of the Nation's Capital at Tech High School last night where it defeated U. S. Bureau of Investigation by a score of 39-23, thereby winning its second consecutive District A. A. U. championship in the annual tournament sponsored by The Washington Post. Close to 1,000 fans saw the game.

As the score indicates the fray was just a trifle one-sided, but the game that preceded it had the gallery on edge as Als A. C. retained its senior girls' crown by virtue of a 24-22 triumph over Rockville in a contest that reeked with thrills.

Immediately after each game the winning team was presented with a trophy, emblematic of the championship, and individual medals were bestowed on the perspiring but smiling players by Arthur Carr, chairman of the District Olympic committee, and well-known sportsman.

Sherman Is Sholl's Hero.

Investigation left its bloodhounds at home, which probably accounts for the fact that it lost the scent early in the fray. Public Enemy No. 1 at the Bureau this morning probably is Johnny Sherman, Sholl's husky forward, whose 13 points topped both teams in scoring. It was Sherman who took the heart out of the opposition and left them like a punctured toy balloon by his reckless goal tossing in the first half.

Time was called for the intermission by the good Yank Robbins, with the score at 24-8, with Sholl's rather tired from running wild and Investigation feeling the same way from chasing its opponents around.

The fans—especially Investigation supporters—seemed reconciled to another Sholl's victory.

Les Singman was the most prolific point-getter on Government team, scored the majority of his team's points in the first half, but he was bottled up in the second stanza.

Sholl's exhibited a well nigh flawless passing attack, slipping through the opposing lines for easy shots under the basket. They took and made frequent pot shots also. On the other hand, the Sleuths were unable to work the ball in close to the basket and unwilling to risk long shots until it was apparent that the ghost was up—and then they missed.

Kiesel Shines at Center.

Investigation failed to follow up the few shots it had at the goal, a point in which the rival faction excelled. Then Kiesel's presence at center for Sholl's did the eventual losers no good. He controlled the tap-off which inevitably fell into the outstretched hands of a teammate.

Dick Mothershead risked being caught in public with a suit more than six months old by fearing to interrupt one of his pet superstitions. He has worn the suit at every game the boys won. Last year he had an overcoat for a mascot.

After the Als had run up a 12-6 margin in the first half, the Rockville girls came back to tie the score at 14-14 and again at 20-20 in a bedlam of action seldom surpassed in feminine basket ball hereabouts. The superior experience of the Als served them in good stead in the waning minutes as they clung to their slight lead.

The play of Miss Murray at center for the Als was outstanding. It was her close guarding, intercepting and passing that paved the way for the retention of the crown.

On the scoring end of the Als machine, Jones and Houaback accounted for 9 and 13 points, respectively. Bennett and Myers had 10 and 11 for Rockville.

Following the game, championship A. A. U. medals and trophies were presented to the members of teams which had previously gained titles. The Sholl's-Investigation game followed.

First Heave Ho of Beer Era Sees Kampfer Throw Jones

Referee Bortnick Goes Into Training for Handling Kegs and Is Stripped of Both Shirt and Dignity at Auditorium.

AS a sort of preliminary tableau marking the start of the beer era, Professor Joe Turner put on a swell rassling show at the Washington Auditorium last night, with an ample old brewmaster, Hans Kampfer, gaining the most "Hochs!" and "Prosits!" by virtue of a thumping victory over righteous old Paul Jones in 43 and 44-100 minutes.

The addition of the silk hat element, who dropped into the Auditorium to while away the minutes pending the opening guzzle of the elegant beer hall down in the cellar, swelled the audience to a prosperous 4,500, which, at the present rate of exchange, is worth a paragraph of its own.

Referee Bortnick In Training.

A prominent advertisement in the literary program given to each member of the audience, be he press or public, read: "Of Course, Refere Benny Bortnick Will Handle Beer" (address on request). And Benny got in great shape for his handling duties last night by hoisting his rotund self betwixt the two principals. Hoisting beer barrels today will be just a breeze for Benjamin. Like Leo Diegel practicing putting in 1-inch cups, so that the regulation-sized ones would look like the Hudson tube. Benny was stripped of both his shirt and his dignity, but at all times remained true to the tender traditions of the refereeing craft.

Kampfer, who should be ready for Londos in a couple of weeks, is a substantial sort of fellow. His Graeco-Roman style, which is the most colorless and the most honestly efficient of the several approved methods, is reminiscent of Wladek Zbyszko, the vowelless veteran. Jones' scissors hold made no appreciable dent in Kampfer's infield, and when Jones' scissors hold fails there is not much use for the Texan to take up the citizens' valuable time.

Jones on Back In 43 Minutes.

After rolling out of a scissors at the end of 43 minutes, Kampfer klumpped Jones on the back of the neck with a couple of fists, picked him up and plumped him down in exactly the manner in which the beer wagon drivers used to arrange that rope pillow on the ground, mutter "Heave Ho," and yank down a barrel off'n the end of their cart.

The evening reached its height, so far as nose spreading was concerned, in the next to last epic in which Rudy Dusek's tough little brother, Ernie, pounded and was pounded in return by Everett Marshall for 45 minutes in a draw. As for the rest of the bouts, they were synonymous of the times. Just as a New (B)'Era is dawning, and the old order slippeth away, so did such reliable old standbys as Babe "Gentleman" Caddock, Frank "Gentleman" Judson and Milo "Gentleman" Steinborn wither and fade against the following trio of new heroes, Karl Davis (fifteen minutes); Dick Rainey (sixteen minutes) and Tom Alley (four minutes and a couple of stray seconds that probably wouldn't matter much).

PHILLIES AND HURST NOW IN ACCORD

1st Baseman Agrees to Terms and Leaves to Join Club.

PHILADELPHIA, April 6 (U.P.).—The Philadelphia Phillies' hopes of making a strong bid for the National League pennant this year were bolstered today when President Gerald P. Nugent announced he had reached an agreement with Don Hurst, slugging first baseman.

Nugent said he had talked with Hurst in his home in California and that the first baseman, last of the 1933 major league holdouts, would come to Philadelphia immediately for the signing of a contract.

Yankees Win Another.

Louisville, Ky., April 6 (U.P.).—The New York Yankees added another game to their long list of exhibition victories, defeating the Louisville Colonels, 10 to 6, today.

Giants' Rally Beats Tigers.

Asheville, S. C., April 6 (U.P.).—The New York Giants rallied in the final inning to score two runs and defeat the Detroit Tigers, 4 to 3, in an exhibition game today.

The Tigers held a 3-to-1 lead entering the eighth inning. But the Giants pushed across a run. In the following frame, with two out, two singles, and a double by Leslie won the game.

PREP SCHOOL GOLF OPENS APRIL 18

By DAVE HERMAN.

REORGANIZATION or the Washington Private School Golf League was affected last night at a meeting at the Willard Hotel, during which Frank Ortman, of St John's, was elected president, and a schedule of 18 matches between the five schools mapped out.

Other officers named were James Ferguson, of Georgetown Prep, vice president; Richard Berberich, of Gonzaga, recording secretary, and Dick Lunn, of Friends, corresponding secretary. Ortman also will serve as treasurer.

Frank Emmet, director of golf activities at Georgetown Prep, and instrumental in the league foundation three years ago, presided. Georgetown Prep twice has won the championship, and the league goes into the season with the teams presenting their finest material in prep history.

Gonzaga and St. John's Open.

The lid will be pried off on April 18 with a match between Gonzaga and St. John's. No courses have been assigned, pending the decision of golf committees from a number of District clubs concerning the use of their links for the league matches. However, Kenwood, Woodmont, Congressional, Manor and Beaver Dam already have offered the use of their courses, and indications are that at least five others will permit the youngsters to play.

One of the outstanding features of the season will be the staging of the fourth annual private school invitation tournament sponsored by Georgetown Prep. This event was won last year by the Garrett Parkers. Director Emmet also announced that Georgetown would send a team to Greenwich, Conn., on June 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, to participate in the twenty-fourth annual Eastern interscholastic golf championship which was won last season by Lawrenceville, N. J., Prep, with Georgetown Prep in the role of runner-up.

Young Golfers Are Enthusiastic.

Considerable enthusiasm was displayed at the meeting, which was attended by some of the District's outstanding young golfers. Among them were Capt. Frank (Shanty) Allan, golf

Dunlap Plays Toomer for Golf Title

PINEHURST, N. C., April 6 (A.P.).—George T. Dunlap, jr., slender Walker Cup golfer from Garden City, Long Island, and Jack Toomer, of Jacksonville, the Florida champion, today battled their way through the semifinals of the North and South amateur tournament and will meet in a 36-hole match tomorrow to decide the championship.

Toomer won his match from Tommy Goodwin, of Monroe, N. Y., easily, but Dunlap, whose play here this spring has been brilliant, had a fight on his hands before he eliminated the defending champion, H. Pierpont Warner, of New Haven, a Yale student.

Putting Wizardry Absent.

The Garden City player, who toured the No. 2 championship course in 64 strokes yesterday to equal the course record, today lacked the putting wizardry that made his feat possible. He showed a steady brand of golf, however, and was aided by a couple of lucky breaks.

On the thirteenth Warner was the victim of the first of these breaks, Dunlap's putt was pushed by a stiff breeze directly in front of the Yale player's ball. Warner failed to jump the 3-foot stymie with his niblic, and lost the hole, 5 to 4. On the seventeenth, a par 3, he made a sensational recovery after putting his drive in the rough, and lacked by 6 inches of dropping his second for a birdie 2. Dunlap got his par 3 to take the match.

Goodwin halved the first two holes with Toomer, but his game was shaky thereafter. He had trouble keeping his tee shots on line, and three-putted four holes in succession, for a string of 5s, while Toomer was turning in par 4s. The breaks were against the New Yorker, as he was stymied on the third, seventh and eighth holes.

Hargaden Likely G. U. First Sacker

If Ed Hargaden, Georgetown's star sophomore court star, can handle himself on the baseball diamond with the grace and efficacy that he boasts on the hardwood, then Coach Clayton Sheedy need not continue his search for a dependable first baseman. Hargaden won a berth on the all-star Eastern Collegiate Conference five, but has yet to prove his mettle in baseball.

The lanky youngster's diamond career with the freshman team came to an unfortunate ending hardly before it had begun when he snapped his ankle sliding into second base. However, in basket ball he showed no ill effects from the injury and there are no indications that it will hinder him in baseball.

Before his injury Hargaden showed considerable promise. He was steady on the defense and evidenced signs of developing into a long distance clouter.

Canzoneri Fights Ross In Title Bout June 22

Chicago, April 6 (A.P.).—The lightweight championship battle between Tony Canzoneri, the title-holder, and Barney Ross, youthful Chicago challenger, will be decided at Wrigley Field on the night of June 22, according to confirmation today by Joe Foley, of the Chicago Stadium Operating Co., under whose auspices the contest will be held.

The champion is to receive a flat guarantee of $30,000 with a privilege of collecting 40 per cent of the gate if it exceeds $50,000.

FANS 21 MEN IN ROW.

Atlanta, April 6 (A.P.).—Frank Tuppen, of Oglethorpe University, struck out 21 men—all that faced him—in a regulation seven-inning indoor baseball game here.

Two men got foul tips. There were no walks. His team won, 3 to 0. He was playing in a tournament at his school and the opposing team was one of the strongest in the university.

Roosevelt Lauds Baseball As Prop to Nation's Spirit

THE Nation's First Baseball Fan dispensed a rare presidential blessing upon the game yesterday when Franklin D. Roosevelt, manipulator of the new deal, told Clark Griffith and John H. Heydler that baseball had done as much as any one thing to keep up the spirit of the people.

The occasion of the meeting between the Chief Executive and two of baseball's leading tycoons was the annual presentation of season's passes to the central occupants of the dwelling at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue. The presence of Heydler in the party changed the yearly routine a bit. The National League president presented a joint pass for the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. As usual, Griffith separated the two passes, having Mrs. Roosevelt's built in a sizeable purse.

Roosevelt Throws Out First Ball.

The President accepted the verbal invitation of Griffith to be present and throw an outshoot to Joe Cronin next Wednesday, when Washington inaugurates its American League pennant race by meeting Philadelphia at Griffith Stadium. The President exhibited a lively interest and workable knowledge of the game. He inquired concerning a number of the old stars the sport has produced, and specifically asked about Joe Judge, Sam Rice and "Germany" Schaefer, all of them once wearers of the Washington livery.

The afternoon of April 12 will not be the first occasion upon which Mr. Roosevelt has conducted the opening game ceremonies for the Senators. In 1917, when he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy under President Wilson, he batted for the President in view of the sudden entrance of the country into what the head writers later named the World War.

The pertinent and timely question of beer came up at the White House conference, and was brought up by the man who kept his campaign promises and made the amber nectar possible. The President pointedly asked Griffith and Heydler if they planned to permit the sale of brew in their parks.

Griffith Says Beer Is Out.

Heydler replied that his league would permit the erection and operation of bars in the stands, where they were allowed prior to prohibition, but Griffith cast a malevolent parch over the throats of local fandom by stating that inasmuch as beer never had been sold in his park, it would not be now.

Yesterday's White House presentation was an old story for Clark Griffith. The Old Fox made his first appearance at No. 1600 in 1912, when, as the comparatively youthful manager of the then disreputable Washingtons he called on and invited President Taft to attend that year's first game. Since then Griffith has worn a beaten path to the White House, and the results of his labors have given to local fans the most glamorous opening days in the industry.

Gamage Is Reinstated As Kentucky Coach

Lexington, Ky., April 6 (U.P.).—A five-hour night session which ended long after midnight today reinstated Coach Harry Gamage as head football coach at the University of Kentucky.

A group of students had charged at the close of last football season that Gamage was not directing his teams in a manner to produce best results. The investigation later centered around a reported disagreement between a member of the football coaching staff and basket ball coaches.

Judge Plays In Strange Uniform

Chance That Zachary May Oppose Nats in Exhibition.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE first local appearance of Al Crowder on the mound, but, what is probably more important, the possible last appearance of Joe Judge on first base, accrues this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Griffith Stadium when the Nats meet Brooklyn's reformed Daffiness Boys in the most important of the exhibition games here prior to the opening of the season.

Manager Joe Cronin selected Crowder yesterday after a steady drizzle did nasty things to the diamond and squelched the first of Brooklyn's two games here. He transposed Crowder for Monte Weaver because the venerable Gen. needs a nine-inning game under his belt before stepping out on the proverbial mound next Wednesday to heft a few at the bats of the Philadelphias.

Weaver will be saved until perhaps the Baltimore game next Monday.

Judge Playing Good Ball.

Joe Judge, a legendary character in the minds of Washington fandom, doubly so since the fates transplanted his gingerly chassis to Brooklyn, is the center of things today. The classic old boy should send the fan delegation into raptures, for he is playing swell ball this year and for the time being is the head man of the Dodgers in the first-base ward.

Del Bissonette, a swarthy young man who used to play first base for Georgetown U. and now rated as sharer with Charley Gelbert of the title of baseball's original hard-luck guy, signed his name to a contract yesterday afternoon. Bissonette is ordinarily Brooklyn's first baseman, but a series of injuries, the last and most noted of which nearly cost him his leg—a pretty price—has been benching him as often as Johnny Kerr.

Bissonette's signing squelched the hopes of Lu Blue, who had designs on Joe Judge's job. Interviewed by the persevering press at Wardman yesterday, Bissonette pronounced his synthetic Achilles tendon as being in great shape. He said that he would not start the season, "but I'll be playing soon after it starts." Which sounds pretty ominous for Judge.

Max Carey was about to annihilate a filet mignon last night when the question of who was going to pitch

PROGRAM FOR KERRY PATCH UNCERTAIN DUE TO ILLNESS

Colt Develops Cough at Belmont

Jolted Turf World by Beating Ladysman in Futurity.

Rosenberg Hopeful Is Held at 25 to 1 in Derby Book.

By THOMAS H. NOONE.

NEW YORK, April 6 (U.P.).—Kerry Patch, which carried the silks of Lee Rosenberg to a surprise victory over Ladysman in the Belmont Futurity last year, richest of all juvenile races, is a sick horse and is confined to quarters at Belmont Park suffering from a cough which he contracted about ten days ago, it was learned today.

The diminutive son of Desperate Desmond-Polly Wiggles—he weighs but 950 pounds and stands only a trifle over 15 hands high—had two broken wolf teeth extracted today after a brief exercise gallop and was immediately stabled awaiting developments of his ailments. If the horse does not develop a temperature Trainer Joe Notter hopes to have him out on the training track within a few days, but no definite plans for his 3-year-old campaign are possible at this time.

Worked Hard In 1932.

Kerry Patch had a very strenuous campaign in 1932. He engaged in 22 races without a breathing spell or let up in training. Winning only three races, finishing second on five occasions and third on three others, the little chestnut colt was in sense a champion in his first year of combat, even though he did account for $93,440 to finish second to Ladysman in this respect. He earned a purse of $86,690 in the Futurity alone.

Brought to the races early in May, Kerry Patch finished out of the picture in his first three efforts. After being runner-up in his two succeeding outings, he graduated from the maiden ranks at Belmont Park on June 4 with a victory in a minor stake event. He placed in his next race, and came back to score at Aqueduct on June 21.

Came the Belmont Futurity, following an unimpressive round of Empire City and Saratoga racing. While Kerry Patch may have been lucky in that Ladysman was unable to find racing room in the Futurity, the fact remains that he did win this coveted stake—incidentally at the juicy odds of 40 to 1.

Ran Second in Wakefield.

Though the Futurity was Kerry Patch's only stake victory, he ran second in the Wakefield Handicap at Empire City, the Champagne Stakes at Belmont and the Junior Champion at Aqueduct. Besides he was in the money in the Great American at Aqueduct, as well as the Baldwin and Remsen Handicap at Jamaica. His juvenile swan song was the Pimlico Futurity, in which he finished far back in the ruck.

Miss Morocco Wins In Tanforan Feature

San Bruno, Calif., April 6 (A.P.).—Miss Morocco, a Tranquillity Farms entry, ridden by Henry Grayson, nosed out Lamp Black, the favorite, to win the Newark Purse, feature race at Tanforan today. Black Signal was third. The time was 1:09 4-5. Miss Morocco paid $8.80, $3.40 and $3.20; Lamp Black, $2.80 and 2.40, and Black Signal $3.60.

VIRGINIA 7-2 VICTOR OVER VERMONT

Luck Hurls Cavaliers to Victory; Errors Are Helpful.

UNIVERSITY, Va., April 6 (A.P.).—The Vermont University defense blew up in the eighth inning today, enabling the University of Virginia Baseball Team to push across six runs in their 7-to-2 victory over the Burlington nine.

Piling miscues on sins of omission which allowed several balls to fall for hits, the visitors permitted six runs to cross the plate in the eighth inning. The orgy was halted finally with a snappy double play, the only twin killing of the afternoon.

Hitting the Headpin

With three weeks to go, Princeton and Michigan are tied for first place in the Intercollegiate Alumni League. Princeton took 3 from Brown last night while Michigan was taking 2 from Yale. Other results were: V. M. I., 2; Penn, 1; Maryland, 2; V. P. I., 1; Navy, 2; Harvard, 1; Lehigh, 2; Dartmouth, 1; Cornell, 2; Oregon, 1. Maryland had high game of 595; Princeton high set, 1,589; Phil King, Princeton, individual game of 144 and set of 396.

Treasury bowlers took all the honors in the Ladies Federal League at Arcadia last night. The team rolled a game of 335 and 1,542 to sweep its match with Veterans Bureau No. 2. Then came Helena Kohler, who rolled a swell set of 335, with Esther Burton bagging the other honors with a 131 game.

DOUGAN AND LANDERS TO OPPOSE

Bantams Rematched After Irving-Van "Natural" Fails.

WITH the young Van and Henry Irving "natural" definitely out of the main line-up at Portner's next Tuesday night because of the refusal of Alexandria officials to agree to the gate percentage request of the former's manager, Leroy Dougan, Blytheville, Ark., bantamweight, and Billy Landers, popular Norfolk buzzsaw, have taken over the spotlight for the weekly fistic program. They will trade blows for eight rounds.

A few weeks ago Dougan and Landers met over the six-round route in a semiwindup match, with Dougan gaining a unanimous decision. Before Landers could take a deep breath at the culmination of the bout that night, he hastily challenged Dougan to a return match over a longer route.

Dougan, according to The Post score sheet and the point score of the referee and two judges, won four of the six rounds, Landers capturing the other two.

Dougan Defeated 3 Southpaws.

Since invading these parts about three months ago, Dougan has made quite a reputation for himself. After a draw with Harry (Kid) Groves, of Baltimore, he slapped into defeat three left-handers, Joie Schwartz, Jack Gentile and Izzy Caplan. He lost to Eddie Burl, but came back strong against Landers, flashing a strong left hook and jab, and penetrating the Norfolk boy's defense consistently.

Fighting in the semiwind-up will be Roddy Davis, the Capital Limited, and Tex Mills, Norfolk lightweight, who will step 8 rounds. Three four rounders will be added to the card.

Beer Taboo For College Varsities

"Occasional Glass" to Be Permitted by Some Coaches.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, April 6 (A.P.).—The return of legalized beer apparently will be accepted "in stride" by the world of sports, based on conviction that the spectators can "take it," but that the athletes, with a few exceptions, must leave it alone.

Some major league ball parks and most golf or athletic clubs plan to sell the three-point-two brew under certain restrictions, but colleges have no plans whatever to relax regulations against drinking of any kind. Many, like Pennsylvania, have specifically banned beer on the campus.

Training rules for college athletes will not be revised to permit a daily ration of beer or ale on the so-called "English plan," although a survey by the Associated Press today revealed some willingness to permit an "occasional glass" if an athlete needs it or if he knows not to overindulge.

Harvard Is Firm Against Brew.

In the words of Harvard's Bill Bingham, representative of Eastern college athletic leaders, "The beer problem is really no problem at all," so far as the undergraduate athletes are concerned.

"Training rules will still be as rigorous as ever," Bingham said. "That's the great difference between England and this country. Over there they are more casual. They tell their men they will not be as good athletes if they overindulge in spirits. Here we just put our foot down firmly and absolutely forbid the use of alcoholic beverages."

John F. (Chick) Meehan, Manhattan College's nationally known athletic director, shares the general opposition to restoring beer or ale to any college training table diet, but added:

"At the same time I would have no hesitation in prescribing a bottle or two of ale for an athlete who is overtrained or stale. A glass of ale after the evening meal and another before going to bed has beneficial effects.

"Overindulgence in beer drinking is something else. A habit of drinking beer, merely for fun or to pass the time away, hurts the athlete as well as the morale of a squad."

"Personally," said Lou Little, Columbia's head football coach, "I think a glass or two of beer, occasionally, is all right for athletes, especially if they have been accustomed to it, but we would not think of making this a part of the regular training diet.

Harvey Harman, Pennsylvania's head coach, said: "I do not feel that the use of beer is conducive to the well being of any athlete, in or out of season."

The man who has been head coach of the last three American Olympic track and field teams, Lawson Robertson, says: "I have never made it a practice to give beer to athletes and do not intend to do so. It has a tendency to increase the weight of men in active competition."

The only restrictions for professional athletes, in such sports as baseball, football and hockey, involve over indulgence.

"There is no harm in the players having a bottle or two of beer after a particularly hard game or series," remarked John A. Heydler, president of the National League. "It often has a tonic effect, but the player who does not know enough not to drink too much will not last long. Competition is too keen nowadays for athletes in any sport so highly skilled as big league baseball to over indulge and keep their places."

Sande to Ride Own Stable At Havre de Grace Meet

EARL SANDE.

NEW YORK, April 5 (A.P.).—Apparently there is no such thing as keeping Earl Sande out of the saddle.

With spring here, the famous jockey, who is training seven horses for Col. Maxwell Howard, of Dayton, Ohio, is getting ready to stage another comeback. Each morning he may be seen at Belmont Park galloping one of his 3-year-olds.

The Earl turned in his New York riding license last fall to organize a stable for Col. Howard, but said he planned to ride some of his own horses at Havre de Grace, Maryland, which opens April 15. Unlike the New York ruling, the Maryland racing commission also permits a trainer to ride.

"I only weigh 113 pounds stripped now," said Sande. "I figure I should be able to ride my own horses and maybe a few others at that weight."

Sande, who rode to fame aboard some of the country's greatest thoroughbreds, including Gallant Fox, has a stable of likely looking colts and fillies, all 3-year-olds. The majority were purchased from Mrs. E. F. Simms and W. R. Coe.

There may not be a stake winner among the group, but Sande is confident he'll win plenty of races. All his charges are far advanced in training and he plans to ship them to Haver de Grace next Monday.

RUNS-HITS and ERRORS

by BOB CONSIDINE

IT is becoming increasingly hard to grow maudlin over $10,000-a-year baseball players, when the bread line soup is running watery, but today would be as good as any to take time out to wax sentimental over one of the boys. Besides, yesterday's game was washed out.

It's Joe Judge. He plays a farewell engagement at Griffith Stadium this afternoon beginning at 3 o'clock, when the Washingtons meet the Brooklyns. Joe worked so long for Washington that he became as legendary around first base as the Headless Horseman around Sleepy Hollow, N. Y. Except Joe had a great head on him.

Distance lends enchantment in both love and baseball. When Joe played for Washington everybody loved him and all that, but he probably figured no more in actually dragging people through the turnstiles than did the delicious crunchiness of Uncle Billy Smith's genuine Suffolk, Va., peanuts.

Becomes Drawing Card.

With Brooklyn he becomes an outstanding personality in the eyes of thousands, who never missed him until he was gone, who never realized fully what a tremendously graceful fielder he was until the vicissitudes of age and contractual shifting sprung him loose from the team.

By rights Joe should be in the boneyard of the forties, the dolorous age which does such thorough jobs of sabotage to the machinery of athletes. But he's carrying on in his new job with unending skill and dexterity. He seems to have got a pardon from the Furious Forties.

In their ten-minute session at the White House yesterday, President Roosevelt promised not only to attend the opening game, but to use that pass of his frequently during the season. The President told Clark Griffith that he could think of no better relaxation than dropping out to a ball game now and then.

Should the President keep his word, and he seems to be defying all precedent by continually doing so, it would be a welcome boost for the game here from the city's prime citizen. Mr. Roosevelt's predecessors, while held in undeniable esteem, were ones to make use of their baseball passes for the first day and then press them in their memory books.

Ray Schalk, who caught many more games for the White Sox than they won, was in town yesterday with his Buffalo Buffalos. Joe Cambria, minor league magnate (whose connection with Albany and close friendship with Griff sort of gives Washington another outlet for its dud players), also paid a call at the ball park office.

Well, we don't have a vote, anyway. What's the use of having a representative?

Maryland U. Freshmen In Lacrosse Contest

Boasting the strongest club in years, University of Maryland Freshman Lacrosse Team meets City College of Baltimore at College Park this afternoon.

Although losing the services of two of their best players, Rabbitt and Ijams, the Terp yearlings will have an array of experienced players on the field, many of whom won All-State scholastic recognition while in high school.

D. C. Guards Scheduled By Annapolis Rifle Team

Annapolis, April 6.—The Naval Academy Rifle Team will engage in four matches this spring, according to the schedule announced today by the Navy Athletic Association. The opening contest will be May 6, with District of Columbia National Guard. On May 13 there will be a three-cornered match, with the Marines from Quantico and Philadelphia as other contestants. The annual match with the Seventh Regiment, New York National Guard (107th Infantry), is booked for May 20, and the guardsmen of the Seventy-first New York Infantry will be met May 27. The latter shoot will take place at Peekskill, N. Y.

Navy has closed negotiations for a wrestling match with the crack team of Oklahoma Aggies next season. The date is March 3. The Tars will have four dual meets, opening with Pennsylvania, January 27, and closing with Lehigh. Eastern collegiate champions, March 10. Other bookings are February 3, Virginia Military Institute; February 10, Harvard (at Cambridge); February 17, Washington and Lee; February 24, North Carolina.

GRIFFS PRACTICE TODAY.

All members of the Griffith-Blue Coal unlimited baseball team are requested to report today at 5 p. m. at Fairlawn field for practice. The field is located at the south end of the Eleventh Street Bridge. Candidates are invited to attend.

G. W. Squad Near End of Grid Drills

GEORGE WASHINGTON gridders arrive at the semiclimax of their spring training season tomorrow when Coach Jim Pixlee divides the squad into rival factions and sics them on one another in a regulation 60-minute game at Tidal Basin Field. The kick-off will be at 3:30 o'clock.

Eight weeks of intensive preparation for the long summer lay-off have worked the fat off the boys and restored them to the splendid physical condition of last autumn, so there will be no pulling of punches tomorrow.

Pixlee has uncovered a few budding stars up from last season's freshmen eleven whose capabilities will be thoroughly tested. While the team is well supplied with enough veteran talent to assure it of another good season, freshmen bids for regular positions will not be overlooked.

Frosh Back Field Sees Action.

The entire Frosh backfield of Davenport and Hoyle, halfbacks; Plotnick, quarter, and Bombs, fullback, will be used. Several linemen who have shown to an advantage in scrimmage also will get into action. Two, Rathgen and White, are centers, and another pair, Denning and Volkman, are tackles. Only one end, Benefield, is included in the group.

Phil King, formerly of Cornell, and Jack Rhodes, who studied for a half year at Georgetown before making the amazing discovery that he was in the wrong school, will make their debut in G. W. uniforms. Although the coaching staff would have you believe they are just a couple of ball players, it is the prevailing belief that they fit in nicely with the 1933 plans.

Next Saturday the footballers fold their tents until autumn in a grand burst of glory. The departing senior members of the squad, numbering Johnny Fenlon, Fred Mulvey, Wayne Chambers and a few other well-known boys, stack up against the players who will have their noses in the textbooks for another year or so. The game also will be of regulation duration.

Naval Players Signed By Federal Unionists

The Federal Unionists have signed four Naval Hospital players for the impending Departmental League race, it was announced yesterday. L. E. Davis and S. L. Westbrook, outfielders; J. R. Roberts, an infielder, and Pitcher Bill Whalen are the additions.

Davis played with the champion Tar nines of '28 and '29, while Whalen is a newcomer to the city who has been pitching for the Navy in the tropics this winter past. The Unionist nine drills today on the east Ellipse, batting practice starting at 5.

D. C. Umpires' Group In Meeting Monday

Plans for the fast-approching season will be discussed by members of the District of Columbia Umpires Association Monday night at their meeting. Following the transaction of regular business an open forum on the discussion of rules will be held. This will be about 9:15 p. m. and is open to the public. Sandlot players and team managers are particularly invited to attend. The meeting will be held at the association's quarters, 921 Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Randolph Elected Navy Court Leader

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, April 6.—Midshipman Silas D. Randolph, of West Frankford, Ill., and Harry E. Cook, jr., of Lake Village, Ark., have been elected captain and manager, respectively, of the Navy basket ball team for next season. Both are members of the class of 1934.

Randolph, who was first call substitute forward during the late season, will succeed Porter Bedell, guard, who will graduate in June. In selecting a leader, the Middies were confronted by the unusual situation of not having an out and out regular available, as Bedell, Loughlin—ace of the last three years and all-America choice this year—and Kastein, also will graduate, while Borries and Daunis will be second class men next year, while Randolph will be a senior. The new pilot played in a number of games during the late season, however.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE WJSV program told us that Joseph Urban, noted scenic artist, would be the speaker on the "Modern Architecture" program, but a press notice from New York Thursday afternoon said the Columbia speaker would be Ezra Winter, mural painter.

As a matter of fact, it was neither of these artists, but Eugene Kluck, as near as we could catch the name, introduced as an editor of an architectural magazine. He spoke on the subject of "Terra Cotta."

The WJSV program tells that tonight our old Hoosier colleague, Ed Hill, will have as his guests John Ringling and Dexter Fellows, the world's greatest circus press agent. In direct conflict with this, a Columbia press notice from New York, two of them, in fact, announce that Mr. Hill's guests tonight will be those grand old-time Dutch comedians, Weber and Fields.

It would seem that such resourceful individuals as Paul White, Columbia publicity director in New York, and Harry Butcher, manager of WJSV, could get their heads together and give Washington listeners a little better advance service on network programs.

A device which reveals emotional tendencies and determines the personalities of applicants for jobs will be heard in operation over WJSV at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon.

The machine has been in use at Hartford House in New York for the past fourteen months and through its use it is claimed 1,500 unemployed men and women have been put back to work. The machine was said to have been helpful in finding the right person for each particular job. The broadcast tests will be conducted by W. D. Healy, executive secretary of Hartford House.

Zimbalist, violinist, will be the soloist with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra this afternoon (WJSV, 2:30 o'clock). Stokowski will conduct. The program follows:

"Russian Easter" (Rimsky-Korsakoff) and Concerto in D Minor for Violin and Orchestra (Sibelius), Efrem Zimbalist, violinist; "The Rite of Spring" (Stravinsky), orchestra.

Walter Damrosch's familiar greeting, "Good morning, my young friends!" will be carried to listeners from Cincinnati (WRC, at 11 o'clock). Another innovation in the program will be the appearance of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

Act III of "Parsifal" will be heard in the Symphonic Hour of WOL at 7 o'clock tonight.

Ben Bernie, old maestro, has it all figured out. Says he: "Congress having legalized beer, the Government's ship comes in the moment the schooner crosses the bar."

CLARK GRIFFITH and Al Schact will discuss the prospects of the 1933 baseball season over WJSV at 8 p. m.

Lew White, organist, claims to have found an old Chinese proverb reading: "A wise man invests in a going concern—but makes sure which way it is going."

Richard Gordon, radio's Sherlock Holmes, interviewed a Stamford, Conn., storekeeper, who had been shot at by a bandit. "The bullet hit the counter, caromed and went smack, bang into the cash register," explained the merchant. "I'd say it was a 'spent' bullet," Gordon said.

Dr. Arthur H. Compton, of Chicago University, will speak on "Science and the Century of Progress" (WMAL, 3:45 p. m.).

Appearing with Dr. Compton will be Dr. Gordon S. Fulcher, famous physicist, now connected with the Century of Progress Exposition which opens in Chicago on June 1. . . . James Truslow Adams, historian and winner of a Pulitzer prize for history, will give his impressions of "America as Seen From the Outside" (WRC, 7:15 p. m.) . . . A radio tour of the inside of a beehive will make up the American School of the Air elementary science class (WJSV, 2 p. m.). . . . Dr. Douglas Wilson Johnson, of Columbia University, will describe "How Rivers Cut Gateways Through Mountains" (WJSV, 12:45 p. m.) . . . The 11 o'clock period on WMAL this morning will be devoted to the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs.

N. B. C.'s Vic: Everything's OK, kid, I've got a job in a drug store.

THE Right Rev. Derwyn Trevon Owen, D. D., Bishop of Toronto, will conduct the international Lenten service over WJSV at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon. He will speak from Toronto and a musical program will be supplied by the choir of the Cathedral Church of St. Alban the Martyr.

Morton Downey will sing a new number written by himself entitled, "We're On the March," as the highlight of Columbia Revue over WJSV at 10 o'clock tonight. Downey also will sing "Nothing Less Than Beautiful," accompanied by Freddie Rich's orchestra. . . . Frank Crumit will sing "Little Mary Brown," and his wife, Julia Sanderson, will offer "Alice Blue Gown," from "Irene," during their program of morning harmonies (WJSV, 10:15 o'clock). . . . An "Orchid to You" will be the musical highlight of the Jubilee program to be presented over the WJSV at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Dolph Martin's special arrangement of this tune will be offered by his orchestra, with the assistance of the Travelers Quartet. . . . "Stormy Weather," a sizzling tune from Harlem's new "Cotton Club Parade," will be given its broadcast tryout by Leo Reisman and his orchestra during Pond's program (WRC, 9:30 p. m.).

Jack Benny often has difficulty in convincing people that Jack Benny is his real name. But the facts are that he was born Jack Benny in Chicago February 14, 1894, and attended Waukegan High School, Waukegan, Ill.

Benny got his first taste of the show business in vaudeville in a musical act. Later he made the Shubert revues on Broadway. His first picture was "Hollywood Review." He made his mark with Earl Carroll's Vanities for two seasons and is today relatively a newcomer to radio.

BILL HAY, who has been putting Amos 'n' Andy on the air now for several years, arrived late for the program recently for the first time in many moons. Held in another studio by a previous program until the last minute, Bill dashed into the Amos 'n' Andy program with the wrong continuity.

Ordering the organist to continue playing until he returned, Bill made a wild dash for his office, where the necessary continuity was cached. When he finally returned the organist had been playing for four minutes. Amos 'n' Andy managed to squeeze through by running over the scheduled time only one minute.

Balm Suit to Be Tried Without Star Witness

Los Angeles, April 6 (A.P.).—Attorneys for Jorgen Dietz said his former wife, the erstwhile Lulu Talma of the screen, will not be called as a witness in trial of his $60,000 alienation of affections suit against Douglas Fairbanks, jr., film actor.

Dietz, a chemist, charged that Fairbanks stole the love of the actress, who is now a writer in Copenhagen, Denmark. She recently denied a report she had said she and Fairbanks expected to marry in Paris next summer.

Tom Mix Absolved Of Note Payments

Actor Explains $50,000 Intended to Provide Home for Child.

Los Angeles, April 6 (A.P.).—Tom Mix, movie cowboy, will not have to pay his former wife, Mrs. Victoria Mix de Olazabal, $50,000 on notes he gave her. Superior Judge Carl A. Stusman ruled today that the notes were given for the one specific purpose of providing a home for the couple's child, Thomasina, 11.

In the trial of the former Mrs. Mix's suit against the actor, in which a family shooting of nine years ago was brought to light, Mix contended it was impractical to provide a home for Thomasina at present, as it would be equivalent to providing one also for Mrs. de Olazabal and her present husband, the Argentine consul at San Francisco.

Mix testified his former wife shot him as the outgrowth of a family quarrel. She admitted the shooting, but contended it was because Mix "beat me black and blue."

Queen Elena Receives Five American Women

Rome, April 6 (A.P.).—Five American women were presented to Queen Elena at the Quirinal Palace today by Mrs. John W. Garrett, wife of the American Ambassador.

They were Mrs. Charles MacVeagh, of Buffalo, widow of a former American Ambassador to Japan; Mrs. J. Monroe Hewlett, of New York, wife of the director of the American Academy in Rome; Miss Ethel Haven, of New York; Miss C. Jocelyn Pierson, of Sterlington, N. Y., and Miss Barbara Fairbanks, of Boston. They sat for 20 minutes with the queen, conversing in French.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

IN the terrible earthquake of 1920 in China nature played many strange pranks—some mountains were moved bodily; others were leveled into the valleys below. But perhaps the strangest event of the quake and its landslides was the moving highway of Kansu.

A quarter-mile section of the road and a score or more tall poplar trees that grew along its side were torn form their original position and carried nearly a mile away, where they were deposited intact and upright by the landslide. The whole movement took but a few seconds' time. The road, although unbroken, conformed to the waves of earth, and the trees were neither broken off nor bent out of position.

Gene Sarazen, outstanding American golfer, was offered the chance to waive qualifying for the Professional Golfers' Association tournament in St. Paul, 1932—a courtesy extended by officials to Sarazen because of his indisputed ability. Sarazen, however, declined the offer and chose to play the qualifying round as would any other contestant. He played—and failed to qualify.

The year before Sarazen had the low qualifying score of 145 for 36 holes in a field of 30, and in 1930 he finished the tournament as runner-up by losing to Tommy Armour, 1 up. Sarazen won the P. G. A. championship in 1922 and 1923.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS.

THE AKRON'S END.

WHERE Barnegat points out to sea
And flashes through the murk—
Where Neptune sets his forces free
And has his minions lurk,
A silv'ry ship glides thru the air
Bold, confident and proud
So soon to fall a shambles there—
A sodden, sunken shroud.

II.

When sunset's last faint gleam has died
And stars begin to flash
The Akron starts the fatal ride
So soon, so soon to crash.
Her skipper knows the fogs are near,
That storms are on the wing,
But why should any sailor fear
What April storms can bring?

III.

A flash of lightning lights the skies
Astern and to the west
But what is that to cause surprise
Or challenge to a test?
The Akron's ridden countless storms
And mocked the thunder's crack
Too many times to fear those forms
So menacing and black.

IV.

The thing to do is head to sea
As Jove's wild legions play;
No harm can come if she but flee
And dodge the futile fray.
Outwitting of an April mood
Demands no frenzied haste;
Head south by east and let the brood
Of Jove their fury waste!

V.

But gods of storm most impish are
When treated with disdain. * * *
The clouds close in and cry for war
With lightning, wind and rain.
Annoying, yes, but that is all—
The queen ship knows no fear;
She scorns the storm king's angry call;
Away the helmsmen steer!

VI.

Such tactics always won before—
Why stage a silly fight?
The Akron turns away once more
In confidence and might;
But what is this? * * * She feels a blow
That shakes the giant ship. * * *
The winds of death about her flow
And trap her in their grip.

VII.

Caught in the center of the gale
In turbulence unknown
She's whipped and battered stem to tail
And downward, downward blown;
It's now the Storm King's turn to mock . . .
He strips the great ship bare . . .
She reels beneath a mortal shock
And plunges through the air.

"Prepare to crash!" the voices boom . . .
The sea looms up and then
In thirty awful seconds doom
Comes to her gallant men.
One moment proud as evening star—
The next a twisted shell,
A battered framework drifting far
Upon the tidal swell.

* * * *

Somewhere in currents deep she swings,
A mass of rags and rust,
And shows how feeble are the things
In which men put their trust.

FIXING THE TIME.

State Senator Fearon, of New York, says that all experience has shown that State beer commissions become political sooner or later. Yes, but don't local beer commissions become political sooner than sooner or later?

We know a poet who has a letterhead which advertises "Poems made up to take out," and carries an emergency stamp reading "Meter out of order."

MASS MEETING HITS SLASH OF $3,000,000 IN SCHOOLS BUDGET

Session at Roosevelt High Is Attended by Many; Marked by Fiery Speeches.

Fiery speeches, interlarded with the ironical refrain of Charles I. Stengle, former representative from New York, that "happy days are here again," filled the auditorium of Roosevelt High School last night when several hundred teachers and parents gathered at a mass meeting to protest the reduction of more than $3,000,000 in the school budget for 1934.

The meeting followed a closed one in the afternoon of the District Board of Education at which it was decided to wage a fight to the last inch to prevent the curtailment.

A high light of last night's meeting was the assertion of Harry N. Stull, legislative chairman of the District Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations, that the District auditor and Commissioners are as much to blame for the cuts in the school budget as the Director of the Budget.

Without Consultation.

Mr. Stull explained that the Director of the Budget allocated a lump sum for the District, and then the auditor and Commissioners proceeded to prune the school item without consulting the school authorities. After the cut was made, he said, the school authorities were notified and told to work out some means of operating on the reduced budget.

Lewis Douglas, Director of the Budget, who has been blamed chiefly for the cut, was invited to the meeting, but did not attend.

Miss Selma Borchard, legislative chairman of the Teacher's Union, charged that District schools were being made to suffer because of hardships being suffered by school systems in other cities.

Held Not Economy.

"Congress speaks of economy but consideration should be given as to just what is economy," she declared. "This loss to childhood is not economy. A hearing should be given to determine just what is important and what is not. We have Congress on the one hand providing a large dole for the unemployed and then cutting out the expenditures for new buildings, construction of which would provide employment."

Miss Borchard predicted that the curtailed school funds will mean nonpayment of some teachers, shortening the school year, or overcrowding—one of these deprivations. Stressing the need for preserving social services, she declared that it is inconceivable that President Roosevelt would countenance any curtailment of these services. Miss Borchard made a particular plea for protection of the Americanization School.

"Happy days are here again," boomed Mr. Stengle, president of the District of Columbia Public School Association. These words, threaded throughout his mirth - provoking speech, became a chant of irony.

Urges Elective Board.

He declared that the Budget Bureau has no right to set up expenditures for the District out of District funds. An elective school board is needed more than ever, he asserted.

Reduction in the appropriation for public libraries was deplored by Mrs. Harvey Wiley, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs. A deduction of $12,000 from what is needed will mean the closing of three subbranches — Chevy Chase, Woodridge and Tenleytown—each located 4 miles from the central library, she said.

Evils of misdirected leisure time and lack of amusement for thousands who can not afford commercial entertainment were stressed by A. C. Phillips, advisory counsel of the Community Center Department, as the result of the reduced budget for this department.

School Gardens Plea.

Herbert P. Woods made a plea for school gardens. Miss Mary Dent, president of the District Teachers Union, declared that every single department and employe is needed for the efficiency of the schools. She said that at a time when higher qualifications are required of school teachers that their salaries are being cut to the bone.

George E. Sullivan, representing the Federation of Citizens Associations, described the situation as "really and truly a crisis in the affairs of the District."

Dr. H. E. Warner, president of the District Education Association, declared that a spirit of faith must be added to the fighting spirit.

Rising Vote by Audience.

The meeting was climaxed with the decision, given in rising vote by the audience, to send a statement to President Roosevelt expressing the sentiments given at the meeting. A similar statement will be sent to the Senate Appropriations Committee before which a hearing is sought.

Word was received at the close of the meeting that various parent-teacher associations at meetings last night had gone on record protesting the cut. They were the Randle Highlands, the Orr, Thomson and Emery-Eckington groups.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Joseph N. Saunders, president of the District Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations.

Dr. J. Hayden Johnson, president of the Board of Education, after the afternoon meeting stated that the board will not decide on any specific plan of procedure until final action is taken by Congress on the school bill. He declared that the preservation of the personnel is the most important task before the board.

SENATE UNIT TODAY STUDIES D. C. CUTS

Course of Procedure to Be Mapped; Set Sum Formula Will Be Considered.

Deluged with requests for hearings by protesting civic groups, the Senate District Appropriations subcommittee this morning will sit in judgment on the radically trimmed District appropriations bill.

A course of procedure will be mapped at the meeting. The subcommittee will determine questions of policy, discuss the House $10,236,505 cut under current expenditures and decide on the extent of hearings and who will be called.

While some members openly assailed the appropriation slashes, particularly the cut in the lump sum, Chairman Elmer Thomas himself was noncommittal. Personally, he said, he has always favored a liberal lump-sum allowance by the Federal Government.

Copeland Gets Report.

Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, chairman of a special Senate District Fiscal Relations subcommittee, yesterday received a report from the Bureau of Efficiency recommending a formula for determining once and for all the Federal contribution toward District needs. He will lay it before the subcommittee meeting today. He also favors a liberal allowance.

The bureau three years ago recommended $10,183,391 as an equitable Federal contribution, but the bill which passed the House Wednesday provided only $5,700,000. It is understood the bureau recommends a figure greatly in excess of this amount.

Is Declared Unfair.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, who will sit in on today's subcommittee session, yesterday expressed lack of sympathy with the cuts made in essential District activities under the House bill, and declared the lump sum provision "too low and not a fair proportion." Senator Copeland said he agreed with Senator Capper.

Senator Thomas will suggest limited hearings next week on the House bill, covering period of about three days. The House cut off all hearings after the District Commissioners appeared before the deficiencies appropriations subcommittee.

Chairman William H. King (Democrat), Utah, of the House District Committee, will attend today's appropriation subcommittee meeting.

Dance at Thomson Center.

NAVY YARD STAFFS ON 5 1-2 DAY WEEK

3,700 Civilians Are Affected Here by Swanson Order; Jobs in Danger.

The 45,000 civilian employes of Navy Yards throughout the Nation, including the 3,700 at the Washington yard will be placed on a 5½-day week immediately, Secretary of the Navy Swanson ordered yesterday.

No details were available here yesterday as to how many men might lose their jobs because of the speeding of work due to the longer week.

Because of this speeding, Navy officials stated, forces will have to be reduced or, wherever possible, men will be placed on rotative leaves.

The effect of the policy, officials declared, is to bring the yard employes under the same length work week as employes of the Navy Department.

Each worker will receive wages on the rate of six full days, and under the economy act will lose 15 per cent of six days' pay.

COUPLE IS LOCATED; TO TESTIFY TODAY IN BLACKMAIL CASE

Elmer Burleigh, 54-year-old painter, and his wife, Edna Spradlin Burleigh, missing witnesses in a blackmail case, said by police to involve Slusher Howell, no address, who is being held at the District Jail, were located by police in Baltimore yesterday and will appear against Howell in Police Court today.

According to statements made to police, Howell extorted various sums of money from Burleigh under threat to divulge alleged information that Mrs. Burleigh's marriage to him was not legal.

Both Disappeared.

Howell was taken into custody several weeks ago on a complaint made by a brother of Burleigh. Immediately after Howell's arrest, the painter and his wife disappeared, and when taken into court a few days later, Howell was remanded to the District Jail on a charge of blackmail, and his trial was continued until today so police might find Burleigh and his wife.

When questioned by Tenth Precinct police yesterday, Mrs. Burleigh denied knowledge of Howell's extortion plot, but admitted that she knew Howell and had been friendly with him before she met Burleigh. Information she gave police may result in a white slave investigation before the case is finished.

Former Mate in Roanoke.

Howell is said to have known of a previous marriage of Mrs. Burleigh and that she was not legally divorced before she married Burleigh. Her former husband lives in Roanoke, Va., police say. Howell's threats to disclose this fact led Burleigh to pay him more than $1,800 during the last three months, it is charged. Police also say Howell threatened Burleigh's life.

Burleigh, who is an employe of the telephone company, lives at 938 New York avenue northwest. Until his marriage several months ago "he never had a girl or went around much," police were told. Howell, when arrested, gave his address as the Union Gospel Mission.

Burroughs Group Scores District Budget Slashes

Resolutions condemning the "unwarranted curtailment of funds authorized for expenditure in the District appropriation for 1934" and protesting especially the cuts in school, library and playground estimates in the budget, were adopted last night by the Burroughs Citizens Association.

Other resolutions providing stringent regulations of the sale of beer and recommending special emergency arrangements in rentals and loan payments were discused without action, but were made special orders of business for th enext meeting.

Colored Meeting To Protest Slash

Civic Bodies Will Confer Tonight on Effect of Budget Cuts.

In protest against the "undemocratic" manner in which the District appropriations have been slashed in the local budget, colored civic and educational organizations have united to call a mass meeting tonight in the auditorium of Garnet-Patterson Junior High School.

Representatives of the Federation of Civic Associations, the colored Elks Educational Commission, the College Alumnae Club, the Northwest Central Civic Association, the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, the Consumers League, the Democratic Central Club and the Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations will attend.

Other organized groups are expected to join the movement tonight to call the attention of Congress to the carefully developed balance, since 1906, in the appropriations between white and colored schools, and the destruction of this balance, to the disadvantage of colored schools, in the proposed slashes.

MRS. NORTON QUITS ROOM IN BRIDE ROW

A special meeting of the House District Committee broke up in confusion yesterday following a verbal clash between Chairman Mary T. Norton and Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, over the political sympathies of Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride.

Mrs. Norton insisted until the last that "Mr. Bride is a good Democrat and that is all there is to it." But when Mrs. Norton adjourned the meeting, several members remained behind at Patman's request, to hear his protests against Mr. Bride being reappointed to the corporation counsel's post.

When Mrs. Norton remained with them, Patman asked that "the lady please either keep still or leave the room." Mrs. Norton left. Patman quoted "Who's Who" to the effect that Mr. Bride was a member of the Wilson inaugural committee in 1913, and the Hoover inaugural committee in 1929. He said he is opposing "fence riders and hide-out Democrats" for local preferment.

Homer Rodeheaver, evangelist singer, was a guest at the meeting.

TROLLEY FIRM LOSES THREE-CENT APPEAL

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday denied an appeal of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and the Capital Traction Co. from an order of March 13 to permit pupils of private schools in suburban Maryland to ride on Washington street cars for 3 cents.

Previously, the commission had made a similar ruling regarding public school pupils, going either way across the District-Maryland line. The case in question involved the Seventh Day Adventists School at Takoma Park, Md.

The commission also acceded to complaints against the maintenance of a taxicab stand on California street, just west of Connecticut avenue, and abolished it. To accommodate that area an existing stand on Florida avenue, just east of Connecticut avenue, was increased in capacity from ten to twenty cabs.

Letters were addressed to the chairmen of the Senate and House Interstate Commerce Committees asking that the commission be notified whenever any legislation concerning interestate bus operation is considered, as the local utilities body has jurisdiction over the operation of interstate buses in Washington.

NORTHEAST SAVINGS STOCKHOLDERS BACK PLAN OF REOPENING

Vote Approval of Program Calling for Purchase of $100,000 Stock.

Stockholders of the Northeast Savings Bank last night voted to approve the sale of $100,000 in capital stock, already authorized, as a move toward reopening of the bank.

The plan for the bank's reopening was advanced by George P. Hoover, conservator and vice president, and has the approval of the Treasury Department and the bank's directors.

Will Purchase Stock.

The program calls for the depositors to apply 25 per cent of their deposits toward purchase of stock in the bank at the rate of $25 per share. This stock would have a par value of $10 per share, the other $15 being applied to cancel depreciated value in securities held by the bank toward the building up of a reserve.

Series of Meetings.

To put forward the plan, beginning Monday a series of meetings of depositors will be held to acquaint them with the program's features.

The stockholders last night also voted their confidence in the bank's officers and directors.

Response of the depositors to the program will mean that the bank will be able to resume business after obtaining final approval of the Comptroller of the Treasury.

Vincent Carter Guest Of Catholic U. Alumni

Members of the Washington chapter of the Catholic University alumni held a luncheon meeting yesterday at the Madrillon. Representative Vincent Carter, of Wyoming, was the guest of honor, while the meeting was presided over by William F. Dietz, president of the chapter.

Final arrangements for the holding of a memorial service for deceased members of the chapter were discussed. The service will be held at Catholic University on Sunday, April 23, with Senator Augustine Lonergan as the principal speaker.

Police Pull Woman From Train Tracks

Rescue Is Made Shortly Before Fast Freight Reaches Scene.

Answering a hurried call to the foot of Sixteenth street southeast, where a woman was supposed to be "walking bare headed through the rain," police last night removed Mrs. Sila Meade, 47, of 1211 I street southeast, from the railroad tracks shortly before a fast freight train reached the spot.

Four minutes after Privates W. C. Truesdale and M. J. Engle, answering the call in a Fourth Precinct patrol wagon, had pulled the woman's prostrate form from the tracks the freight passed. Claude Wash, manager of a filling station at Eleventh and B streets southeast, called the police, saying that a woman was walking toward the Anacostia River in the pouring rain, wearing neither hat nor coat.

Mrs. Meade was booked for intoxication.
